World Mourns for Man Everyone Knew as Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in the Second World War of the mightiest armed force ever assembled and former president of the United States, died today.

The announcement of the general's death was made in a sombre voice by Brig.-Gen. Frederic Hughes Jr., commanding general of Walter Reed Army Hospital who said that Eisenhower had "died quietly at 12:25 p.m. EST after a long and heroic struggle," and that he had died peacefully.

"Mrs. Eisenhower and members of the immediate family" were nearby at the time of death, Hughes continued.

Life Story Of Ike In Pictures Pages 10, 11

He added that President Nixon, former president Lyndon B. Johnson and Eisenhower's two brothers had been notified. Nixon, meanwhile, drove from the White House to the hospital, in Bethesda, Md.

The 78-year-old general, known as Ike throughout the world, was hit by congestive heart failure March 15 and again last Monday while recuperating from an intestinal operation and pneumonia complications.

He already had battled back from seven heart attacks before undergoing surgery for an intestinal obstruction Feb. 23.

Four days after undergoing the high-risk surgery, he contracted pneumonia. Doctors successfully combatted the pneumonia with antibiotics.

But throughout the February trouble, it was Eisenhower's heart which caused doctors their prime concern.

SITUATION DECLINED

Doctors made no mention of the congestive heart failure March 15 until after Eisenhower's wife, Mamie, said at a party that the general had endured a "particularly bad" day.

Reporters questioned the hospital and were told of the latest onset of heart trouble.

Eisenhower had been in the hospital since April 29 last, when a heart attack felled him in California after a round of golf. He was transferred to Walter Reed and there suffered three more, his seventh coming on Aug. 16.

Since then he had gained vigor, walked short distances, received President Nixon and Johnson, and grinned his famed and folksy grin from a hospital window when a United States Army band, observing Salute to Eisenhower Week, serenaded him on his birthday Oct. 14.

The grin was undimmed from 1944, when it heartened Allied troops mobilized for the awesome thrust through Normandy to the heart of Nazi Germany; from 1948, when he became president of Columbia University, New York from 1950, when he assumed supreme command of NATO forces, and from 1952, when both Democrats and Republicans sought him as their nominee for U.S. president.

As a Republican, he swept into office and four years later won re-election in what was then the greatest landslide in history.

That made him the only Republican president of this century to win successive White House terms.

Despite this stunning political victory, Eisenhower disdained always partisan politics and privately made no secret of a dislike for politicians.

"I think in the general derogatory sense you can say, of

. . . And Now Sorrow

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau, expressing the feeling of "all Canadians," said he learned of the death today of former president Dwight D. Eisenhower "with a sense of grief and sorow."

Trudeau, who indicated he might attend Eisenhower's funeral, said Canadians had, through the years, regarded the former president with "devotion, affection and now, sorrow."

STRONG EARTHQUAKES LEAVE 43 TURKS DEAD

ISTANBUL (AP)—A wave of strong earth tremors jolted Turkey's Aegean region today, leaving 43 persons known dead.

More than 2,500 homes were reported to have collapsed or been seriously damaged.

The focus of the quake was located at the towns of Alasehir and Sarigol and their surroundings—about 80 miles east of the Aegean port of Izmir.

The shocks hit a wide arc of western Turkey extending from Izmir in the west, Balikesir in the north and Usak in the east.

East German Split With Russia Hinted

Jordan Urged To Save Talks

Times News Services

UNITED NATIONS — Britain appealed to Jordan today not to split the Security Council and endanger the start of Big Four talks on the Middle East next week by forcing a vote to condemn Israel for Wednesday's air raid which killed 18 Arab civilians.

Highly placed diplomats said the Four Power conference seeking a Middle East settlement was expected to start — probably next Thursday — at the French embassy in New York.

MAJOR POWERS

Sir Leslie Glass, deputy chief of the British delegation, appealed in the second day's debate on Jordanian and Israeli counter-complaints to the council to preserve the unity which would enable the major powers to act.

He appealed to Jordanian Ambassador Muhammed H. El-Farra, who conferred before this morning's council meeting with Secretary-General Thant, to "reflect on the need to preserve the unanimity of this council."

"A serious split now would be a setback to the interests of the Jordanian people as well as to the interests of the people of the world," Glass said.

ECHOES APPEAL

Finnish Ambassador Max Jakobson echoed Glass's appeal for unity.

French Ambassador Armand Berard said the Big Four powers "must be equal to their special responsibilities conferred on them by their status in this council."

Algeria charged that Israel's strategy is to destroy the Arab countries' economic potential and force them into accepting a dictated peace.

Thursday the United States and the Soviet Union sought to prevent Israel's bombing raid from upsetting the Four Power meeting.

As the council heard Jordan's complaint, Western ambassadors said privately Israel apparently had made a tragic error in confusing a rest house and taxis near Es Salt for an encampment of Arab guerrillas.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik accused Israel of wanting "to undermine international efforts to restore peace" and asked that the council condemn it and warn the government against repetition. He made no mention of the guerrillas against whom Israel claimed to be reacting.

Malik was careful, however, not to charge Western complicity, and he placed elaborate stress on continued efforts for political settlement.

HOPE EXPRESSED

American Ambassador Charles W. Yost deplored the Israeli raid but equally deplored recent artillery exchanges across the Suez Canal and extensive terrorism for which Arab governments "cannot completely escape responsibility."

Predicting early Four Power consultations to buttress the mission of United Nations Middle East representative Gunnar Jarring, Yost expressed hope that the Arabs and Israelis will reply positively to questions he has asked. Jarring received the Egyptian reply on a visit to Cairo Thursday.

In opening the case Thursday, Jordanian Ambassador

Captain Fined $250 For Killing Seals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Capt. Kyree Jacobsen of the Norwegian sealing vessel Polarsirkel was fined $250 or sentenced to two months in jail Thursday when he pleaded guilty to charges of killing seals within Canada's territorial waters.

The charges arose from an incident March 15 near George's Island in Hamilton Inlet, off the east coast of Labrador. The ship was arrested a week later.

Capt. Jacobsen, originally pleaded not guilty, but after four prosecution witnesses had been heard he changed his plea to guilty.

GOD OUT OF ARMY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army has ordered chaplains to eliminate all reference to God and religious philosophy in lectures aimed at instilling moral responsibility in its soldiers.

An army spokesman confirmed the new policy Thursday after word of it had reached some members of Congress, angering many of them.

The new policy was prompted by a complaint last year from the American Civil Liberties Union that the lectures were being used as religious indoctrination.

The ACLU now is asking the air force and navy to take similar steps.

Ulbricht Quits Moscow Talks

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW (WP) — East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht departed unceremoniously for Berlin Thursday amid signs of mounting tension between his government and top leaders of the Soviet Union.

Ulbricht left after a three-day visit, apparently without having seen Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev or Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

He came ostensibly to attend a commemorative confedence on the prewar communist international which ended Wednesday. His only reported activity Thursday was a visit to the Marx Engels museum.

●

The signs of tension came from East Berlin as well as Moscow. The source of the tension, observers believe, is a reappraisal by the Soviet leadership of its policy toward West Germany in the light of secret Bonn-Moscow conversations which have been conducted since December.

The reappraisal is believed to have been decisively accelerated by recent clashes on the Sino-Soviet frontier. It has also been prompted by consistent pressure from the Rumanian, Italian and other European Communist parties — expressed most recently at meetings in Budapest and here last week — to scrap Ulbricht's harsh line of "confrontaton" with West Germany and move decisively ahead in the Moscow-Bonn dialogue.

●

In that dialogue, both Soviet and West German diplomats have indicated a readiness to consider significant modifications of previous "all or nothing" bargaining positions.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, announcing Ulbricht's departure in a dispatch Thursday night, disclosed that he had been seen off by the same officials who greeted him Monday — Arvid Pelshe, 70, of the Politburo and junior party secretary Konstantin Katushev, 43 (although strict protocol called for both Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny. Podgorny departed Tuesday for North Africa).

●

The comintern conference Tuesday was addressed by Soviet party secretaries Mikhail Suslov and Boris Ponomarev as well as Ulbricht, and likewise attended by Pelshe and Katushev. Suslov, however, skipped Wednesday's sessions—after the Tuesday speeches had disclosed sharp differences between Ulbricht, on the one hand, and himself and Ponomarev on the other.

Although all three speeches were considerably censored in both Soviet and East German media, the differences emerged strongly — Ulbricht defended, and the Soviet leaders criticized, German Communists' attacks on the Social Democrats as the historic "main enemy."

●

The "theoretical" controversy was extremely topical, because West German Social Democratic leader Willy Brandt, now Bonn foreign minister, was the prime initiator of the promising Russian-German dialogue.

Brandt suggested the dialogue at a meeting

Big Police Force to Patrol Demonstration at McGill

MONTREAL (CP) — Tight security measures are expected at tonight's demonstration by forces seeking to transform McGill University into a French-language institution.

At least 200 policemen are expected for the three-quarter-mile march, dubbed Operation McGill. It is organized by Raymond Lemieux, president of the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, and other activists.

The group hopes to see the 148-year-old university converted into a French-language institution by 1972.

Mr. Lemieux said Thursday he requested police protection for an anticipated turnout of 5,000 outside marchers.

Mayor Jean Drapeau issued "a pressing appeal for calm and moderation." He said he recognized the right to hold the demonstration, but "the citizen's right to protection of his life and property remains fundamental."

The "role of the police forces will be to ensure" that the demonstration maintains a "peaceful character."

The planned march has drawn opposition from McGill's administration and the students' society representing about 14,000 of 16,331 full-time students.

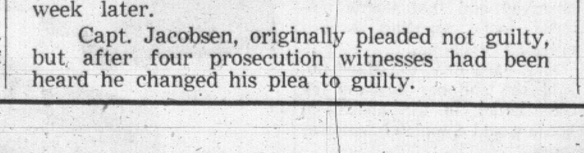
In Ottawa Justice Minister Turner said in the Commons Thursday that Quebec has asked for the "potential aid" of the RCMP and army if Montreal police were unable to handle the demonstration.

Mr. Turner said outside the Commons that Quebec merely put Ottawa on notice and had not formally requested troops.

In Quebec City, Premier Bertrand told reporters his justice department, the Quebec government, provincial police and Montreal police had not asked Ottawa for army aid.

When reporters pressed him on the matter, he said:

"It's disgusting. No minister of the Crown should have said what Mr. Turner said. It's the sort of stuff that provokes people. It's appalling."



It sez somethin' fer a man thet he c'd run th' biggest army in hist'ry an' still be known as "Ike."

with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last September at the United Nations. When the exploratory talks began here in December, with West German Ambassador Helmut Allardt conferring first with Gromyko and later with deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semyonov, Ulbricht arrived uninvited—ostensibly for a rest cure, and stayed in the Soviet Union for a month before finally being received by Brezhnev.

●

The talks were then transferred in January to Bonn, where Soviet Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin has met Brandt and Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger before, during and after the Ulbricht inspired "minicrisis" over the West German presidential election in Berlin early this month.

Although Ulbricht has always had a strong lobby in the Kremlin, some observers believe he may now be in his most serious difficulties since former Soviet premier Nikita Khruschev prepared to dump him, shortly before his own fall in October 1964. Earnest Kremlin debates are considered likely in the near future.

A sign of distinct East German displeasure came in Wednesday's edition of the official party newspaper Neues Deutschland, which sharply curtailed the speeches here Tuesday by Suslov and Ponomarev. Furthermore, beneath a front page photograph in which Suslov, Katushev, Ponomarev and Pelshe were equally visible, the Neues Deutschland caption identified only Suslov and Katushev (the latter a Brezhnev protoge but a latecomer to to Kremlin circles).

●

Also, while East German Foreign Minister Otto Winzer was declaring Wednesday that West Berlin is located on East German territory and is the centre of "provocations" and "aggressive intrigues" by West German "imperialism," Tass Wednesday was citing statements by scientist Manfred von Ardenne and other "non-political" East Germans in favor of last week's Budapest appeal on European security. The appeal, considered mild and encouraging by Brandt and allied diplomats, said merely that West Berlin "has a special status." Tass did finally report Winzer's statement on Thursday, however.

Apparent evidence of mixed Soviet feelings came in sharply varying Soviet press treatment of Ulbricht's long speech here Tuesday. Only Pravda (with which Suslov has been identified for more than two decades) and Sovietskaya Rossiya (considered to reflect Brzhnev's personal views) reported the speech at any length Thursday. Izvestia, organ of the Soviet government (headed by Podgorny and Kosygin), brushed it off in two noncontroversial paragraphs Wednesday evening.

El-Farra charged that Israel had deliberately attempted to "dynamite the efforts of the Big Four," first by sending foreign Minister Abba Eban to the United States and then by launching the Es Salt raid.

But Israeli Ambassador Yosef Kekoah insisted that Es Salt is a major base for terrorists whom Jordan has encouraged.

"This must stop," he declared. "This cannot go on, and we shall not allow it to go on."

Despite the trading of accusations, observers were impressed by the restraint on all sides. El-Farra avoided mentioning condemnation and asked merely that the Security Council obtain an end to the Israeli raids.

Realtor, Contractor Seek Colwood Seat

A realtor and an electrical contractor will seek the Colwood seat on the Capital Region Board.

They are Herman Williams, 2265 Sooke Road, and R. M. Emery, 527 Allandale.

Williams, a former dairy farmer, fur farmer and insurance agent, has lived in the Colwood area since 1932.

"I'll go to the board with an open mind and learn for a while," he said.

"I will keep the people fully informed if elected, and if I think the district is being poorly treated I'll holler like a stuck pig."

Emery, a former Colwood fire chief for 13 years, is president of the Firemen's Association.

"One reason I'm running is that we are property owners in Colwood and Victoria, and our business covers the entire lower Island — so I already have a regional concept."

Nominations for representatives from Colwood, Langford and Metchosin close April 8. Elections, if necessary, will be April 19.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The very cold Arctic air which covers northern B.C. and the prairie provinces is not expected to move into central or southern B.C. Thus skies will remain relatively sunny today and Saturday as a Pacific ridge of high pressure continues to dominate the weather picture. Low cloud will persist along the outer coast overnight and in the morning while cloud cover should move into the lower mainland Saturday evening as the ridge weakens.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

As summer nears we begin to think about the North Country, Alberta's Lake Louise, for example, or Montana's Flathead Lake, where the weather is always changing and where smog is a foreign word.

Flathead, one of the largest lakes inside the borders of the United States, and Lake Louise have one thing in common (although I think the Canadian Lake has more of it) — ice-cold water that will break out the goose pimples in a hurry when you dive in. The young and hardy can swim in Flathead, but nobody is young enough or hardy enough to enjoy swimming for very long in Lake Louise.

You can enjoy three kinds of weather in almost any half-hour at Lake Lousie: sunshine, then massive clouding that changes the colors of the flowers on the shore, and then rain. The Canadian college students who work at the big hotel there in summer don't make a habit of swimming in Lake Louise. They are subject to a stiff fine if they do.

Pill Ads Win Support

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave evidence Thursday that legal sale and advertising of contraceptives has passed the hurdle of general acceptance by MPs.

A government bill to make such advertising and sale legal for the first time in Canada waltzed through second reading in a mere hour of debate, most of it complementary.

The complements extended to other segments of the bill, which would put tighter restrictions on such drugs as lysergic acid diethylamide, LSD for short, and the amphetimine drug known to users as "speed."

But another drug bill, brought in by the government with the aim of lowering prescription drug prices for patients, hit some hurdles.

It faced a total of 14 amendments proposed by various MPs.

The government has given clear indication that it does not want to buy them. As each one came up for discussion Thursday night, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford, piloting the drug prices bill, explained why and called on the Liberal back-bench troops to give them a voice-vote "nay."

By the end of the sitting, five of the 14 had been voted down.

The bill now goes to the Commons committee on health for clause-by-clause study.

SEES ATTITUDE CHANGE

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway), a long-time proponent of legalizing birth control measures, noted that it was only a few years ago that one MP described a similar bill as "diabolical scheme, straight from hell itself".

The change in moral attitudes that permitted this bill to get second reading so quickly made it "a pretty historic occasion," Mrs. MacInnis said.

She also said that the law is only being changed to conform with what has been popular public practice for years, so Parliament is not exactly blazing a new trail.

On contraceptive devices, the main effect of this bill is to scrap the Criminal Code section that prohibits sale or advertisement of any device for preventing conception.

Manufacturers of contraceptive devices would not be allowed to advertise directly, said Health Minister John Munro. But agencies with an interest in family planning would be allowed to do so.

Trudeau Denies Arctic Rights Under Dispute

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday categorically rejected suggestions that Canadian sovereignty over the islands of the Arctic archipelago is in dispute.

"Our sovereignty over all Arctic islands is not disputed in any way," the prime minister said, reaffirming statements he made March 7 in the Commons.

The prime minister said that the question of the status of Canadian Arctic seas "was not established in a way which entailed the recognition of the international community."

Promising a government policy statement on Arctic seas, the prime minister said he had told President Nixon during his visit to Washington March 24 and 25 "that the question of territorial seas and especially of fishing rights was of grave concern to us and we hoped to take a position on it which will be respected by all the international community very soon."

OIL MAP ISSUE

Reports that Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic islands was challenged arose from the publication in the United States, by private oil companies, of maps showing the status of some islands as doubtful. Canada has been assured by the U.S. state department that the maps are "of no official value."

Plans of a consortium of American oil companies to attempt a Northwest Passage crossing with the super-tanker Manhattan, reinforced for survival in heavy ice, have also been described as an implied challenge to Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic. But this view is disputed by external affairs department spokesmen.

Earlier Trudeau told the House that a projected tour of northern Canada by the Governor-General "is not to assert our sovereignty there."

"Our sovereignty in the northern part of Canada is very well established," he said.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) had asked, in reference to recent debate over possible invasion of Canadian sovereignty by anti-ballistic missiles in outer space, "in view of the reports that the Governor-General is to make a tour to the northern part of Canada to assert our sovereignty there, will the government consider shooting the Governor-General into outer space so that we can assert ourselves there as well?"

Trudeau replied, "I am afraid he will only find members of the New Democratic Party there."

"That is right," Mr. Knowles said, "we are everywhere."

PROTEST STALLS APARTMENT

An apartment opposition group stalled the construction of a four-storey apartment at Government and Marifield for at least two weeks Thursday.

Appearing before council to protest the move was Mrs. Ainslie Worthington appearing for her mother, Mrs. John Worthington of 247 Douglas.

She claimed the city was not paying enough attention to apartment development throughout the James Bay area, that set-backs were not being observed and that traffic patterns were creating ever-increasing problems.

Mrs. Sara Kay, 605 Marifield, said she and her husband felt construction of the apartment house would completely smother them.

Council agreed to table the matter for two weeks to check traffic patterns and an egress and exits to the proposed apartment site.

A second pressure group protested the possible development of a 3½-acre site in Victoria West in the vicinity of Sea Terrace and Barnard Avenue.

PARK WANTED

They wanted the city to purchase the land from Crown Assets and turn it into a park.

Ald. Harold Olafson said he thought the idea was good but the cost prohibitive.

The matter came up when council introduced for final reading a zoning bylaw change which would make the park-like area residential rather than commercial.

Council members explained that unless the change was made the 3½-acre lot would be without protection and could be sold to private developers for warehouse construction.

By changing the zoning the city would at least control what type of development could go into the area.

Following the meeting city planner Geoff Greenhalgh said it was the city's intention to watch proposed development carefully. He added that the city would make sure beach access in the area would be maintained.

. . . EISENHOWER DIES AT 78

course, that I do not like politics," he told a 1955 news conference.

And despite his rise to Supreme Allied Commander in Europe during the Second World War, he was no fonder of what he called "this damnable thing of war."

While in the U.S. Army, Eisenhower said he wanted only to see "people in my profession permanently out of a job."

He left office after his second four-year as president proud that he kept the peace, but warning against the growing influence of a "military-industrial complex."

Ike's reassuring image eased trouble years. Fidel Castro seized Cuba, led it into Communism. The Soviet Union launched Sputnik I. The U-2 spy plane was shot down over Russian in flaming controversy.

Eisenhower made good his promise to end the war in Korea, ordered federal troops into Little Rock, Ark., to enforce school desegregation, and backed up his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, in the cold war policy called "brinkmanship."

In 1955, a severe heart attack put him in hospital in Denver, Colo., for seven weeks.

Then vice-president Richard M. Nixon got a foretaste of the dire responsibility he would not win in his own right until 13 years later.

In the final weeks of the 1960 election campaign when Nixon ran unsuccessfully against John F. Kennedy, Eisenhower made speeches in several big cities for Nixon. The crowds were big and enthusiastic—but often the hand-lettered signs said "We still like Ike" instead of "We want Dick."

The general stayed neutral in the bitter Repudlican battle of 1964 which resulted in the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater, but in last year's campaigning he came out for Nixon.

And Nixon, launched on his comeback, invoked the magic name again: "Let's win this one for Ike."

The body will lie in state, first at the Washington cathedral for one day. Then it will be borne by caisson—at slow march and to the roll of drums—down Constitution Avenue to the Capitol, where the public will be permitted to file by the bier in the rotunda for 24 hours.

Finally, the body will be taken to Abilene, Kan., his boyhood home, for burial at the Eisenhower Library.

Born in Denison, Tex., he grew up in near-poverty in Abilene in a fundamentalist religious household. His mother, a member of a pacifist sect, wept when her boy received his appointment to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

As most army officers in the post-First World War period, Eisenhower lived a rather obscure and comparatively uneventful life.

But he had been marked for promotion and, when the Second World War came, he was chosen by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the army chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, to command the invasion of North Africa.

From there he rose to the military summit. As supreme commander in Europe, he commanded the greatest military machine ever assembled.

In military circles he became renowned not so much for strategic skill as for the way he could smooth out and co-ordinate international complications, where pride was easily ruffled.

After the war, he served as president of Columbia University, and then was tapped by President Harry S Truman to fill one military job after another, notably the one which gave him supreme command again, this time of the allied forces seeking, without war, to halt Soviet advances in Europe.

It was from this post that Dwight D. Eisenhower made his great decision, to put aside the uniform and run for the presidency.

New Commander Takes Over QOR Battalion

Lt.-Col. T. M. Marsaw became commander of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, at a change of command parade at Work Point Barracks this morning.

He accepted the command from Col. H. C. Pitts, commander of the battalion since January, 1967.

Col. Pitts will leave for his new posting with the United States Army command and staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in early April.

Canada Wooed U.S. for China

OTTAWA (CP)—A former Canadian cabinet minister in 1964-65 tried to act as an intermediary between the United States and Communist China, it was disclosed today.

The former agriculture minister, Alvin Hamilton, visited Peking in 1964 and brought back with him a message for the Americans from Prime Minister Chou En-lai.

HAMILTON
. . . sent by Chou

Mr. Hamilton, who was agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker cabinet from 1960 until April, 1963, said in an interview with Canadian Press reporter Dave McIntosh, that he delivered the message to a secret U.S. Senate foreign relations committee in early 1965 but that it was ignored.

Gist of the message was that China wanted to ease relations with the U.S. but that it wanted to recover all territories it held before 1900—including territory now held by the Soviet Union.

Mr. Hamilton told a closed session of the Canada-U.S. interparliamentary group last year that China was getting ready for a big confrontation with Russia.

This was disclosed this week when an account of the group's closed meetings was published here. Accounts of meetings of the group, comprising Canadian and American MPs and Congressmen, had never before been made public in Canada.

REPORTED ON VISIT

Mr. Hamilton gave the group a report on his meeting in 1964 with Chou En-lai. He was also in contact with the Chinese in 1960 when Canada made its first big wheat sale to Communist China.

Mr. Hamilton told a reporter today that he kept notes of his 1964 conversation with Chou.

He said Chou intended that their conversation be passed on to the Americans and agreed that Mr. Hamilton see members of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee.

"They ignored the message, which was an attempt to try to bridge the gap between the U.S. and China," Mr. Hamilton said.

Mr. Hamilton said Chou was willing to work out an arrangement with the U.S. to settle the issue of Formosa over a period of years.

He quoted Chou as accepting the principle of self-determination for 10,000,000 Formosans.

He said China was not contemplating a confrontation with the U.S., though it feared one and was willing to fight if necessary.

He added that the Americans were so involved with Vietnam that they could not see clearly the much larger issue of China.

After his 1960 contacts with the Chinese, Mr. Hamilton saw President Kennedy in March, 1961.

He said Kennedy seemed impressed with his argument that the U.S. should come in with Canada on grain sales to China as one means to ease relations with the Chinese Communists.

However, the proposal had not worked out because the Americans had doubly insulted China by offering grain free and on condition China asked for it.

New B.C. Judge

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner today announced the appointment of Leslie Malcolm McDonald as a judge of the County Court of New Westminster. Mr. McDonald, 44, was judge of the family and children's court in Langley.

TIES WITH CHINA SAID PERILOUS

OTTAWA (CP) — Nationalist China's ambassador in Canada said today that Canadian recognition of the Communist Chinese government could be a threat to peace and order in this country.

Hsueh Yu-Chi told an Ottawa service club that the student riots in Paris last year were—"according to responsible French officials"—instigated and financed by the Communist Chinese embassy there.

Canadians had a foretaste of such plots with the computer-smashing at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, he said. Police had discovered "a large quantity of Maoist documents and propaganda material there.

"I am afraid that, if Maoist agents could be officially allowed in this country, computer-smashing would become child's play in comparison with what might happen then to peace and order in Canada."

●

The text of the ambassador's speech was made available to the press prior to delivery.

One of the arguments being used by proponents of Peking recognition, he said, is that such a move would further the cause of peace.

The Soviet Union not only recognizes the Communist regime in China, he said, it helped install it. Now the two countries were engaged in a struggle for power.

Britain and France, through their recognition of Peking, had not been able to further the cause of peace "by one single inch."

"Can it be expected then, that Canada will achieve the miracle by her recognition where the British and the French have failed?"

●

On the contrary, he said, Canadian recognition would merely encourage the Communists "in their belief that their policy of war is paying dividends."

It was also a fallacy to equate the recognition of the Communist regime with the recognition of 700,000,000 people. Britain and France "have never been able to establish any contact with the 700,000,000 people or even with a fraction thereof."

"Obsession with numbers often obscures other factors of higher value. Those who overemphasize the number of 700,000,000 people existing on the mainland tend to ignore their misery and their deep yearning for freedom, and take no account of the readiness of 13,500,000 of their brethren in Taiwan, under the government of the Republic of China, to help them."

Anguillans Hail Plans For Self-Development

THE VALLEY, Anguilla (Reuters) — Residents of this occupied island today prepared a warm welcome for Lord Caradon, permanent British ambassador to the United Nations and a Caribbean expert known for his liberal views on colonial questions.

Speaking to 300 cheering islanders Thursday, Anguillan leader Ronald Webster said: "Let us pay a welcome to Lord Caradon. He is my guest."

But British authorities emphasized they do not regard Caradon as Webster's guest, saying the ambassador is coming here to assess the situation since the British invasion March 19 before making recommendations to Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart in London.

Caradon however is expected to meet with Webster who returned triumphantly to the 6,000-population island Thursday after several days in New York which included a visit to the United Nations.

FOCUS OF ATTACK

Since the bloodless occupation by paratroops and police, Tony Lee, the British commissioner here, has been given viceroy-like powers and has become the focus of islanders' attack on the British invasion.

It was feared by some observers here Lee may be sacrificed in negotiations on the island's future.

Moderates as well as radical Anguillans believe the best starting point for any negotiations during Caradon's visit would be for the ambassador to announce the island's constitutional severance from the federation of St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla.

Anguilla declared independence from the federation two years ago and its stateless situation along with British claims of Mafia-type elements on the island led to the invasion.

Webster, self-styled president of Anguilla, was hugged Thursday by enthusiastic islanders upon his return. He told them of developments plans for the island which did not include Britain.

DEAL WITH WHO?

"Anguilla must expect to deal with foreigners from outside to help develop the island," he said, declining to elaborate on the word "foreigners."

Webster rejected a plan for British Army engineers to build a prefabricated school, roads and a decent waer supply system.

He talked instead about emigre Anguillans returning to help develop the island into a tourist resort which would attract 2,500 visitors a year.

"But we will not become a nation of bell boys and waiters," he said.

"We have set an example to the world," said Webster, as islanders struggled to shake his head.

'MAN OF CANDOR', MANSFIELD SAYS

WASHINGTON (CP)—Senator Mike Mansfield says an extended group discussion involving Prime Minister Trudeau here Tuesday night was, "I think . . . the most interesting and informative one that I have attended in my 27 years as a member of Congress."

The Senate Domocratic leader from Montana, a guest at the dinner given for Trudeau by Canadian Ambassador A. E. Ritchie, made his remarks in putting the transcript of two Trudeau press conferences here into the congressional record.

Mansfield called Trudeau a "man of candor, understanding, wit and sympathy."

Labor Gov't Suffers Rebuff in Britain

LONDON (CP) — Disgruntled British voters continued Thursday to pick away at the Labor government's majority in the House of Commons, ousting Labor from one seat and re-installing Conservatives in two others in parliamentary byelections.

It was the first test of voter sentiment in Britain since November and it showed that Prime Minister Wilson's government has had no more success at regaining popularity than it has had correcting the national economic problems which cause public discontinent.

Walthomstow East riding in London rejected its former Labor affiliation and elected Tory Michael McNair-Wilson, 39, a hard-campaigning public relations executive. He turned a previous Labor majority of 1,800 votes into a Tory lead of nearly 5,500—a swing of 16 per cent.

The Conservatives had previously held the other two seats, Weston-Super-Mare and Brighton Pavilion, with comfortable margins but their leads were greatly increased Thursday. At the seaside area of Weston-Super-Mare, Labor fell behind even the Liberal candidate as Tory farmer Alfred Wiggin, 32, won out.

At Brighton, former Conservative MP Julian Amery celebrated his 50th birthday by winning. Son-in-law of former prime minister Harold Macmillan and minister of aviation in 1962-64, he had been defeated in the 1966 Labor landslide.

POLLS 13,158 VOTES

McNair-Wilson polled 13,158 votes. Labor candidate Colin Phipps got 7,679. In the 1966 election, Labor got 15,703, Conservatives 13,896 and Liberals 3,229.

Amery got 17,636 votes to 4,654 for Labor candidate Thomas Skeffingtan-Lodge. Liberal Nesta Wyn Ellis drew 2,711. In 1966, the Conservatives drew 22,687 to Labor's 16,333.

Wiggin polled 29,211 votes compared with Liberal Edward Deal's 8,739. Labor's Nicholas Bosanquet drew 6,504. In 1966 the vote was Conservatives 27,733, Labor 15,340 and Liberals 10,173.

The results brought a predictable demand from Conservative party headquarters for Labor to resign and call a general election. There was an equally predictable rejection from government quarters.

Wilson has until May, 1971, before he must call another general election.

After Thursday's election, this was the standing in the Commons: Labor 345, Conservatives and allies 260, Liberals 12, Republican Labor 1, Independent Labor 1, Independent Conservative 1, Welsh Nationalist 1, Scottish Nationalist 1, Speaker and deputies 3, vacancies 5. Total 630.

'No Comment' 'Don't Know'

IF THE PRESENT SOCIAL Credit government is remembered for its successful efforts to make the most of the province's 15-year-long boom, it will also be remembered for the incredible maladjustments and bulldozing that marred its closing years. It has become almost a commonplace now that even simple governmental procedures and policies inevitably become clouded in a confusion of misunderstandings, contradictions, obfuscations, and explanations that do not explain.

The free-ranging career of Mr. Gaglardi in regard to use of government equipment, airplane rides and hotel reservations has produced situations which have never been completely explained by the government, regardless of the many words expended on such discussions. The relatively unknown duties of the three lady ministers - without - portfolio have frequently been queried but never fully revealed. But this type of government cloudiness is of minor consideration when compared with the provincial government's role in the Commonwealth debacle—for even the tabled documents and the searching questions of the opposition members have still not provided the public with the full picture of that unbelievable episode.

* * *

But the government's record in regard to pollution control and the Rose-Blanshard arterial thoroughfare defies any rational explanation. Many months after initial enquiries and sewage proposals were put to the government, the municipalities are still unable to understand the official stand on sewage treatment and the exact standards which will be required. Health Minister Loffmark has made so many puzzling statements, some of them contradictory in themselves and some in conflict with statements emanating from other government departments, that no council can proceed with a sewage program with confidence that the regulations are clear-cut and final.

What could happen to any such program may be seen in a different field—Victoria's efforts to construct an arterial north-south highway to ease the increasing congestion on Douglas Street. The Rose-Blanshard development has been the subject of talks and correspondence with the government for the past nine years, and there are enough government statements and agreements on paper to leave no shadow of doubt that ministers knew the city was proceeding with its construction program, and that the whole purpose of the project was to connect at the northern end with the Douglas Street-Patricia Bay Highway artery.

* * *

Now with final widening being completed at the city end, and the multi-lane roadway extended to the city boundary at Tolmie Avenue, the government apparently indicates that it has no intention of linking the roadway with the main traffic northward. The road, at a cost of many thousands of dollars to Victorians, may end at the boundary. But, as in the case of pollution standards, nobody in the government will say for sure, nobody will explain, nobody will take responsibility. It is as destructive a demonstration of political evasion and fumbling as this province has seen.

But the government can be forthright when it wants to be. When it has legislation or votes to drive through the Legislature it employs the old tactic of legislation by exhaustion. Bulldozing along with his regimented majority, Premier Bennett is quite prepared to keep the House in session until midnight, one, two, three o'clock or later, until votes are passed through sheer physical collapse. This is not an exhibition of governmental legislative ability, it is a shabby and contemptuous treatment of the public's business.

Walter Gage Is Available

DURING A PROFESSIONAL lifetime dedicated to the University of British Columbia—and interrupted for a short period by a successful stint at Victoria College in the late 20s—acting president Walter Gage has received many of the highest honors the university can confer upon members of its staff. He has been named Great Trekker, was recently awarded a master teacher laurel, and has gained respect not only for his abilities before a mathematics class but also for his administrative career. Beyond that, Walter Gage has stepped into the breach and met the challenge whenever he was called upon to assume presidential responsibilities.

As British Columbia's biggest and oldest university now seeks a successor for Dr. Kenneth Hare, who resigned in January, Dean Gage has indicated his willingness, if asked, to fill the post of full president, rather than acting president, for the year or two remaining before he reaches the retirement age of 65.

His attitude places the authorities who will select a new president in a fortunate position. He is not forcing their hand, but he provides for them a standard against which to measure other applicants. They could look a long way without finding anyone of greater proven ability to run their university in these times of stress and trouble in higher education.

Another Step to Go

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT has taken a step, even if a short one, toward recognizing the principle of compensation for the innocent victims of crime. Its new legislation is restricted to persons injured while actively assisting police, but Attorney-General Peterson says his department is still considering extension of aid on a broader basis to cover payments to persons injured by criminals.

Perhaps the provincial government is waiting hopefully to see whether Ottawa will pick up the tab. Former provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault has been waging an active campaign in Parliament to have the federal government institute such a compensation plan. In the meantime, Saskatchewan, New Zealand, California, Britain and New York State, among other places, have already implemented programs on the assumption that society has an obligation to the innocent casualty of crime.

In Saskatchewan applicants present their case to a board comprising a housewife, a farmer and a lawyer, who make awards on the basis of individual considerations.

Another worthwhile aspect of the Saskatchewan legislation is that it allows the Crimes Compensation Board to bring its own suit for damages against an assailant. This serves to cut down on expenditure of public funds while putting the onus on the offender to make restitution. If necessary, he should work for wages while under sentence in order to raise the money.

In the past society has tended to ignore the victim of crime, although providing the criminal with all the necessities of life in prison while he serves out his time. The province of Saskatchewan, for one, has moved to redress the balance.

"... never mind about the world being blown up ... what about our Canadian cities ... ?"

A Sour Audience of Housewives

IN the present mood of the Canadian consumer, spokesmen for agriculture may be ill-advised to over-state their case. It is one thing to suggest the farmer is getting less than his fair share of the food dollar. But the further argument developed by the task force on agricultural policies, that the Canadian housewife has never had it so good, has the fatal defect of being unsaleable in present circumstances. Any chance it might possess would be ruined by the finding of another paper on dairying which says that Canadian consumers have been subsidizing that industry by more than $100 millions annually for over a decade.

Western

There is a rather similar theme in a paper submitted for the guidance of Canadian Agricultural Congress by Mr. Clarence Barber (especially in the condensed form made available as a press release.)

This very interesting study examines technological changes in Canadian agriculture. To quote a major finding: "Never in recorded history has an industry had to make such a large adjustment to technological change in so short a time — and with so little government help — as has Canadian agriculture." This revolution is largely responsible for the shift to larger units and the huge reduction of the farm population over the past quarter century.

Whose Profit?

According to Mr. Barber's estimate, these changes have produced economic benefits worth about $1 billion annually. But who has profited? Why the fortunate consumer at home and abroad.

"Because of improvements in farm machinery these consumers can now buy their food at lower prices than otherwise would have been possible. Very little, if indeed any, of the benefit has gone to the farmer as worker. However, the farmer has obtained some of the benefits from these improvements as an owner of farm land."

Scattered through the paper, however, are references to the real gains which have resulted. As Mr. Barber notes there have been capital gains. They must have been substantial since between 1960 and 1967 the value of farm land rose 50.5 per cent in Manitoba, 61.4 per cent in Alberta and 100.1 per cent in Saskatchewan. Moreover, the process continues.

Again Mr. Barber recognizes that mechanization has taken much of the drudgery out of farming. It may be added that electrification, another part of the technological revolution, has brought city amenities to the countryside. So the picture is not quite so bleak as the release from the royal commission on farm machinery might suggest.

Railway Example

But the argument is carried further through a rather strange analogy. Mr. Barber calls attention to the Freeman recommendations in respect to CNR run-throughs. The case for compensation to affected employees was based upon an obligation of the company with "its roots in the principle that, when a technological change is introduced, the cost of reasonable proposals to protect employees from its adverse consequences is a proper charge against its benefits and savings." If it is right and proper that railway workers should have this sort of protection, then according to the paper, it should also be right to accord similar protection to those employed in agriculture.

This would admittedly be difficult but "should not the issue be squarely faced?"

It would, indeed, be difficult, because the two situations seem quite unlike. In the CNR case, it was the company that made the decisions. In the case of agriculture, whether the decisions were sound or unsound, they were made by the farmers themselves, presumably because they were thought to be good business. On the railway, compensation was to be paid to workers still in the business or about to be severed from employment. But those shaken out of agriculture by the mechanical revolution of the past quarter-century have long turned to other occupations. It would be extraordinary to compensate not the victims but the survivors, some of whom have managed very well.

Again, who pays? The consumer is categorized as the chief beneficiary although he has not been cheering about his blessings. But the west being an export area, most of these fortunate consumers are obviously beyond Canadian jurisdiction.

So the analogy is not helpful and Mr. Barber does not go beyond his exhortation that the issue should be squarely faced.

A more apt example might be that of the super-privileged automobile manufacturers. They were encouraged by the government to rationalize their productive facilities for the continental market, partly because Ottawa was anxious to reduce the trade deficit and partly because it wanted to expand employment in Windsor and other centres.

(There was also to be a sop for consumers but we have not seen it yet).

To induce the manufacturers to undertake this extremely profitable operation, a kindly government subsidized them with $150 millions of tariff privileges.

The trouble with these industry-government deals is that they are paid for in great measure by taxpayers who are not the recipients of special government attention.

We appear, indeed, to have reached the point at which many taxpayers turn surly at the mere mention of new programs. It seems unwise in the circumstances to dwell at length, or even statistically, on the good fortune which consumers are alleged to enjoy but which, from most appearances, they do not enjoy very much.

Healey Spells Out NATO Role to Russia

IF NATO comes to grief, it will not be for lack of zeal on the part of the British defence minister, Denis Healey. In recent months, he has been tirelessly campaigning for revitalization of the ailing alliance. He took a leading role at Brussels in the fall, when the members warned the Soviet Union against further military adventures on the pattern of the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia. In interviews and speeches, he has repeatedly tossed off bristling comments on NATO's capacity for destruction and will to resist aggression. The British press has taken to calling him the "iron man."

Traynor

Mr. Healey was reportedly in rare form in his recent encounter with visiting members of the Canadian parliamentary committee on external affairs and defence. They had come to hear British views on NATO and Canada's role in it, and he left no one in doubt as to where he, and the British government, stood. It will suffice here to recall that he counselled against a Canadian withdrawal in the strongest terms. The British government is known to see the greatest danger in leaving America isolated in Europe, and Mr. Healey reportedly told the MPs that a Canadian withdrawal could be disastrous.

Since the committee's departure, Mr. Healey has given yet another of his pro-NATO expositions. Addressing diplomatic correspondents in London, he made explicit a number of the background considerations on which his pro-NATO campaign is based. His forthrightness may have owed something to the presence of several Soviet diplomats; at any rate, he repeatedly directed razor-edged comments at them. As a tablemate of the luckless Soviet officials, I can testify that they were all but squirming in their seats with discomfort.

Mr. Healey pointedly reaffirmed his belief in the inevitability of further liberalizing ferment in Eastern Europe. He customarily compares this to the independence movements to which imperial Britain has had to adjust. In a matter-of-fact manner, he tarred the Soviets with the brush of British imperialism — Communism's bogey and a favorite target of British socialists like Mr. Healey. It is the supreme insult, and Mr. Healey has not left it at that. He has clearly spelled out the ramifications for East-West relations.

Russian 'Colonial Police'

To enforce conformity in Eastern Europe, the Sovets will need to cast their forces as a sort of colonial police. Mr. Healey stressed the consequent difficulties in negotiating arms reductions between NATO and the Warsaw Pact. The Soviet forces cannot be treated simply as the counterpart of NATO in a European security equation; they have an added dimension which militates against a change in their status as part of a European security agreement.

Given this colonial imperative, there will be a constant possibility of tension along the East-West frontier arising out of Czech-type situations. As Mr. Healey saw it, NATO would need to maintain a very high state of readiness to ride out these periods. The alliance would have to be demonstrably capable of reacting quckly to any Soviet incursion into the West. There was little value in counting on last-minute co-ordination as do some countries, a clear reference to France. Above all, integration would have to be such as to show that there could be no move against a non-nuclear member of the alliance without the risk of nuclear escalation.

Policy by Force

Mr. Healey was blunt on the consequences of a NATO lapse. He quoted various Soviet military leaders to the effect that force could not be ruled out as an instrument of Soviet policy. Czechoslovakia had demonstrated that the marshals were in deadly earnest. The Czechs were, moreover, allies, whereas the West was considered hostile. "We cannot assume the Soviet Union would not use force in circumstances in which the Soviet government considered it in its interest to do so." Mr. Healey said he did not envisage a deliberate Soviet attack on NATO; there was nevertheless a danger of a Czech-type situation spilling over into the West if NATO let down its guard.

A China Lever

The Economist (London)

With an armed confrontation between Russia and China a possibility that its politicians at least have to consider, it may be that China will have to re-examine its ideas. After all, the only potential counterweight it could hope to bring into play against Russia is the third superpower. Mr. Nixon will have to take this into consideration when he talks to Russia. He has said that the era of confrontation is being replaced by one of negotiation: but this negotiation need not be confined to Russia.

At the least, an American decision to seek better relations with China might encourage the Russians to negotiate seriously: at the most—that is, if the talks with Russia eventually run into the sand—the United States will have an alternative ready.

Looking Back

From the Times, March 28, 1909.

There is a good deal of talk of sealing just at present. Schooner Thomas F. Bayard, in command of Capt. Blackstock, leaves for the west coast of Vancouver Island Saturday. She will pick up 28 Indian hunters, meet the seal herd passing up the coast, follow them to Bering Sea, and then proceed to the otter grounds to hunt.

Something for Lent

Having read Mr. John Mika's articles in The Victoria Daily Times for a considerable period, and realizing that he has a very inventive imagination, I would appreciate if he would consider a challenge I would like to put to him. For a Lenten Penance would he write an article on Premier Bennett and the Social Credit government's achievements.

If he were to do this, I am sure he would enjoy his Easter holidays with a clear conscience.—A. S. Averill, 1159 Beach Dr.

'No Worry'

Last year, at the UNESCO headquarters in Paris, more than 200 experts from 50 countries met in conference. Within 20 years, they decided, life on earth will be showing the first signs of succumbing to pollution; the atmosphere will become unbreathable for men and animals; life will cease in rivers and lakes; plants will wither from poisoning. Yet this fellow Gaglardi, amid applause from a group of people who should know better, says there is no worry from pollution.

Lake Erie is a festering sore draining through Niagara Falls. Anyone falling in is advised to get a tetanus shot. The Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers, among others, are open sewers. One cannot go to a beach in this area of "beautiful" Victoria without being confronted by "polluted" signs. Yet Gaglardi says there is no problem. — An Easterner.

Gulf Islands' Pollution

The citizens of our beautiful Gulf Islands seem to be losing the battle against sea pollution. Subdividers have gained permission to construct three sewage outfalls during the last few months and more applications are sure to come.

Virtually all Salt Spring Islanders are angry and bitter over the recent approval by the Pollution Control Board to allow a company to discharge sewage into Trincomali Channel. Why are the decisions of the people ignored? We have been granted another hearing on April 2, but our government will seldom turn down a subdivider.

There are two main reasons why they plan to pour sewage into the sea. First, money. This was admitted at the first hearing. The other reason is the sad lack of wisdom and courage on the part of our government and the so-called Pollution Control Board. Here is a grand opportunity to do something wise and noble for present and future generations. Instead, we get a cheap, dirty and crude method to dispose of waste.

Man, are we sick!—L. A. Yellowlees, Ganges.

Where Do We Stand With U.S.? That's Key to Canadian Foreign Policy

By CLAUDE RYAN
Editor, Le Devoir

Writer-scholar Douglas V. LePan has underlined the paradox of Canadian-American relations in a remarkable essay entitled "The Outlook for the Relationship: a Canadian View".

History, said LePan, has established some unique ties between the two nations. Ties unique in the manner in which they bridge a long common border, unique in the infinite variety of relations they create at every level of life, in the intimate overlapping of the economies of both countries and in the innumerable interests and aspirations shared by their peoples.

★

But rather than stop at this rather stale preamble LePan went on to raise some serious questions about the future. Noting the growth of nationalism around the world, he envisaged the dawn of numerous tensions between the United States and Canada. And he predicted that instead of diminishing, the problems of coexistence between the two countries will probably increase, both in number and acuteness.

On the surface LePan's prediction is difficult to understand. Every day thousands of Canadians buy American publications, listen to American radio and television and enjoy the convenience of appliances manufactured in the United States. Indeed, many make their living from economic activity that has its origin in the neighbor country.

Are they discontented, these Canadians who live in day-to-day submission to the American influence? Do they have the slightest inclination to revolt against it? The answer is no. They realize that they drink at the mightiest fountain of culture and prosperity that history has ever known. Instead of complaining, they're proud of it — they're delighted,

However, while not perceptible to the naked eye, the consequences of this close overlapping of the economic, cultural and social life of both nations are beginning to make themselves felt in the political domain.

No nation can seek protection indefinitely behind the shield of an all-powerful neighbor. No nation can afford to pile up deficits indefinitely, while borrowing on the accumulated wealth of its neighbor. There comes a time when the logic of such a method entails the most dire consequences, namely loss of freedom and dignity.

President' Nixon's recent announcement of the installation of anti-nuclear missile sites a few miles from the Canadian border was a premonition of those consequences. We realize quite suddenly that we were not the equal partner of the United States we thought we were. The American president's decision was taken without preliminary consultation with the Canadian government. Our government was only informed of the decision a few hours before it was made public: we were not even consulted on the basis of a decision that could seriously affect our future.

What we have just witnessed in the military sector goes on every day under less spectacular circumstances in our economy and technology. The American decision-makers daily make decisions which sooner or later will affect the lives of people in this country. In the majority of cases repercussions from these decisions are still indirect and relatively far-off. But the number of short-range repercussions is increasing proportionate to the penetration of American capital into our industry and cultural life.

In the face of this rising tide of American influence in Canada we could hardly expect Mr. Trudeau to depart from the tradition of good nature on the part of governments who have run Canada during the last 30 years.

Canadians have sought and accepted the advantages of American peace and prosperity without protest. For years they have succumbed without a qualm to their desire to share the fruits of their neighbors' technology and economic strength.

Now that the logical end of such an attitude is in sight the political alternatives that proceed from it must be placed before the nation. The main choice is clear: either Canadians will decide to remain (or is it "become"?) a nation separate from the Americans, and undertake the heavy sacrifices without which their objective will only be an empty dream; or they will prefer to continue living in a state of passive dependency vis-a-vis the United States, in which case they should expect to be submitted to the ever-increasing effects of decisions taken in Washington unknown to them.

For several months the Trudeau government has conducted a study aimed at a revision of Canada's foreign policy. It has been said the study will recommend gradual modification of this country's relations with certain Latin American and European countries and even China. Ironically, very little has been said about the future of relations between Canada and the United States.

★

Yet therein lies the key to any Canadian foreign policy worthy of the name. Any Canadian government that should undertake to open relations with China and expand its ties with countries in Latin America without first carefully redefining its relations with the United States would be making the same mistake as student leaders who want to settle the world's problems before they have managed to put their own house in order.

Such a government would perhaps be listened to, even praised by powers who wanted to annoy the American government. But what powers would take the move seriously?

It would be unrealistic to completely reject the unique kinds of ties with the United States that history and geography have imposed on us. LePan rightly prefers an attitude of acceptance and lucidity rather than one of infantile rejection.

It would be equally unrealistic to imagine that we can become a vigorous nation while continuing to lean on the United States in an attitude of servility.

The discovery of a new international role for Canada has been eclipsed by the urgent need for a redefinition of our relations with the United States. If Mr. Trudeau managed to communicate that conviction to Mr. Nixon he would then have the means of undertaking with the nation a search for a new version of our national vocation, with which until now he appears to have been more preoccupied in words than in actions.

Surprise! Parliament Showing Some Hustle

By JOHN DAFOE

OTTAWA—Look what the House of Commons has been up to recently. Since members returned Jan. 10 from their Christmas holiday they have:

- Passed 18 government bills and have 15 more well into the legislative mill;
- Had two debates on matters of urgent public importance—one on the problem of tough and damp grain on the Prairies and the other on the U.S. decision to station anti-ballistic missiles near the Canadian border;
- Held major debates on topics chosen by the opposition parties, including the state of the economy, Indian affairs, pensions for the aged, blind and disabled, and Social Credit monetary theory;
- Launched, in their committees, a major study of defence policy, a thorough review of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and detailed probes into such issues as the escalating cost of the refit of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

Staggering Record

Compared with the experience of recent years, or of recent months, it is a slightly staggering record of accomplishment. In the three months the House sat before Christmas, it managed to approve only 11 bills. In earlier years it moved even more slowly.

Things are going so well that some people on the government side are convinced that Parliament will actually complete its work on the government's legislative program by the target date of June 27.

In other years, that possibility would have been almost laughably remote.

New Efficiency

To meet the target, members would have to wind up work on the 15 bills before them and 23 more that are promised in about 43 sitting days. That is a bit much to expect. But whatever the result on June 27, there is no doubt that Parliament is operating with an efficiency unknown for years.

Members give two reasons for the new pace. The first is the new set of rules which Parliament adopted just before Christmas. The second is the absence from the House of Commons of Gordon Churchill.

Mr. Churchill was the Conservative member of Parliament for Winnipeg South Centre from 1951 to 1967 and the party's House leader during some of its stormy periods in opposition.

Members of other parties recall him as a tough man to do business with—an inflexible negotiator in the sort of interparty negotiations needed to organize the business of the House of Commons. Mr. Churchill quit the party a year ago after Robert Stanfield took over as leader.

Mr. Churchill was followed as Conservative House leader by Michael Starr, an amiable and well-liked member. But negotiators for the other parties found him almost as hard to deal with as Mr. Churchill.

CHURCHILL

Mr. Starr lost his seat in the June election and was replaced in the new Parliament by Gerald Baldwin, a respected Tory from Peace River, who is an enthusiastic advocate of parliamentary reform.

The change in personalities was not the whole story, as the relatively slow pace of work in Parliament from September to December proved.

But the fact that the party House leaders could negotiate on how to order business and could make their agreements stick with their caucuses has done much to help the new rules work.

Formalities Gone

The new rules provide for a substantial streamlining of the work of the House. They eliminate some formal procedures that did little more than waste time.

They provide for the government's spending estimates to be discussed in standing committees of the House, instead of in the House and for the committees to take over most of the detailed, clause-by-clause consideration of business.

They break the parliamentary year into three semesters ending Dec. 10, March 26 and June 30 and insure that the business of voting money to the government is wound up by the end of the third semester.

They provide a new rule to govern debates on matters of urgent public importance which makes it possible for the debates to be held at times when regular business will not be delayed.

Better for All

They provide for 25 days throughout the year when the opposition parties can hold a one-day or two-day debate on a matter they feel is important. Five of those occasions can be used for motions of non-confidence in the government.

The result of the new rules is a better break for everyone. The government is assured of more orderly consideration of its legislative business and its spending estimates.

Opposition members get a better opportunity to mount regular, structured attacks on the government on issues of basic policy.

If there is a black spot in the whole picture it is in the committees. Some members fear that the new pace and dignity in the House of Commons is being achieved at the cost of the collapse of its committees under a burden of overwork.

New Responsibility

The new system gives the committees heavy new responsibilities. They have to give detailed study to the government estimates which are referred to them; they have to give clause-by-clause consideration to legislation and they have to conduct investigations into matters referred to them by the House of Commons.

For a conscientious MP, who is often a member of three different committees, it is like trying to keep three balls in the air at the same time.

Watching over the committees at work is a new committee on procedure and organization, headed by Gordon Blair, the Ottawa MP who chaired the committee which drafted the new rules.

It has not begun work on a new time allocation rule, the one issue which violently divides the government and the Opposition.

For the moment, members are disposed to forget the fights over rules and procedures and to concentrate on fighting about things that really matter.

'Beer and Britannia'

By BRIAN HARRISON
The Listener

In the 1860s Englishmen drank three times as much spirits and twice as much beer per head as they do now, and there were three times as many pubs per head of population.

As British Columbia launches yet another royal commission investigation into its drinking habits, there is a tendency to think that we may be charting new paths toward easier and heavier consumption of alcohol. Historically this is not quite the case, as this article from a British Broadcasting Corporation publication indicates.

Warmth, Color and Sociability

These figures show how strikingly drinking habits have changed in the last 100 years.

In matters of diet, the most striking apparent irrationality of the Victorian poor was the fact that, when they were forced by poverty to choose between food and alcoholic drink, they tended to choose the drink.

There were a few teetotal families in most working-class communities, but they were always outnumbered by the drinkers.

The conflict between these two styles of life—between the "rough" and the "respectable" working man—is one of the major themes of 19th-century social history. But if you look more closely at social conditions in England at the time you can see that the Victorians often had good reasons for the heavy drinking which now, at first sight, seems so irrational—reasons wider and deeper than the fairly obvious one of escape from bad conditions.

Milk Dangerous

In the 1860s, alcoholic drinks were widely used as straightforward thirst-quenchers. Before modern systems of water-supply were developed, drinking water was often scarce and polluted.

Milk was equally dangerous, and the soft-drink trade had hardly begun.

There were hot drinks, of course: tea and coffee had become much cheaper in recent years. But they were troublesome to make, and tea and coffee shops were few and far between, especially in country areas.

And anyhow working people preferred alcoholic drinks to relatively expensive non-intoxicating drinks like these. In the 1840s Londoners could get a pint of strong beer for only twopence-halfpenny, but a cup of tea cost them twopence and a cup of cocoa fourpence.

Foaming Tankard

Of course alcoholic drinks were popular for other reasons. Beer was an evocative drink which aroused plenty of patriotic sentiments—John Bull with his foaming tankard, agricultural prosperity, contempt for the wine-drinking, frog-eating French and so on.

In the 1860s, drink taxes contributed over a third of all public revenue, whereas now—although there's been an absolute increase in their amount—they contribute only one-fifteenth. A similar alignment—between wine and patriotism—exists in France to this day.

Pubs were the natural focus for late-Victorian imperialism: a lot of them helped to recruit the armed services, and one Thames-side publican in London gained a great deal of favor with the government during the Crimean War by going about in a small steamer with music playing and streamers flying, recruiting sailors for the Fleet.

Sydney Smith asked rhetorically in 1823: "What two ideas are more inseparable than Beer and Britannia?"

Alcoholic drinks were thought to strengthen you for any kind of hard work. Fat red-faced men were considered models of good health.

A rowdy Lancaster audience trundled a fat brewer in front of Joseph Livesey, who was lecturing there on teetotalism in 1834, and shouted: "Show us a specimen like this with your water-drinking!"

'Solemn Terror'

Joseph Barker, the Methodist minister, wrote of his pledge-signing in the 1830s: "I cannot describe the solemn terror with which I ventured for the first time to reject my customary allowance of porter, ale, or wine."

Farmers thought they'd never get the harvest in if they didn't first fortify their laborers with "harvest beer." Soldiers and sailors prized their rum-rations as a way of keeping out the cold.

Alcoholic drinks were important as painkillers, too. Criminals about to be flogged, patients being prepared for an operation or for tooth-extraction, pregnant women entering upon labor, babies unable to sleep — alcohol kept them all quiet. Doctors even administered alcoholic drinks as medicines: the zealous Dr. Todd prescribed six pints of brandy in 72 hours for Charles Hindley, MP for Ashton; Hindley did not recover.

No wonder the gout-rest formed part of the furniture of every West End club till the end of the century.

In the 1860s alcoholic drinks were used frequently on any kind of social occasion. In fact, in these years, work and play still weren't aspects of life that were clearly separated.

"Drinkings" often occurred at the work-bench when craftsmen welcomed a newcomer, or behind the counter when shopkeepers entertained a customer.

Many bargains were clinched over a drink — for many goods and services, drink was actually part of the payment.

Roaring Trade

Pubs drove a roaring trade at the fairs, where so much business was transacted in those days.

Cigarettes hadn't yet been introduced: all the more reason, then, for offering an acquaintance a drink.

But the high level of drinking can't be blamed solely on attitudes to drink: it must be attributed also to the publicians' extensive social role.

In 1872 Sir William Harcourt, the prominent Liberal politican, claimed that "as much of the history of England has been brought about in public houses as in the House of Commons."

Until 1872 there was no legislation to prevent public-houses outside London from opening all night every weekday, and there were special drinking places for all classes: the aristocracy had their great roadside inns just as the labourers had their sordid back-street beerhouses.

Meeting Place

So drink-sellers filled two roles which have now largely been taken over by other institutions: they presided over the local recreation centre, and over the local meeting-place.

The working man's home was often cold, uncomfortable and noisy, and he naturally felt the need to get away from it.

In fact, the poorer and the larger his family, the more likely it was that he'd spend his evenings in his specially reserved seat at the pub.

The drink-seller was never the parasitic villain portrayed in the temperance tract: he was a popular and respected provider of recreation to a world which would have been intolerably dull without him.

In a poor climate, and in cities which hadn't many open spaces the tavern was a vital source of fun.

Nonetheless, by the 1860s several influences were already diminishing the social importance of drink.

Non-intoxicating drinks were getting cheaper, more palatable and more accessible.

The old drinking patterns were incompatible with modern industrial processes — with the precision and regularity required from the factory's work force.

From the 1870s onwards, Dr. B. W. Richardson began to turn doctors away from alcoholic prescription. And from the 1840s onwards, the railway pushed the publican out of his central position in the transport system.

The decline of the fair and the growth of retail shops pushed the publican out of his crucial role in economic exchange.

Homes Improved

Restaurants and coffee-houses sprang up as alternative places for getting cooked food, and increased affluence weakened the publican's recreational role by improving the comfort of the working man's home.

Increased state intervention, by covering the country with public buildings, created so many types of public house that the original public-house acquired a specialized meaning and a hyphen.

Lord Avebury, the champion of public libraries, said in 1903 that there were now public houses all over the country, "not for the sale of beer, but for the free use of books."

Improved recreations siphoned off the masses into football stadiums, theatres and later into cinemas.

Accelerating all these changes, of course, was the ideology of "self-help": the idealization of independence, sobriety and respectability — as embodied in the temperance movement.

By the mid-Victorian period, a sustained campaign had been launched to discredit the publican — a campaign from which he is only now recovering. Public drinking gradually ceased to be respectable.

Per capita consumption figures responded only slowly to all this, but during the First World War they took a plunge, and public-houses have been closing down ever since.

It would be wrong to speak as though all these changes constituted progress.

Today drug-taking revives many of the problems confronted by Victorian temperance reformers.

And it is questionable whether the mass entertainment which has superseded Victorian pub recreations really possesses their warmth, color and sociability.

Smelter Closer

A copper smelter for the province definitely is closer—but it isn't in sight yet, Mines Minister Frank Richter told MLAs Thursday.

And he will use the "heavy hand of the law" if copper and iron mining companies don't at least do a little refining of ores in B.C. before exporting them.

"But I would prefer not to use the heavy hand of the law," he quickly added.

The see-saw stances were taken during a quiet 2½-hour scrutiny of the $5.3 million total estimates for his department.

"Certainly I am not holding back the reins on this one little bit but the members should realize the availability of markets for refined copper is not as great as one would think."

He added that more important at this stage than chasing after a marginal smelter possibility is persuading mining companies to refine copper at least to the "blister" stage and iron ore to the "pellet" stage.

"I hope they will do it on their own," Richter said.

"But I want you to know it is in my mind to amend the legislation if necessary."

GAS PRICES

Asked by Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) when the Morrow Royal Commission report on lowering gasoline prices would be implemented, Richter replied firmly:

"At the present time, the government is not contemplating what the honorable member suggests. However, the government is continuously studying the proposition and undoubtedly in due course this will be straightened out as everything else will be straightened out as we move along."

In short order, the legislature moved through Richter's mines and petroleum resources $5.3 million estimates and the $925,000 estimates of the commercial transport department for which Richter is also responsible.

BEDSIDE CONCERT brightened the day Thursday for Joyce Pederson, totally paralyzed since an auto accident Oct. 30. The wife of Leading Seaman Maynard Pederson, next to bed, she is entertained during a two-hour concert at St. Joseph's Hospital by Leading Seaman Terry O'Conner (right) and Able Seaman Don Cox of the Naden Band. Mrs. Pederson is the mother of five children between the ages of one and nine.

Kaiser Coal to Hike Work Force Sharply

Mines Minister Frank Richter said Thursday the Kaiser coal development in the East Kootenay area will employ about 50 per cent more workers than originally anticipated.

Richter made the comment during debate on mines department estimates in the legislture.

Leo Nimsick (NDP — Kootenay) said there were more men employed in the mining industry in B.C. in 1901 than in 1967.

Coal production in 1917 was 500 tons a day but today production per man is about 33,000 tons daily, for each man.

With the increase in automation and the use of 200 ton trucks, Nimsick said, B.C. will likely find there are more men employed in construction phases of the Kaiser coal development than in its normal production once established.

Richter said Kaiser officials recently informed him they now expect to hire 150 more coal miners than the original 300 men they had planned, making a total operating work force of 450 men.

SEEKS MORE SALES

Richter also expressed confidence that Kaiser will try to increase sales above the 45,000,000 tons over 15 years already spoken for.

Nimsick appealed for a "re-estimation" of the B.C. mining industry, saying the provincial government's approach is still based on experience of the 1880s.

"I've lived in mining camps all my life but I'm not an expert," Nimsick said.

The industry had recently done a survey "written for the industry" but the public should have one of their own in their own interest.

A complete survey "whether is's a royal commission or not," is needed to give the government some guidelines in handling the public resource of mineral and mineral development, Nimsick said.

School Contracts Awarded

Contracts for building additions to Oak Bay and Gordon Head junior high schools were tentatively awarded by the Greater Victoria school board Thursday.

Herb Bate Ltd. was awarded a $153,436 contract to enlarge Oak Bay Junior High and Farmer Construction was awarded a $223,880 contract for the Gordon Head Junior High expansion.

The only other bid on the Oak Bay job was $155,636 submitted by E. J. Hunter Ltd. Three other bids ranging as high as $233,377 were submitted for the Gordon Head project.

The board also approved advertising nationally for a director of instruction to succeed A. J. Longmore who will take over as district school superintendent in three months.

PHILLIPS
. . . seat in danger?

House Laughs Up Socred's Plight

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

BARRETT
. . . head of hecklers

Socred backbencher Don Phillips was warned wittily Thursday that he is more of a fool than an angel no matter what Premier Bennett says.

Phillips' erstwhile friend was Dave Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam).

Between them, they had the house in stitches for a few minutes during debate over Public Works Minister W. N. Chant's salary.

Phillips started it off by loudly complaining to the house that he's tired of getting a run-around by the government when he pleads for a courthouse for his South Peace riding.

"I'm glad to see the minister of finance is here," roared Phillips at Premier Bennett. "Because when I go to the minister of public works, he tells me to go to the minister of finance."

●

"And where does the minister of finance tell you to go?" demanded Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard).

While the chamber reverberated with laughter from all MLAs, the premier jumped up and said: "I hope he'll go to heaven."

But Phillips pressed on with his attack.

"I'm tired of knocking on the door of Fort Knox," he said, angrily recounting the surpluses and gifts of bridges to various constituencies Premier Bennett announces from time to time without including a courthouse for South Peace River.

"So I'd like to see the minister of public works go to the minister of finance. Maybe we'll go together, arm in arm, and knock on Fort Knox once more."

Up jumped Barrett with a mournful expression to tell the house "it is with deep regret that we have witnessed the political demise of the member from South Peace River."

●

He recalled how four sessions ago Phillips' predecessor Stan Carnell had made similar complaints "and even said that if five ministers got off their seats the problem in his riding would disapper like fog in the morning sun.

"And you all know what happened.

"Stan Carnell, disappeared like fog in the morning sun.

"Because (Phillips) was up there signing up the members."

MLAs burst out laughing, including Phillips, at the sly allusion to Phillips entry into politics by wresting the Socred nomination from Carnell. It was a bitter backroom contest prior to the 1966 election which saw Bennett accused of manipulating Socred candidates.

"So here you are now criticizing the government and you know what I hear, my friend? Stan is back up there now signing members as fast as he can.

●

"So what is being decided here today is who is going to get the South Peace River seat?" continued Barrett with mock worry for Phillips.

Premier Bennett, laughing with the rest, rose to tell Barrett "at least you admit that Social Credit will win that seat again."

"See," cried Barrett to Phillips. "What did I tell you? He's going to decide who gets the nomination.

"But I'll tell you something else, my friend. The people of South Peace River are very tired of waiting for that (courthouse) and you better get it or they won't vote Social Credit again."

Welfare Cost Hurting Towns

Some smaller municipalities face difficulties raising an increasing local share of welfare costs, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said as he promised them provincial assistance Thursday.

He made the statement in the legislature after James Lorimer (NDP — Burnaby-Willingdon) said that despite the $3 increase from $25 to $28 in per capita grants this year, some municipalities face greater difficulties.

Campbell said the local share increased from 10 to 20 per cent a year ago. Some municipalities — although not the larger ones — were worse off.

Campbell noted that Vancouver's local share rose from $1.5 million to $3.1 million, but per capita grants have increased from $4.5 million to $7.6 million.

Municipalities with populations 7,500 or fewer will receive the same government adjustment as last year, said Campbell. He did not say what the adjustment would be.

House Speeds Wrap-Up

Shooting for prorogation by Easter, British Columbia's MLAs Thursday zipped through approval of estimates for three departments and started on those of a fourth.

The 6½ hours of speedy, but sedate, debate contrasted with a marathon session of almost 12 hours Wednesday, in which weary and angry members talked until 3:50 a.m.

Approvied in quick time Thursday were estimates of $5,239,268 for the mines and petroleum resources department, $25,946,477 for public works and $925,124 for the commercial transport department.

Then members started on the estimates of $55,9?3,430 for municipal affairs. That debate is expected to continue today after the house considers public bills and orders.

Swiss Develop Birth Control Pill for Pigeons

LONDON (AP) — The Swiss have come up with a contraceptive for pigeons and embattled Britons contemplated similar steps to decimate the seagulls circling over the white cliffs of Dover.

The city fathers of Geneva introduced a grain impregnated with a brown substance aimed at preventing ovulation in female pigeons who have been reproducing at an alarming rate.

The Swiss plan to scatter the grain around pigeon haunts and attempt to prevent bird lovers from providing any other food.

Geneva's pigeon population has reached 30,000.

Britons who rhapsodized years ago about "bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover," complain that shrieking seagulls now haunt the cliffs and have even begun nesting in the town.

"We have tried destroying their nests and breaking their eggs, but it doesn't do any good," said a Dover official. "Besides we don't want to exterminate the birds, we just want to reduce the population."

The official said British researchers had not yet tried to find a pill for seagulls, partly because they were busy testing pills for pigeons.

"The ideal," he said, "might be a pill to suit both."

PUBLIC PERFORMANCES OF BEATLES ENDED

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles will never again perform in public, drummer Ringo Starr said Thursday.

"I suppose it's a bit nasty on the fans," he said in an interview. "I'm sorry for them but no more public shows—never."

The Beatles—John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo—will continue to make records and films.

Theywere to have given their first concert in two years in January. There had been many delays before that date was set. Then it was postponed indefinitely.

Peter Brown, an executive of Apple, the Beatles' company, said:

"We tried to arrange one last concert but . . . there were too many obstacles. We will never do it now. We just cannot get the right venue."

Brown said an open-air arena such as giant Wembley Stadium would not yield the right kind of Beatles' sound, while a big public hall, such as the Albert Hall, is too small for the thousands who would want to attend.

STILL TOGETHER

As for recurring rumors that the Beatles will break up, spokesmen at Apple insist the rumors are rubbish.

"Make no mistake, we shall always stick together," Starr said.

"Of course, we have our own separate interests to develop. We shall branch out and pursue our own individual careers but we shall always be the Beatles.

"Despite what the critics say, we are as popular as ever we were.

"I don't say the Beatles will last forever but we'll go on for a very long time—unless we get shot, or something."

Reduction Of Farm Land Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Reduction of agricultural land with consumers paying the cost through higher food prices was recommended at the Canadian agriculture congress Thursday by the University of Saskatchewan.

In a statement commenting on the final report of the congress after three days of concentrated workshop study, the university's department of agricultural economics calls for a "direct approach" to the problem of farm income.

"What may be needed is to shrink the whole agricultural plant down to the point where agricultural resources yield comparable returns.

"Consumers should be willing to pay for the compensation to redress farmers for their cheap food, provided the subsidy or compensation is accompanied by the needed adjustment."

The statement says that even after all other avenues of new markets and alternate crops have been explored "there will still not be enough revenue to yield comparable returns to the resources presently in Canadian agriculture."

COMMITTEE SUGGESTED

The 400 delegates at the congress also heard a proposal for a standing committee to continue the study of agricultural problems begun by the five-man federal agriculture "task force" and to press for implementation of new policies.

The Christian Farmers Federation in a prepared statement said economic growth does not guarantee improvement in the quality of life.

"The task force has indicated that they are working in a frame of reference, self-imposed or otherwise, that dictates total acceptance, at the fastest possible pace, of all scientific and technological means towards improved economic performance.

"We suggest that we must reassess that frame of reference."

The task force proposal for ending the feed freight assistance to the Atlantic region came under attack by the agriculture departments of all four Atlantic provinces and the federations of agriculture of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

In a joint statement they said the study group did not provide data to back up their view.

HELP NEEDED

Freight rate assistance was necessary to equalize transportation costs for feed if the livestock and poultry industries of the region were to survive.

"We cannot accept a proposal that would destroy the equalization principle and leave us exposed to competition of end products from areas west of the Atlantic area which have access to U.S. grain at costs much lower than ours."

Petroleum Industry Future Cause of Concern in Alberta

By JIM NEAVES

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is worried about the future of the oil industry, bulwark of the province's economy for the last 20 years.

Premier Harry Strom is concerned over the impact on future markets of recent major oil discoveries in Alaska and possible construction of refineries in Eastern Canada to process oil imported from overseas.

Strom's Social Credit government is pressing Ottawa for a thorough review of the national oil policy, adopted in 1961, which designates the area west of the Ottawa Valley as a market for Western Canadian oil. The province wants to see a new policy, developed in cooperatioa with the U.S.

After his talks with President Nixon in Washington early this week, Prime Minister Trudeau told the House of Commons the two leaders agreed on "our community of interest in the expansion of energy movements across the border."

Trudeau said Canadian government officials, who will begin talks with their American opposite numbers on oil policies April 2, will impress upon them "the importance of buying as much as possible of good, secure Canadian oil."

Since 1949, Alberta oil production has been only about 50 per cent of capacity and the province fears that failure to increase production may result in less incentive for exploration.

Alberta is also worried about offshore oil development on Canada's east coast and the possible movement of oil from the Canadian Arctic to eatern ports. Assurances are requested that these new sources will not infringe on markets reserved for western oil.

In a recent brief to Trudeau, Strom urged him to recognize the "basic inconsistency" of allowing Canada to remain dependent on foreign sources for 50 per cent of its oil supply and, at the same time, expecting the U.S., which severely restricts oil imports, to accommodate increased Canadian exports.

The brief noted that Canada still imports more oil than it exports, despite its excess productive capacity. In 1967, 634,000 barrels a day were imported against exports of 416,000 barrels a day.

The industry is of vital economic importance to Alberta. In 20 years, some $13 billion has been invested in oil exploration and production. During the period from 1947 to 1966, the province received more than $2.5 billion in petroleum and natural gas leases, drilling reservations and royalties.

In the 1969-70 fiscal year, almost one-third of the province's estimated $945.19 million revenue will come from Alberta oil and natural gas, representing about 70 per cent of the Canadian total. But virtually all the spare productive capacity is located in the province.

Miracle Man Gets Second Headache

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Robert Burns Cameron will try to make it two in a row.

The tough, 49-year-old industrialist from Nova Scotia's Pictou County, acclaimed saviour of Sydney's steel industry, now is concentrating on another Cape Breton industrial headache—the long-delayed heavy-water plant at nearby Glace Bay.

Mr. Cameron emerged from the relative anonymity of his construction and steel-fabricating enterprises in Pictou County when Premier G. I. Smith hired him in late 1967 to head Sydney Steel Corp.—Sysco—set up by the provinces to operate the 3,000-man steel mill here.

The plant, then 66 years old, had been condemned as uneconomic by its previous owners, Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. Its closure, scheduled by Dosco for early 1968, would have crippled the Cape Breton economy.

SHOWS A PROFIT

Mr. Cameron led a new management team into the huge mill on New Year's Day, 1968, and by mid-year production records were falling and the Sysco chairman and president was hailed as a miracle-worker. By October the situation was so promising that Mr. Cameron was able to announce that the mill would show a 1968 profit of at least $2,500,000 against claimed losses by Dosco of up to $1,000,000 a month in 1967.

Sysco was selling steel in markets never tapped by Dosco, and by mid-December, 1968, the all-time production record of 841,000 tons had been broken.

Although there have been recent labor troubles at the mill, it appears likely that Sydney will top the 1,000,000-ton mark for the first time this year.

With the mill humming smoothly, Sysco announced Tuesday that Mr. Cameron had given up day-by-day responsibility, but would remain as chairman and chief executive officer.

He will concentrate on another major salvage job—the $100,000,000 heavy-water plant which has been plagued by a variety of problems and now is more than two years behind schedule.

First visualized as a $30,000,000 producer of coolants for use in nuclear reactors, the Deuterium Canada Ltd. plant encountered a long series of technological and labor troubles. It was finally taken over by Industrial Estates Ltd., the province's industry-promotion agency, and Mr. Cameron was appointed president.

There is still no official estimate of when the heavy-water plant will get into production, but informed sources say Mr. Cameron has uncovered and remedied several major problems and is working on others.

His successor as Sysco president is 55-year-old Derek W. R. Haysom, former executive vice-president and architect of many of the modernization programs planned for the Sydney mill.

Mr. Haysom has served in key steel management roles in South Africa, Rhodesia and Europe.

OCEAN CEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT
J. R. WINTEMUTE, P.Eng.
Mr. R. E. Haskins, Vice-President Engineering and Production, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. J. R. Wintemute as Works Manager of the Bamberton cement plant.
Mr. Wintemute, who joined the Company in 1951, was previously Assistant Manager, Production and has served as Technical Assistant to the Manager of Research and Quality Control at the Bamberton Plant.

Board Stays Verdict On $3M Gas Export

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board has reserved judgment on an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to increase carrying capacity, partly to fulfil an export sale that would net an estimated $2,297,200 next year.

At the same time, a compromise decision gave the Ontario government a chance to comment on safety needs in pipeline alterations despite suggestions the province may be butting into federal jurisdiction.

Vernon L. Horte of Toronto, Trans-Canada president, told the board the expanded facilities would be needed to meet requirements beyond a temporary contract to supply Tennessee Gas Pipeline Co. at Niagara for a year starting Nov. 1 with 25,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Grain Drain Slow

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be a slow grain shipping pace out of Vancouver in the next couple of weeks, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons Thursday.

Pepin was peppered with opposition questions concerning movement of grain to ports from the Prairies and the flow of shipping from those ports.

He sparked a flurry of questions himself when, replying to Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), he blamed the opposition for slow grain movements from Vancouver.

"I'm afraid the Japanese and Chinese listened to the opposition more than to me," Pepin said in explaining why shipping from Vancouver would be slow for awhile.

Some 20 ships were tied up off Vancouver earlier this year when they were unable to get grain.

Pepin said former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker (Prince Albert) had said facilitating the grain flow to ships at Vancouver would take until the end of May or into June.

But the situation at Vancouver had been cleared up "more rapidly than the opposition expected."

The port was ready to load ships now and there was "no lack of sales" by Canada.

NO SHIPS FOR MONTH

Horner said his information was that there would be no ships ready to load in Vancouver until April 25, a month away. He started to say that the government could do something to speed this up but was ruled out of order by the Speaker.

Q. Somebody told me refunds are processed in alphabetical order. My last name is Young. Could this be why my refund was late last year?

A. No, no, a thousand times no! This is one of many rumors that mysteriously make the rounds each spring. Returns are processed basically on a first in, first out system. While errors and problem returns are removed temporarily from this flow, no priority is given to returns on an alphabetical or geographical basis. In fact, in several instances along the way, refund returns are pushed ahead of the rest.

Q. I am a salesman operating out of my house. I have a room set up as an office. Can I claim any expenses for this "office"?

A. If the room is used solely for the purpose of earning your income you may be entitled to deduct a portion of the cost of maintaining your house as a business expense. Unfortunately, more information would be required before you could be advised on how to calculate the amount of your deduction, but your District Taxation Office will be pleased to help you.

Stuart Keate was elected vice-president of Sun Publishing Co. Ltd. at its annual meeting in Vancouver.

Keate has been publisher of The Sun since 1964.

The following officers were re-elected: Clayton B. Delbridge, Vancouver, chairman; G. Max Bell, Calgary, president; Richard S. Malone, Winnipeg, executive vice-president, and John J. Rooney, Vancouver, secretary-treasurer.

The payment covers deferred dividends for the quarters ended Sept. 30 and Dec. 31 and the quarter ending March 31. The company said improving performance had made cash available.

Pan. Am. Blast

Pan American Petroleum Corp. said Thursday drilling operations at a well on the north slope of Alaska where an explosion took place early this week should resume shortly.

One man was injured in the explosion, which Pan American described as a natural gas blowout, and was flown to hospital.

The blowout was followed by a brief explosion which was quickly brought under control. Repairs will take about a week.

Continental Policy, Common Market Urged

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP) — A North American free-trade area and a joint U.S.-Canada oil and gas policy were advocated Thursday by Glenn E. Nielson, chairman of Husky Oil Ltd.

The European Common Market places other nations at a competitive disadvantage, he told a Rotary Club meeting, and "only one alternative is left to Canada and the U.S. and that is to establish a common market of their own."

The economies of the two countries are responsive to each other, Nielson said, and their productive capacities are complementary, making them suitable partners for an economic unit.

Few areas of Canadian-U.S. co-operation could promise the benefits possible from a joint oil and gas policy, he said.

"Obstacles to . . . an international oil and gas policy are not simple, but they can be overcome," he said: "Retaliatory taxation and import restrictions have had the net effect of preventing a more rapid exchange and development of the resource."

Nielson said oil producers in the U.S. who continue to complain vigorously about the increasing volume of oil and gas imports from Canada fail to recognize that four or five times that volume is coming in regularly from other countries at prices which range from $1.25 to $1.50 a barrel below domestic prices.

"These imports have hurt the U.S. oil operators far more than imports coming from Canada."

'I Like Ike' Slogan Became National Sentiment in U.S.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

BEING SWORN IN as president of the United States by Chief Justice Earl Warren (left) is Dwight Eisenhower who served as president from 1952 to 1960.

WASHINGTON (AP)—From the day he entered West Point to the day he left the White House 50 years later, Dwight David Eisenhower achieved personal popularity seldom matched in the United States. His grin and folksy nickname were his hallmarks.

There was a simple plainsman's eloquence about Eisenhower that touched Americans. He had no flair as an orator, little sophisticated wit, and no flamboyance.

But "I Like Ike" was a national sentiment—so much so that the Democratic and Republican parties both sought to make him president, even while his political persuasion was unknown.

He was the only Republican president in a generation. And his party controlled the House of Representatives for only two of his eight years in office, yet he rolled up majorities matched previously only by Franklin D. Roosevelt in his first two terms.

He was a career soldier who called war "this damnable thing;" who said he hoped to see "people in my profession permanently put out of a job."

AVOIDS POLITICS

It was characteristic of Eisenhower that in his speech to the 1968 Republican national convention—piped to the delegates from his hospital room—he subordinated politics to a plea for "travelling the pathways of peace, with honor and justice."

Peace and honor. The words surfaced again and again in a brilliant career that was a succession of peaks with few valleys: general of the army, allied commander-in-chief for North Africa, commanding general of Allied powers in the European theatre, chief of staff of the U.S. Army, president of Columbia University, two terms as president of the United States.

Always he spoke of the strength of America. "Let us first remind ourselves of the greatness of this nation and its people," he told the Republican convention. "Let's not waste time this year searching out someone to blame, even though some seem more disposed to concede rather than to stand firmly for America."

HAS THIRD ATTACK

Less than 12 hours after he spoke, Eisenhower was stricken with his third heart attack of the year—the sixth one since 1955. He was unable to watch the convention on television, but was told that Richard M. Nixon, his vice-president, had been chosen as the Republican presidential candidate for the Nov. 5 presidential election.

"I am delighted," were the words relayed from the hospital room.

He had endorsed Nixon shortly before the convention started, the first time Eisenhower had used his prestige publicly to attempt to influence the party's choice of a nominee.

Nixon responded in his acceptance speech by declaring: "Let's win this one for Ike!"

Death ended the long and valiant battle Eisenhower had waged against illness dating back to that first heart attack in 1955 late during his first term. He had been in Walter Reed almost one year with a string of four heart attacks, surgery and pneumonia in February, and congestive heart failure in this month.

Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States, was the third of the seven sons of David and Ida Stover Eisenhower. One of his brothers, Paul, died in infancy; the others were successes in their own right: Arthur, a banker; Edgar, a lawyer; Earl, an electrical engineer; Milton, a government official and college president; and Roy, a druggist.

Their grandfather travelled west with the wagon trains in 1878 and settled near Abilene, Kan. Their father failed with his general store and moved his family to Denison, Tex., where Dwight was born Oct. 14, 1890. A year later the family returned to Abilene and the father took a job in a creamery.

WAS 61ST IN CLASS

Young Eisenhower graduated 61st in a class of 164 from West Point in 1915. As a lieutenant at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., he met a Denver girl, Mamie Geneva Doud at a party. They were married July 1, 1916. A son, Dwight Doud, born a year later, died of scarlet fever at three. A second son, John Sheldon Doud, followed his father to West Point.

In the 1930s, then Maj. Eisenhower accompanied Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the Philippines. Early in the Second World War, he came to the attention of Gen. George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff, who summoned Eisenhower to Washington. Ike was sent to London to make recommendations about the organization and development of American forces in Europe. To his surprise, he was named to the European Theatre command with orders to execute his own plan.

Eisenhower first headed the expeditionary force to North Africa in 1942 and early the next year was made commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in the North African campaign.

In 1943, Eisenhower was named Allied commander for the invasion of Europe. D-Day came on June 6, 1944.

DIRECTED ALLIES

He directed the Allied forces to victory over Germany and presided over surrender ceremonies. Soon after, he returned to Washington to become army chief of staff, holding the post until 1948 when he became president of Columbia University.

But President Harry Truman summoned him to Washington to serve temporarily as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Later he took a longer leave of absence to organize and command North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

The affection the country felt for Ike paid off in the 1952 election. He had a plurality of more than 6,500,000 votes over Democrat Adlai Stevenson, carrying 39 of the 48 states. He did even better in his 1956 re-election, topping Stevenson by 9,500,000 votes.

The Korean War was ended by an armistice in Eisenhower's first term after a dramatic visit to South Korea before his inauguration.

It was in the Eisenhower years that both the United States and Russia developed hydrogen bombs, engaging in a grim race for superiority. It was also the time when the Space Age dawned with unmanned satellites. Man travelled under atomic power under the sea for the first time.

In 1954 the Supreme Court declared the segregation of schools to be unconstitutional.

USES TROOPS

Three years later, Eisenhower became the first president since the Reconstruction period after the Civil War to use federal troops to enforce a court order—the integration of schools in Little Rock, Ark.

The United States, under Eisenhower, severed relations with Cuba after Fidel Castro's revolution, but it did not support the Hungarian uprising.

Eisenhower sent Marines to Lebanon at that country's request after a coup in neighboring Iraq. But he criticized Britain and France after their attack on Egypt.

In the twilight of his second term, the United States and Russia appeared to be moving closer than at any time since the Second World War toward the detente that Eisenhower so long had sought.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev had visited the U.S. and asked Eisenhower to visit his country. A summit conference was planned.

Then, May 1, 1960, disaster struck. A U-2 spy plane piloted by Francis Gary Powers was shot down over Soviet Russia.

An angered Khrushchev scuttled the Paris summit before it got started and the uproar that ensued cast a shadow that lingered until the end of Eisenhower's term of office.

Benson Wants Merchants To Help Prepare Budgets

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson wants to inaugurate major changes in the way government budgets are designed, presented and implemented, including use of outside business consultants at the drafting stage.

In addition to outsiders giving detailed advance advice, the minister would like to present tax-policy shifts as proposals which could be scrutinized publicly and amended without provoking a non-confidence crisis for himself or the government.

Benson, who outlined his ideas in an interview Thursday, plans to present a spring mini-budget but said he would not introduce his operational changes that soon.

In any case, he said, the spring budget would be mainly a statement to indicate how the economy is going, with minimal tax changes.

The finance minister, mindful of the political uproar six years ago when predecessor Walter Gordon had three outsiders from the business world help draft a budget, will campaign for his ideas inside and outside government before trying them out.

He has already referred to his budget-making ideas in speeches March 3 in Washington and March 19 in his home riding of Kingston. He intends to speak publicly about them again in May.

"All you require is public opinion—no changes in legislation," he said. "It's a matter of educating the public. . . .

"Nothing affects people more than taxes. You sit here alone with six or seven top department people deciding things that the government has to stand or fall on.

"That's not good practice and it's a little bit worrisome."

Despite parliamentary tradition and Gordon's experience in 1963, Benson sees nothing wrong in calling in outside experts from business and industry to advise the government just how proposed changes in a budget would affect the community.

SWORN SECRECY

It is easy enough for government officials to predict accurately the effect on incomes of changes in tax rates, but more difficult to foresee the effects and reaction when a new taxation principle is introduced.

The consultants could be put on the government payroll and sworn to secrecy, he said.

It remains important that tax-rate changes are not known in advance, but "some aspects of budgetary secrecy are overdone."

Apart from changes in rates of tax, other budget measures could be presented as proposals without carrying the implication that the government is committed to every detail.

Ike's Greatest Hour in War; His Greatest Love in Politics

By BARBARA WARD JACKSON

A man does not lead a great coalition of victorious armies and then go on to be elected twice by overwhelming popular vote to the most exposed public office in the democratic world without some seeds of greatness in him. And in Dwight Eisenhower, who died today in Washington, the greatness is predominantly to be seen in the image of the soldier.

His first achievement was surely to reach military rank at all. The third of six sons of an unsuccessful engineer in the little town of Abilene, Kansas, he had no education above a fairly mediocre average and had tried cowpunching and store-keeping and other casual jobs before he gained a Senatorial nomination to West Point.

At 28, by the time the First World War came to an end, he was a lieutenant-colonel commanding a tank battalion.

Temper Under Control

In 1939, some 20 years later, he was still a lieutenant-colonel. The discipline that kept a sudden explosive temper under control, patience, cheerfulness in disappointment, a remarkable lack of egoism or assertiveness—such virtues are often learnt under strain. One can imagine that the 20 years supplied the test.

In any event, when early in the Second Word War the American Chief of Staff, General Marshall, looked round for outstanding younger officers, he found in Eisenhower the capacity for brilliant staff work and unruffled good humor.

He brought the colonel to Washington, and started the series of promotions which led Eisenhower to supreme command of all the Allied armies on D-Day.

As commander-in-chief, he had critics—he had no real concept of strategy, they said. He was "nothing but a glorified public relations officer." But the overwhelming judgment of his peers is that Eisenhower was a great commander because he accomplished his supreme task—that of inter-allied unity—supremely well.

Never Had A Chance

We shall never know whether he would have been a skilful tactical figher. He never had the chance.

But we have only to compare his performance with the appalling infighting at the highest level during the First World War to realize that his ability to weld into a single fighting team commanders as diverse as Montgomery and Patton demanded outstanding qualities of unostantatious leadership, cheerful patience, international comradeship and an ability to project these qualities not only to immediate colleagues but throughout the broad, restless mass of men under his command.

"Good old Ike" is not a bad reaction from soldiers who have to go to death trusting the top brass will not let them down. One may perhaps say he was a great political general. But the greatness is not in doubt.

Inevitably, however, history must chiefly judge him by his two-term presidency from 1952 to 1960.

Although we cannot anticipate its judgments, it is unlikely that in the small circle of outstanding men that includes Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and the two Roosevelts, Eisenhower will be named among the truly great.

A U.S. president has a crippling load of diverse responsibilities. He has to lead a great party. He has to cooperate and fight with politicians from one end of the Union to the other. He has to establish a working—or non-working—relationship with the sovereignly powerful pick of their number in Congress.

And with what energy is left over he has to choose a team of cabinet associates able and expert enough to help him create a political strategy to meet the needs of the great Republic—and, often enough, to tell him what they are.

Dulles Knew More

Eisenhower saw himself above party and above faction. But this tended to put him not only "above the fight" but away from fights that were necessary if great issues were to be faced in time.

He knew little about economics, still less about the vast changes in economic thinking and organization brought about by the war.

Even where his own experience was relevant, he seems to have persuaded himself that his dogged, dogmatic and indefatigable secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, knew more about international politics than he did.

With customary modesty, he allowed Dulles a free hand. But the period of his own more direct handling of foreign policy — from 1958 to 1960 — suggests that he would have done much better himself.

For it is important to remember that in those areas in which Eisenhower's direct experience was relevant, he cannot be said to have failed.

When cries actually came, he acted with soldierly firmness. At Suez, in 1956, no political consideration of the Jewish vote in New York just before an election prevented him from acting to end what was in the overwhelming American consensus, an ill-judged adventure.

At Little Rock in the same year he did not hesitate to use federal troops to uphold de-segregatiom. He showed the great-hearted soldier's true distaste for war in his constant efforts to improve the international atmosphere, particularly in the post-Dulles interregnum during which he had the courage in the wake of Joseph McCarthy and his anti-Communist witch-hunts to invite Mr. Khrushchev to the U.S.

Didn't Believe In Missile Gap

He had a soldier's skepticism over the claims of soldiers. His attempts to hold down military spending were not simply dedication to an balanced budget.

He did not believe in the missile gap — and he was right. He did believe — as his valedictory speech made clear — in the risk of too great a concentration of military-industrial power.

His failure to defend General Marshall at once and fully against the attacks of Jenner and McCarthy in the early 1950s was unpardonable, but apart from this, a case can even be made for Eisenhower's impersonal approach in which witch-hunting was denounced but the witch-hunters were ignored.

At least, by 1960, McCarthy was finished and the John Birch type of hysteria has not been able to take on where he left off.

His retirement was singularly free of the bitterness and controversy that has marked the retirement of so many other men of power.

Despite an unchallengeable prestige such as no other American politician ever enjoyed while alive, his influence even on his own party was minimal.

Not to be great in everything is not to miss greatness. Eisenhower was a great soldier and a much-loved president. There have, after all, been less worthy and less moving epitaphs that this.

FOURTH GAME TONIGHT

Cougars Shore Defences

Victoria Cougar coach Doug Anderson was concentrating on "plugging" chores today as his team prepared to face Lethbridge Sugar Kings in the fourth game of their Western Canada junior hockey playoff series.

Kings lead the best-of-seven series 2-1 on the strength of 4-2 and 6-5 victories in Leghbridge. Cougars bounced back with a 5-4 overtime decision at Memorial Arena on Wednesday.

Despite Wednesday's victory, Anderson expressed concern over Cougars' defensive play, particularly on the part of forwards. As a result, he promised lineup changes for tonight's fourth gave at the Arena, starting at 8:30.

The B.C. champions conceded only 19 goals in a seven-game march to their league title. The speedy Sugar Kings, coached by Don McLean, already have counted 14 in three games.

Despite the 14 shots that eluded him, Victoria goalkeeper Ron Grahame has emerged as the individual standout in the first three games. Anderson tends to fault his wingers rather than the defence for the lack of protection.

One change Anderson contemplates is to use rookie Scott Munro on a line with Cherenko and centre Gene Carr. Anderson also hinted that he may dress winger Graham Brown as his extra forward. Anderson said he would make a final decision "just before the game."

Fifth game of the series will be played Saturday and a sixth, if needed, is set for Monday.

Tickets, meanwhile, were selling briskly for the games tonight and Saturday. Arena officials emphasized, however, that a "number of good seats" were still available.

BARBARA SPURNS GODIVA

BALTIMORE (AP) — Barbara Jo Rubin, the leading female jockey in the U.S., has rejected offers to ride in the $10,000 Lady Godiva handicap, an all-girl stakes scheduled for Suffolk Downs April 19.

"Barbara Jo has made a place for herself among all jockeys," trainer Bryan Webb, Miss Rubin's contract holder, said Thursday of the 19-year-old who has won 11 thoroughbred races.

"She has nothing to prove by riding against girls," Webb said. "She's out of that class and what would it prove if she won or if she lost?"

Golden Bears Bounce Birds

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of California at Los Angeles tripped University of British Columbia 22-11 Thursday night in the first game of the World Cup rugby series.

UBC's Thunderbirds outplayed the Golden Bears in early stages but then seemed to run out of steam. Second game in the two-game, total-point series will be played here Saturday.

UCLA, which now has a 23-1 record, led 6-3 at the half on two penalty kicks by wingback Jim Sayre, from 43 and 52 yards. Don Crompton booted UBC's three points from 11 yards.

Austrian Girl Takes Slalom

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — Berni Rauter, an 18-year-old Austrian, Wednesday scored her third major victory of the season by winning the Cup of Alpine Nations women's slalom competition. She was timed in 66.94 seconds.

Alain Panz of France captured the longer men's race in 71.83 seconds. France heads the team standings followed by Austria, Italy, West Germany and Switzerland.

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) —Prince Rupert Thursday defeated Alberni Athletics 70-64 in the first game in the best-of-three final of the British Columbia senior "B" men's basketball championship.

Wayne Haldane scored 27 points for Prince Rupert and Larry Letohnen 21 for Alberni.

Second game will be tonight.

Czechs Holding Sentiment, Canadians Have Sympathy

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The suspense has built up for a week, helped along by Czech nationalistic fervor, and now the stops are being pulled out as Czechoslovakia and Russia go at it again in world hockey tonight.

If the Czechs win the crucial game they will only need a tie against Sweden Sunday to take their first title in 20 years.

If the Russians win they will likely retain their title for the seventh straight time. Russia winds up the two-week tournament Sunday against Canada, regarded as easy pickings.

Johanneshov Stadium was sold out for the Czech-Russian game.

The Czechs and Russians meet in the ninth round of the 10-round tournament tied for first place. They have identical 7-1 won-lost records and 14 points.

The Swedish fans have made no bones about their support of the Czechs. They will be pulling even harder tonight because a Czech victory would give the Swedish team a chance to force the title race into a three-way points tie on the final day.

Film of the Canada-Sweden game will be telecast tonight at 9 on Channel 8.

All the pent-up emotionalism of the Czechs, still bitter over the occupation of their country last August by Soviet and other Warsaw pact forces, was ready to break out again as it did last week.

The Czechs upset Russia 2-0 in their first meeting last Friday. It was the best game of the tournament and it produced a highly-political reaction.

Late Swede Surge Sinks Canadians

Czechoslovakia last won the world title in 1949 at Stockholm, defeating Canada's Sudbury Wolves 3-2. The Canadians finished second.

Sweden ended Canada's chances for a medal here Thursday, defeating the national team 4-2 on three third-period goals.

Sweden could be the spoiler in the final reckoning Sunday.

Sweden was responsible for Czechoslovakia's only defeat, 2-0 March 19.

The Swedes have an easy game against the United States Saturday and then take on the Czechs Sunday.

Two more Swedish wins would give the host country an 8-2 mark and 16 points. If the Russians lose to the Czechs and beat the Canadians, they too will be 8-2. If the Czechs defeat Russia but lose to Sweden, a three-way tie will come into being.

It would take some fine mathematics to pick the winner in that event based on scoring

In Thursday night's game that completed the eighth round, Canada's poor campaign in the tournament reached new depths of humiliation.

The loss to Sweden was the fifth of the tournament for Canada, an all-time high.

The Canadians will go home without a medal for the first time since 1965. Canada won third-place bronze medals in the 1966-67 world tournaments and the 1968 Olympics.

Canadian teams were fourth in 1963, 1964 and 1965.

Dryden Supplies Early Inspiration

Ken Dryden, 21-year-old college goalie from Toronto, started against Sweden and made many tough saves while protecting a 2-1 lead going into the third period.

Ulf Sterner, the ex-pro, was Dryden's toughest customer, beating him twice. Sterner's second goal tied it 2-2 in the third period.

It was a stormy game with players from both sides scuffling. But Kevin O'Shea, 21-year-old right-winger from Beaverton, Ont., was hit the hardest with penalties for fighting.

O'Shea drew a minor, major and match misconduct.

His minor at 19:37 of the first period opened the way for Sterner to score a power-play goal 17 second slater, giving Sweden a 1-0 lead.

The Canadian team, inspired by Dryden's expert work, went on top in the second period as Gerry Pinder tipped in Gary Begg's long shot and hard-working Bill Heindl drove home a 20-footer after Fran Huck fed him from the right corner.

Dryden, who blanked hte Americans 1-0 Tuesday, didn't havt much of a chance on Sterner's tying goal, which came on a pass from Lars-Goran Nilsson after Dryden stopped a long shot.

At 11:20, flashy Stig-Goran Johansson lifted what proved to be the winninr goal past the Cornell University goalie.

There was less than three minutes to go, when O'Shea was given a major by Soviet referee Anatoli Seglin for punching a Swedish player. Then he flattened Sweden's Bert-Ola Nordlander, a 30-year-old veteran backliner, and was thrown out of the game. Sweden's Tord Lundstrom drew a 10-minute misconduct in the first period.

Canucks Like Actors Waiting for Papers

By BRUCE LEVETT

Canadian Press Sports Editor

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Members of the Canadian national hockey team, smarting under press criticism of their team's rough play in the world hockey championships, waited for the newspapers today like actors after a Broadway opening.

Canada lost 4-2 to Sweden on Thursday night in a hard-fought contest that saw rookie Kevin O'Shea thrown out of the game for flattening defenceman Bert-Ola Nordlander.

The day after Canadian Ambassador Arthur Andrews' statement expressing concern over his country's image, the Stockholm sports writers were in full cry again.

The columnist Stong in Svenska Dagbladet writes:

"This game was fair compared with the first game, which was rough, with continuous spearings and fisticuffs and there was good reason to name Gerry Pinder and some others as roughnecks."

The paper quotes Nordlander as saying: "The Canadians are the same as usual."

"They called us yellow chickens and God-knows-what all the time."

Allison writes in Dagens Nyheter:

"Why don't we give the Canadians some credit for their fighting spirit and enthusiasm? That there happened to be such an ill-mannered man as O'Shea among the Maple Leafs is immaterial.

"To send him off for the rest of the game was the best thing the referees did. Otherwise, the referees, especially Humble Bumble (Hal Trumble of the United States) were not very good."

The other official was Anatoly Seglin of Russia.

Sven-Oskar Ruhmen in Aftonbladet, writes:

USE 'DIRTY TRICKS'

"I must say once more Canada has come here with a gang of ruffians who lack talent, but most of them are young men who are going to be used for the next world championships. What these youngsters lack in hockey education, they make up with dirty tricks, and they know them all."

'Pool' Putting Aids Old Sam

MIAMI (AP) — Sam Snead has a new putting stroke—his poolroom special—and he says he feels like he's 16 instead of 56.

"I feel so good I believe I could go out and shoot a 50," Snead said Thursday after firing a five-under-par 67 in the opening round of the $200,000 National Airlines open golf tournament.

Snead, who has won more than 100 tournaments in a career spanning three decades, found himself only one stroke off the record-setting pace of young Dewitt Weaver, out front with a 66.

Top Canadian was Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg with a 71, followed by Al Balding of Toronto at 72.

George Knudson and Alvie Thompson, both of Toronto, shot 74s.

GALLERY WITH SNEAD

But everybody's eyes, entering the second round over the 6,927-yard par-72 Country Club of Miami course were on Snead.

"I think I can still play as good as any of these young fellows from tee to green," said Snead.

"Now I've got a new putting stroke, and I believe I've got it licked."

Snead putts normally from 15 feet and farther away. From 15 feet in, he uses a stroke similar to the croquet style but standing sidewas instead of astride the ball, now illegal.

The left hand is held at the top of the club and the right, the pushing hand, is about a foot farther down the shaft. Formerly, Sam held his hand behind the shaft and shoved the blade.

"Now I grip the club in my right hand the way you would grip a cue stick in playing pool. I've got a much better touch."

Patience With Pulford Brings Punch a Payoff

By The Canadian Press

It was only a few weeks ago that Bob Pulford's job with Toronto Maple Leafs seemed in jeopardy.

Pulford, a 13-year veteran of the National Hockey League, wasn't scoring many goals and his checking had fallen off. It appeared likely he would be traded.

But manager-coach Punch Imlach of the Maple Leafs stuck with Pulford and the sturdy left winger-centre played an important role in Toronto's 4-2 victory against Detroit Red Wings Thursday night.

Pulford scored the winning goal and assisted on an earlier score as the Maple Leafs clinched a berth in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

In other NHL action Thursday night, Philadelphia Flyers took Los Angeles Kings 4-2 and Boston Bruins and New York Rangers played to a 3-3 tie.

The victory moved fourth-place Toronto eight points ahead of fifth-place Detroit in the Eastern Division and ended the Red Wings' chances of grabbing a playoff position. The season ends Sunday.

Pulford's goal, his 10th of the season, came at 16:08 of the second period and gave the Maple Leafs a 3-1 lead. He scored on a rebound from a shot by Mike Walton.

Other Toronto scorers were George Armstrong, Floyd Smith and Paul Henderson. Alex Delvecchio and Frank Mahovlich connected for Detroit.

Pulford drew an assist on Armstrong's opening goal at 8:18 of the first period.

Mahovlich's goal was his 48th of the season, tying his previous best goal-scoring season—48 with Toronto in 1960-61.

TRAIL BY THREE

A crowd of 14,508 at Detroit watched the Maple Leafs move to within three points of third-place New York. The Rangers and Maple Leafs meet twice this weekend.

A gathering of 14,659 at Boston saw the Bruins stay in the running for first place in the Eastern Division. Boston trails first-place Montreal by three points, but plays the Canadiens twice this weekend.

Johnny McKenzie's 28th goal of the season early in the third period gave Boston the tie.

Scoring the other Boston goals were Ron Murphy and Fred Stanfield while Jean Ratelle, Jim Neilson and Harry Howell replied for New York.

McKenzie scored his goal at 5:47 of the final period by outmanoeuvring Neilson and firing an 18-foot shot past goalie Ed Giacomin of New York.

CLINCH FLYERS' WIN

Don Blackburn and Bill Sutherland scored within the last two minutes of play to give Philadelphia its win before 11,689 hometown fans.

The victory moved third-place Philadelphia three points ahead of fourth-place Los Angeles in the Western Division.

NHL Governors Study Expansion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP)—A special meeting of the National Hockey League governors will decide in May when and if the league will be expanded.

The governors, in a meeting here that cleaned up "a lot of business," decided on the May meeting and to appoint a committee to consider the availability of players for expansion.

The May meeting will decide if new teams are to be added to the 12-team league, how many, and the year expansion is to become effective, possibly in 1971.

Vancouver has already been assured of a berth in the next expansion. Baltimore and Buffalo are certain to apply.

In other matters the governors agreed to an automatic $100 fine for a player using an illegal stick and a maximum fine of $10,000 for a club for tampering with a player. The maximum for tampering now is $2,000.

Recent charges that some sticks have been "doctored," for instance changing the curve or arc of the blade, caused the governors to change the penalty for this offence to a $100 fine. Previously a player with an illegal stick got a minor penalty.

Soccer goes back first, but all area sports teams today hail the "return" to Athletic Park.

Completed three years ago, the city-owned park was closed over a year ago because of drainage and turf difficulties.

A pair of teams from the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division will be the first to test the new turf. Front-running University of Victoria Vikings and Gorge Molsons will square off Saturday.

Only three events—all soccer matches—were played at Athletic Park before the closure orders came early last year.

Action in the District League's only Saturday match is slated to start at 2 p.m.

Starting at the same time Sunday will be two first division tussles — Canadian Scottish against Hourigans at Topaz Park and Tally-Ho against Victoria West at Central.

Saints will tackle Falcons at William Head (1:30 p.m.) in Sunday's lone second division "B" match.

The following second division "A" games are slated for 2 p.m. Sunday:

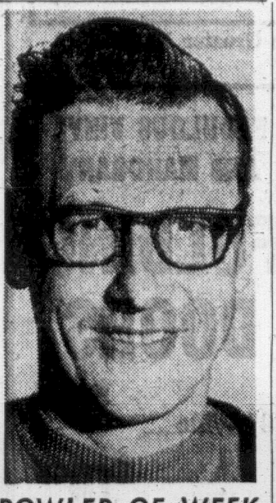
A Rollick-ing Triumph For Husband and Wife



BOWLER OF WEEK

Angling enthusiast Roy Derry has landed men's fivepin award in 23rd week of annual Times Bowler-of-the Week contest. Roy rattled pins for 251-322-324—897 series in Wednesday Niters League at Town and Country Lanes to earn award, which qualifies him for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs on May 11.

TORONTO (CP)—Judy and Bruce Rollick turned a badminton-court romance into a wedding almost two years ago, and Thursday night they received a surprise anniversary present a month early.

The young couple from Vancouver is the first husband-and-wife team since 1922 to win the mixed doubles title at the Canadian closed badminton championships. And Rollick thinks he knows why it took 47 years to produce a winner.

"Most couples avoid playing together," said Rollick, who begins defence of his Canadian open title today.

"We have a problem in practice. There is a tendency to say things like: 'Why did you try that shot, you clod?'—something you wouldn't normally say to anyone else."

The Rollicks upset defending champions Rolf Paterson and Mimi Nilsson, both of Vancouver 18-17, 7-15, 15-8. But that was after Judy had taken the women's singles crown, defeating Allison Daysmith, also of Vancouver, in straight sets, 11-7, 12-9.

Second-seeded Miss Daysmith, who won the title in 1967, and Mrs. Rollick were both members of Canada's Uber Cup team this year and emerged into badminton prominence in Victoria.

RETAINS SINGLES CROWN

Meanwhile, Jamie Paulson of Calgary crushed Yves Pare, his doubles partner from Montreal, 15-4, 15-6, to go undefeated through the three-day tournament and retain his men's singles title.

Now Pare wants to train with Paulson and Channarong Ratana-Saeng-Suang, a former member of Thailand's Thomas Cup team who now coaches in Calgary, for a position on the British Empire Games squad.

"There's the Thomas Cup trials next year, too," Pare said.

Paulson and Pare won their third doubles title in as many years with a 15-8, 15-4 victory over Greg and Geoff Harris, 21-year-old twins from Edmonton.

TORONTO DUO TOPS

Marge Shedd and Barbara Hood, both of Toronto, took the women's doubles title, defeating Mrs. Rollick and Miss Nilsson, 15-10, 15-9.

Rudy Hartono, 19, of Indonesia, who retained his all-England singles title last Sunday, heads the list of world-class players from 13 countries in the open. Six members of the Indonesian Thomas Cup team are expected to compete.

Sharon Whittaker of Vancouver, beaten by Mrs. Rollick in the semi-finals of the closed, is defending women's singles champion, but she faces stiff competition.

Included in the entries are Eva Twedberg of Sweden, winner of the all-England title last year, and the runner-up, Minarni of Indonesia.

HOOP GAME AT UVIC

University of Victoria Vikettes women's basketball club is slated to clash with CFAX radio men's squad in the Uvic gymnasium Sunday at 3 p.m.

O'Keefes Facing Uphill Struggle

Waging an uphill struggle to grab the fourth and last playoff berth in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, Victoria O'Keefes will be close to full strength when they tackle North Shore Luckies Saturday at Vancouver's Callister Park.

Bruce Twamley, out with an ankle injury last week, is expected to return to the lineup and all other Victoria regulars are reported in top condition.

One cloud on the horizon is a possible suspension of Brian Robinson for his part in a fracas two weeks ago. No action was taken by the PCSL disciplinary committee last week because of a mixup in names, but there is still a chance Robinson will be banned from Saturday's match.

Although O'Keefes trail the fourth-place New Westminster Labatts by one point and have played two more games than the Labs, Victoria coach Bill Abbott remains optimistic of a playoff spot.

"The boys are keyed up and realize what it will mean to win our last four games," Abbott said today. "Any team that beats us will have to work."

Abbott's crew faces Burnaby Villa the following Saturday at Vancouver, meets Croatia in Victoria on April 12 and winds up the regular schedule at home on April 19 in what could be a crucial clash with the Labs.

Automatics Win McGinnis Honors

Never sharper than in the playoffs, Victoria Automatic Transmission today holds the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League championship.

The Automatics climaxed an unbeaten playoff march by defeating Ingraham Buckaroos 10-2 Thursday at Memorial Arena to sweep the best-of-five final 3-0. Automatics also swept their best-of-three semi-final in straight games.

Sparking the winners' impressive playoff march were Tommy Allen and Doug Carter. Allen scored three goals and set up a fourth Thursday to emerge as the top playoff scorer. He scored nine goals and four assists in the five games. Carter, with a goal and two assists Thursday, finished close behind.

Ken Hunt added two goals while Jim Murdock, Bill Allen, Sandy Silcox and Chuck Kennedy supplied VAT singles. Brian Andrew, connecting after Automatics had run up a 6-0 lead, and Doug Thera scored Bucks' goals.

Commissioner of Sport Suggested for Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister John Munro will be told next week that Canada needs an instruction and research centre like the Gymnastic and Sports Institute in Stockholm, Sweden.

"It would be an ideal place to situate national teams and measure the members of the teams for perfect condition," says Charlie Patterson, an official in York University's research department who is to make a report to the minister this week on his recent trip to Stockholm.

Patterson, inventor of a hockey mouthguard and helmets for various sports, said in an interview that the Stockholm Institute has equipment and research facilities capable of measuring the potential and condition of athletes.

The various equipment measures strength, fitness, lung capacity, heart capabilities, individual muscle ability and gives a broad picture of how well an athlete could compete in a certain event.

The Stockholm school offers a two-year course for 1,500 students planning to teach sports and physical fitness and Patterson says one of its rooms "can simulate conditions in any place in the world; temperature and altitude included."

He said he also believes Canada should have a commissioner of sport "to represent us abroad."

CANUCKS OPEN ON HOME ICE

SEATTLE (AP)—Vancouver Canucks will open the Western Hockey League playoffs April 1 at home against San Diego Gulls or Seattle Totems, whichever finishes fourth.

Canucks have clinched second place. San Diego, in third place at present, is three points up on Seattle.

Portland Buckaroos finished first in the regular season and will meet the third-place finisher April 2 in Portland.

Both semifinal and final series are best-of-seven affairs.

BOXLA REGISTRATION

Registration for junior "B" lacrosse players will be held Saturday at Stevenson Park, starting at 2 p.m.

Trades May Lift Cards To Third Straight Flag

By The Associated Press

A series of off-season trades may spark St. Louis Cardinals to their third consecutive National League pennant.

The Cardinals acquired outfielder Vada Pinson, catcher-first baseman Joe Torre and infielder Bob Johnson in baseball trades and all three seem to be prospering with St. Louis.

Thursday was a good example as the three collected five hits and led the Cardinals to a 4-0 victory over New York Mets in an exhibition game.

Tony Conigliaro also continued his revitalization for Boston with his first home run since his eye injury in August, 1967, and it helped the Red Sox to a 4-3 triumph over Cincinnati Reds.

In other games, Atlanta Braves stopped Baltimore Orioles 7-1, New York Yankees nipped Minnesota Twins 2-1, Washington Senators tripped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 in 12 innings, Philadelphia Phillies downed Detroit Tigers 5-4 in 12 innings, Pittsburgh Pirates bounced Chicago White Sox 6-2, Oakland Athletics edged California Angels 3-2, Houston Astros defeated Kansas City 5-1, Seattle Pilots beat San Diego Padres 6-3, Montreal Expos trounced Los Angeles Dodgers B team 8-1 and San Francisco Giants outslugged Chicago Cubs 9-7.

Pinson, coming off his worst year in 10 major league seasons with Cincinnati, raised his spring average to .450 as he singled in one run, singled to set up another and made two good catches.

Torre, acquired for Orlando Cepeda after two bad years at Atlanta, tripled and singled. And Johnson, a utility man from Atlanta, drove in another run with a single after delivering a single and a double in an 8-4 B squad victory over the Mets' B team in the morning.

Conigliaro, well on his way to making a startling comeback, singled in one run and then homered against a stiff breeze. Carl Yastrzemski singled in another Boston run to increase his average to .452.

Golf Winners

J Olson (silver division) B Fiddess (bronze "A") and F. McColl (bronze "B") all were winners of both monthly par and medal-and-pin contests for women members at Victoria Golf Club.

OUTDOOR REPORT

By STEWART LANG

Salmon, Steelhead Action on Slow Time

"Discouraging" is the word best to describe the salmon fishing outlook around Vancouver Island for the weekend—and steelheaders will not likely find the action better.

Spring salmon seem to have all but disappeared from Island waters and only a few bluebacks are being taken from scattered locations.

Saanich Inlet contains some blues with best catches coming from near the north end of Sananus Island and off the Bamberton shore using either bucktail or spinner and worm. Orange and red seem to afford the best chances of success while bucktailing.

Blues are also being landed off Bamfield and near Rock Bay or Chatham Island in the Campbell River vicinity.

Steelhead returns are scarce from the San Juan-Harris Creek area but trout returns are picking up in most lower elevation lakes. Noteworthy for the fly fishing enthusiast are Kemp, Shawnigan and Fairy lakes while spinner and worm work wonders in others.

Returns are declining from the Duncan area but some nice steelies still lurk in Cowichan and Koksilah rivers. Cutthroat trout catches are on the upswing in lakes and creeks in the area.

Fishermen trying the Nanaimo River have tied into fair numbers of steelhead ranging from eight to nine pounds but the river level has been falling steadily during the past week.

Snow has melted enough to allow fishermen along the banks of the Ash River near Port Alberni where thy have been landing steelhead up to 15 pounds. Sproat Lake is open in the middle where logging companies have been hauling logs and trout fishing is expected to take a turn for the better.

Bigger things await the steelhead angler near Courtenay where 20 to 23 pounders have been reported in some of the rivers. Fair catches have been recorded from the Tsolum, Oyster and Trent but waters here are falling as well. Only the Puntledge and Big Qualicum are expected to remain productive.

Reports from Campbell River indicate that fishermen are hoping for rain to raise the streams. Some returns are still coming in, however, from the Gold and Salmon.

Ice is off the Upper Campbell Lake and anglers using worm and bobber have been bringing home limit catches of trout.

NIBBLES: Over 100 entries are expected in the first rifle shoot of the Vancouver Island Shooting League calendar . . . hosted by the Nanaimo Fish and Game Club. The starting time is 10 a.m. . . . is the only 100-yard rifle shoot of the season . . . providing the novice with excellent practice.

In the first trap shoot last week end at Port Alberni John Gilmour of Nanaimo was high over-all with 68 points . . . "A" class winner was Vern Adams of Port Alberni . . . "B" class, Barrel Gallant of Victoria . . . "C" class, Wayne Bradley of Salt Spring Island . . . "D" class, George McLellan of Campbell River . . . Victoria representatives captured the "A" team title by combining to score 297 points, five more than Nanaimo . . . Victoria members were Mike Kilgour, Bert Thomas, Brown, J. Bell and Andy Bell . . . Salt Spring Island shooters nailed up a win in the "C" handicap section, 286-279, over Campbell River.

Arbogast lure designers have come up with something called a "Bait Selector" they plan to retail for 25 cents . . . it lists different lures to use for 20 different fish under differing conditions . . . something tells us it won't catch on in B.C. . . . for coho salmon, the selector shows that it is "very seldom" caught on the surface.

AROUND OUR SHORES

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Sea Rangers Join Fleet

Hewett

Last weekend swung us officially into spring. Significant to all sailors was the season's first lusty westerly wind, following hard on the heels of the equinox.

And for the next few weeks, significant seasonal sounds of scraping, grinding, hammering and painting will issue from foreshores, marinas, and backyards, as hundreds of boatowners refinish and refurbish their craft.

Among the most enthusiastic "new boat owners" are 13 girls of SRS Antigonish, the Sea Rangers division of Camosun-Craigflower Girl Guides, of View Royal District. They acquired a 14-foot service dinghy last winter through a crown assets auction.

Leader of the group, Mrs. J. E. McCord explains that small boats such as this one (which spent its working life on one of the navy ships) frequently come up for auction by sealed bid, and that Girl Guide, Boy Scout and church groups usually have priorities, since they are low-budget, non-profit organizations.

The wooden service dinghy is now in the yard of SRS Antigonish "Skipper" Mrs. L. Corby. This is where the girls, who range in age from 14 to 18, will do their scraping, sanding, varnishing, and painting. They will also install oarlocks and overhaul the sails, as the boat will be used for both rowing and sailing.

★ ★ ★

Another embryo Sea Ranger group is forming in Gordon Head, in the Cedar District 22nd company of Girl Guides. April 15 is the date when they hope to receive an official name and blessing.

These girls will be under the leadership of well-known distaff sailor Shirley Jefferson, who first plans to instruct her group in boat safety, government regulations, and finally, sailboat handling. The girls will have their practical sea time in El Toros.

★ ★ ★

Once the "overhaul" is complete, there's no holding back on the part of any skippers, who are off to fish, cruise, or race, as the case may be.

A heavy emphasis is placed on the "cruising" by the Victoria Outboard Club, one of the oldest outboard clubs in the Pacific Northwest. Initially, their membership was strictly outboard, but now it has expanded to include all types of "Stink Potters," and even one sailboat.

The VOC cruising program features twice-monthly cruises from May to October. In 1968, an average of 14 boats and 42 persons turned out for each cruise.

VOC's traditional season "kickoff," the stag cruise, is set for the May 3-4 weekend to Friday Harbor. Among their longer expeditions is a two-week trip in August to Desolation Sound.

Details on the VOC are available from Cruise Captain Syd Woodburn at 383-6589; Win Robinson at 479-1892, or Pat Cox at 477-1968.

SHORT TACKS: Anyone, whether sailor or "landlubber," who is interested in the prospect of sailing on Elk Lake, is invited to a meeting at 8 p.m. on Wednesday at the RCNSA Clubhouse on Maplebank Road ... At this meeting the proposed "ELSA" (Elk Lake Sailing Association) will be formally organized and a chairman and committee elected ... This should be of special interest to everyone who currently has a dinghy of any description, or is thinking of obtaining one ... Elk Lake Sailing Regatta this Sunday should see many "novice" skippers; at least, they are encouraged to participate ... Royal Vic Frostbite season windup Saturday will feature novelty races ...

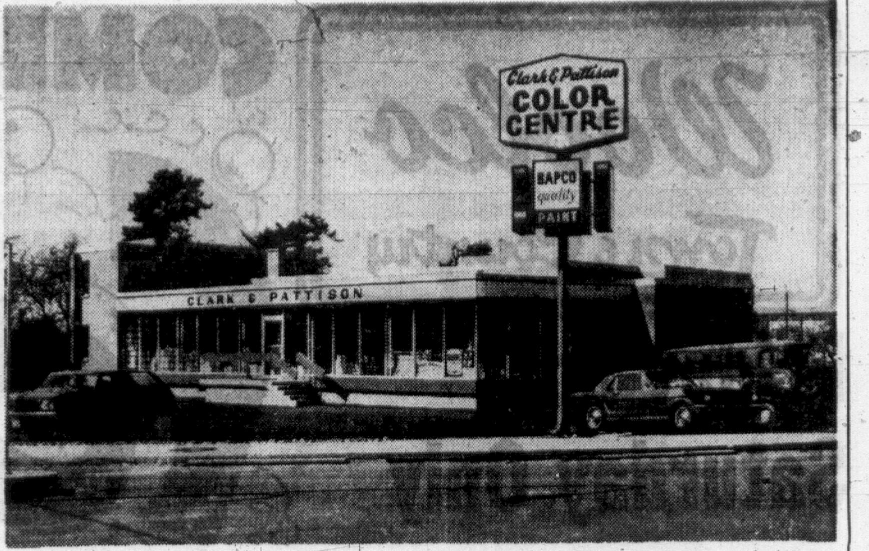
RCNSA and RVic sailing schedules for "spring and summer" racing are already in progress, and start semi-officially with launching day: April 2 and 3 for RCNSA and April 12 for RVic ... Some highlights include Wednesday evening series racing for both clubs; B.C. Fireball Championships, June 14 and 15; Canadian Unicorn Championships, June 21 and 22; Kitsilano Yacht Club Sea Festival Invitational Regatta, July 12 and 13; Thermopylae Race, Sept. 14; and the RCNSA Long Distance Season Closer "Gear Buster" Race for Cruising Classes on Oct. 19 ... Not to mention the "Old Perennials" (which used to be almost the "only ones" not so long ago), Swiftsure, June 1 weekend; PIYA Regatta, hosted by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club from July 1 to 6, and "Labor Day at Maple Bay."

Borden Defeats Esquimalt Club

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP) — A came back from a two-goal team from Van Cartier, Que., deficit to defeat Hemer Rebels, of Germany, 4-3 in the Canadian armed forces hockey championship here Thursday.

The Quebec team was down 3-1 at the end of the second period.

In other games played Thursday, Borden, Ont., defeated Esquimalt 10-6, and Rivers, Man., defeated Cold Lake, Alta., 7-3.



The firm of Clark & Pattison came into being some 16 years ago as painting contractors in the City of Victoria. Progressing from a two-man partnership, they now employ 25 or more, and the business embraces in addition to painting contracts, steel scaffold rentals and sales, and a complete paint store featuring quality products of four major paint manufacturers. The original premises at 760 Princess came under the Urban Renewal and Rose Street Extension plan and this year the new building was completed on Bay Street across from the Armory. The firm pioneered in the concept of painting the high and difficult portions of a home, giving the home-owner the opportunity to complete the less difficult portions himself.

The new Color Centre, with its colorful rotating sign, is a focal point of attention on Rose Street at Bay, with ample parking on the large blacktop frontage.

College Sex Handbook Rocks Aussie Senate

CANBERRA (CP) — The sex problems of the young of the Australian capital city have become a matter for concern by the Australian Senate.

All senators are to get a copy of a handbook that told new university students here that they would probably have sexual experience while at university and gave advice on contraception and abortion.

Senator Frank McManus was so disturbed by what he had heard about the handbook that he asked the government to get copies for all senators to read.

"I wanted to find out," the senator, a prominent Roman Catholic, told this reporter, "whether we were getting value for money at our university."

The handbook, put out by the Australian National University's students' representative council, said the book was not recommending sex to new students. It was simply pointing out the statistical probability.

Girl students were advised that if they became pregnant and decided on abortion they should understand there were people who would help them. "But whatever action is taken," the girls were warned, "only a qualified doctor should be consulted throughout.".

The pill was recommended as the most advantageous form of contraception. "But it does have drawbacks," the book said. "The greatest danger with the pill lies in thinking it is the answer to all problems."

REACTION APLENTY

Not only in Parliament was there reaction to this sex advice for students.

A leading Presbyterian minister, Rev. Hector Harrison, protested that his reaction was one of mingled emotions of anger, dismay, disgust, revulsion and pity.

To counter some of the public concern, the students organized a symposium at the university on "Sex and responsibility at the university." The lecture theatre where the symposium was held was packed. Even groups of Roman Catholic nuns attended.

The audience divided up into those for and those against sex freedom for students. Philosophy graduate Dianne Austin was cheered and booed when she said girls should be honest with themselves and if they saw sex as an expression of affection should "go on the pill."

Whatever the sex problems of students, this capital city is having a baby boom. There have been so many births at Canberra Hospital this year that the hospital has run out of cots and has had to send to Sydney, 200 miles away, for emergency supplies.

Mine Beams Men, Signals On Cables

SUDBURY (CP) — Men, materials and radio signals are received on the same frequency here.

They travel up and down a mine shaft on cables that control a "hoistphone" system—now a permanent feature of the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd.

While miners and work materials ride to the underground job site on a man-lift, the cables that guide it also are used to transmit a weekly radio program.

The program is concerned with doing a comprehensive top-to-bottom mine-shaft inspection.

The twin communication system has become a permanent part of the shaft after a successful six-month trial run.

Libel Fines Paid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Libel fines totalling $1,500 were paid Thursday by the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight and two staff members, minutes before a county court deadline expired. The newspaper, editor Dan Mc Leod and writer Robert Cummings were convicted two months ago of libelling Vancouver Magistrate Lawrence Eckardt last July.

ARTIST PURSUES LEGENDS

TORONTO (CP) — Artist Aba Bayefsky has always been intrigued by the legends and mythologies of the world's various cultures.

During the last 12 years he has in numerous prints interpreted some of the legends of India, Hebrew mythology, an Icelandic tale and the legend of Paul Bunyan.

A year ago he had the yen to combine his research of Canadian Indian legends with his artistic vocation and the result is a portfolio of 12 prints.

The prints, some of them done in five colors, are produced on hand-made paper and a complete portfolio comes in a hand-made case.

Charge Denied By Expo Official

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert F. Shaw, who was deputy commissioner-general of Expo 67 and now is vice-principal of McGill University, has denied allegations of inefficiency in the recording of revenues at the world exhibition.

Referring to a statement Wednesday in Ottawa by Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson, Shaw said Thursday there was "not a damn thing new in that report" and he added: "The control, in my view, was exceptional."

Regarding a statement that Habitat, Expo's famed new-style apartment building, cost $7,472,000 more than the original contract price, Shaw declared: "I've said it so many times—it was built as an exhibit, not for housing."

Canada Gets New Cardinal

VATICAN CITY (CP-AP) — Pope Paul today named 35 new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church, including Most Rev. George Bernard Flahiff, archbishop of Winnipeg.

The new cardinals raise the membership in the sacred college to 134, its greatest number in history.

Thirty-three of the new princes of the church will be elevated at a secret consistory April 28.

Two of them will not be present. The Pope named them "in pectore"—in his heart—and will not reveal their identity until some future time or perhaps never. This has been done in the past where the announcement of a prelate's elevation might endanger his safety, if he was in a country whose government was inimical to the church, for example.

It will be the third consistory of Pope Paul's six-year-old reign. At his last, on June 26, 1967, he increased the college to 118 cardinals, then a record. But in the last two years 16 of these prelates have died.

The vacancies included such important archdioceses as Montreal, New York, Paris and Bordeaux.

FOUR FROM U .S.

The cardinals also included four Americans—Archbishops Terence Cooke of New York, John Dearden of Detroit, John Wright of Pittsburgh and John Carberry of St. Louis.

This brought the total number of U.S. cardinals to 10, the largest number in history.

It also included a black African cardinal—Archbishop Joseph Walula of The Congo—who will bring the number of black cardinals in the college to an all-time high of three.

This is the first time that a pope has named cardinals "in pectore" since the late Pope John XXIII did so late in his reign.

Pope John named three cardinals "in pectore" and their names were never revealed.

There was speculation that those named by Pope Paul might be prelates in Communist Europe, perhaps the archbishop of Prague and one of two Hungarian archbishops.

FOUR FROM C'WEALTH

In addition to Archbishop Flahiff, three other cardinals were appointed in Commonwealth countries.

They are Most Rev. Gordon Gray, archbishop of St. Andres and Edinburgh, Scotland, Most Rev. Joseph Perecatill, archbishop of Ernakulan, India, and Most Rev. Peter Thomas McFeefry, archbishop of Wellington, New Zealand.

Until the reign of Pope John XXIII, there had never been more than 70 cardinals, a limit set by Pope Sixtus V in 1586. At that time the total world population was about 360,000,000. Today there are more than 550,000,000 Roman Catholics.

Pope Paul's 35 new cardinals are the largest number elevated at one time to the purple. The previous record number was named by Pope Pius XII, who appointed 32 in 1946, just after the Second World War.

In his previous two consistories Pope Paul appointed 27 cardinals each time. He now has named a total of 89 cardinals.

Cardinal Flahiff, 63, was appointed archbishop of Winnipeg in 1961.

A native of Paris, Ont., Cardinal Flahiff was educated in Toronto and ordained a priest Aug. 17, 1930. He was a professor of history at the University of Toronto graduate school and the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in Toronto from 1934 to 1954 when he was named superior general of the Basilian Fathers.

When he was elevated to the Canadian episcopacy, he became the second member of the Basilian order to gain the title.

During his time as superior general, he effected a reunion between the North American congregation of the Basilian Fathers and the Basilian congregation in France.

Cardinal Flahiff is a member of the Canadian Catholic Historical Association, the American Catholic Historical Association and has contributed to many periodicals of historical scholarship.

A tall scholarly man, Cardinal Flahiff joins Paul-Emile Leger, formerly of Montreal and now a missionary in Africa, James McGuigan of Toronto and Maurice Roy, archbishop of Quebec, as Canadian members of the College of Cardinals.

Davey Heads Mass Media Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario) was elected chairman Thursday of the special Senate committee "to consider and report upon the ownership and control of the major means of mass public communication in Canada."

He was chosen chairman of the 18-member committee at its organization meeting.

Senator Davey, a former advertising salesman for Toronto radio station CKFH who served briefly as commissioner of the Canadian Football League, proposed the Senate motion to establish the committee.

Approved March 18, the motion also calls for the committee to examine and report "upon the extent and nature" of the media's impact and influence on the Canadian public.

INTERVIEW

In an interview following the committee's brief organization meeting, Senator Davey said there will be a preliminary period of research before the committee begins its hearings. The research will be done by a team of outside consultants working under his direction. The team is being chosen now.

Senator L. P. Beaubien of Montreal, a Progressive Conservative, is deputy-chairman of the committee.

Along with Senator Davey, he and Senators Harry Hays (L—Alberta), C. R. McElman (L—New Brunswick) and J. M. Macdonald (PC—Nova Scotia) form the committee's steering body.

Other committee members are Senators Paul Desruisseaux (L—Quebec), D. D. Everett (L—Manitoba), Louis de Gonzague Giguere (L—Quebec), Olive Irvine (PC—Manitoba), Keith Laird (L—Ontario), Leopold Langlois (L—Quebec), W. J. Petten (L—Newfoundland), J. Harper Prowse (L—Alberta), H. O. Sparrow (L—Saskatchewan), E. W. Urquhart (L—Nova Scotia), F. C. Welch (PC—Nova Scotia), George S. White (PC—Ontario) and H. A. Willis (PC—Ontario.).

Senator Desruisseaux, chairman of the board of Radio and Television Sherbrooke Inc., is a former director of The Canadian Press.

Senator Laird is a director of Western Ontario Broadcasting Corp. Ltd.

Judge Drops Case Against Mrs. Sicotte

MONTREAL (CP) — Sessions Judge Maurice Fauteux Thursday dismissed charges of fraud and theft against Lise Sicotte in connection with a $980 antique sculpture.

At preliminary hearing into the charges he said:

"I think we are dealing with a civil case. I don't know what they would decide.

"In any case it's out of my jurisdiction. I can see no evidence showing that the accused committed the crime with which she is charged."

Mrs. Sicotte pleaded not guilty Feb. 10 to the charges which arose from an April 1968 transaction.

Mrs. Sicotte is the wife of Gilles Sicotte, an assistant deputy minister in the federal transport department who resigned recently to take a post with a private relief organization.

Wilson Talks With Gowon Kept Secret

LAGOS (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson of Britain today concluded three hours of talks with Nigerian head of state Yakubu Gowon and then headed for a two-day tour of civil war zones.

No official communique was issued following the session but informed sources said the two leaders are believed to have discussed British arms supplies to federal Nigeria and bombing of breakaway Biafra.

Wilson flew in a Nigerian Fokker Aircraft to Enugu to begin his battle zones tour. He was accompanied by Brig. Hassan Katsina, Nigerian Army chief of staff.

In their talks, Gowon was expected to press Britain for more arms for a final push to crush secessionist Biagra, while Wilson intended to present various proposals to halting the fighting, informed sources said.

Martial Law Restores Order in Pakistan

KARACHI (AP) — Truckloads of armed troops moved through the streets of Karachi today, but all was reported quiet here and in other Pakistani cities on the fourth day of martial law.

The only processions permitted were those celebrating the Moslem festival of Muharram, in which people flagellate themselves with chains and knives and walk on red hot coals.

A massive amount of pistols and rifles continued to pour into police stations under the amnesty granted by the military regime, which has banned firearms. Authorities have cracked down on rent defaulters and even begun enforcing laws forbidding excessive exhaust smoke from vehicles.

The country's new military leader, Gen. Yahya Khan, warned in a nationwide address Wednesday that he wanted efficient and "clean" civil administration to pave the way for free elections.

REPAIR DAMAGE

Civil servants, taking him seriously, have been cleaning up Karachi and other cities, repairing the damage caused in four months of demonstrations against former president Ayub Khan's regime and washing political slogans off walls.

Some political quarters are privately expressing cautious optimism about the new military regime. They feel that orderly transition towards elections and a new civil government under the regime is better than the near-anarchy and chaos that preceded it for four weeks of free-for-all political demonstrations, strikes and riots.

As an indication of Pakistan's return to normality, all universities, colleges and schools are opening Monday. They had been closed for four months, with subsequent interference in examinations.

The government-run Radio Pakistan said all was quiet in East Pakistan and in the eastern capital, Dacca, where striking workers have returned to their jobs and Dacca university has reopened to students.

Homes Flatten Brotherly Love

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Improving living conditions in a community does not necessarily lead to a better community spirit, a veteran development worker says in a letter to the Coady International Institute here.

Rev. Joseph Fernando, a native of Ceylon who took a social leadership course at the institute on the St. Francis Xavier University campus, initiated a large-scale housing project at Negombo on the west coast of Ceylon.

He says one surprising result was the emergence of a vigorous individualism on the part of the new homeowners.

Before the housing program, Father Fernando says the fishing families of Negombo "had lived like a herd . . . the squalid palm-thatch huts they lived in were hot and unsanitary."

"Nobody knew on whose lands their shacks might be, and nobody cared. There were no barriers, no fences, no sense of property, no feeling of mine and thine. They were just a herd in a huddle of shacks."

Then the fisheries operation began to pay off. The catamaran outriggers gave way to glass fibre boats, nylon nets and Canadian outboard motors. Father Fernando talked up a housing program, the fishermen saved their money and went on a building spree.

INDIVIDUALISM GREW

In three or four years the old shanties were replaced by handsome brick homes with shining red tile roofs.

"But as the brick houses came in, the spirit of individualism came with it. The community feeling just wasn't there. The new homeowners wanted to have nothing to do with their neighbors.

"They put fences around their properties. They started fighting court cases to establish roadways and rights-of-way."

While somewhat surprised, Father Fernando writes he was not too alarmed by this.

"I'm assuming that this individualism is a necessary phase of development. It is probably part of the process of human development from the herd instinct to community living, which is something quite different from the herd instinct.

"In fact, I'm beginning to think that it might be a good thing, for in this first stage, they have come to realize that human beings are good, useful individuals, and that each one is worth something."

Father Fernando says with their individualism has come an immense pride. "They had no outside help, no government aid. They made it on their own, and they have every right to be proud of the kind of people they are."

COLLEGE TO GROW POT

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi has a unique agricultural enterprise-marijuana farming.

University of Mississippi scientists call their crop the first step of a complex research project financed by the National Institute of Mental Health of Bethesda, Md.

Dr. Norman J. Doorenbos, chairman of the department of pharmocognosy, said the need for marijuana research was vital.

"Up until now," he said, "all we've had is contraband material confiscated by Bureau of Customs and Bureau of Narcotics people. This material had had an uncertain history as to its age, origin the variety of plant from which it came.

"A lot of information has been published on the subject of marijuana, but it doesn't mean a whole lot because the chemical composition of the plant is not known."

The plant will be grown on government land in several locations, all but one secret. The exception is a small plot on the university campus.

Federal agents are in constant surveillance and employees work under clearance issued by the Bureau of Narcotics.

The university's Research Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences will supply extract from mature plants to three other research institutes under contract to take up the next phases of the work. They will study how to produce synthetic marijuana, analyse smoke and similar projects.

Save-the-Salmon Group Summons Talks in April

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — A new attempt is being steamed up here to save the Atlantic salmon, which has yielded alarmingly smaller harvests in Canada and the United Kingdom since a major ocean feeding ground was discovered in 1965.

A save-the-salmon group called the Atlantic Salmon Research Trust has summoned an international conference here for April 15-16 with a view to stimulating action by the International Commission on the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries at a meeting in June planned for Warsaw.

The commission did not take action last year on a Canadian-proposed resolution to restrict the taking of salmon on the high seas. Since then the situation, from Canada's standpoint, has become worse.

The over-all catch of Atlantic salmon in Canada in 1968 dropped by 27 per cent from the year before while the angling catch fell 45 per cent. The United Kingdom's take also was down, though full figures are not available.

"It is too early to prove that this is due to catches at sea, but I believe it is the handwriting on the wall," retired vice-admiral Sir Hugh Mackenzie, director of the new research trust, said Thursday.

RUSSIA FAVORS BAN

Sir Hugh is getting close to co-operation from T. B. Fraser of Montreal, manager of the Atlantic Salmon Association, who will head a Canadian delegation to the April meeting.

The Canadian government will not be represented—it needs no arm-twisting anyway—but those present will include the United States, Britain, Norway, Iceland, France and West Germany.

Russia probably will not attend but, like Canada, it favors a ban on taking salmon in their ocean feeding grounds.

Many experts are predicting that continuance of the wholesale catches on the high seas could result in the extinction of the Atlantic salmon, highly esteemed as a food and game fish, in a generation.

Much of its life is spent at sea until it returns to its native river to spawn.

The feeding grounds remained secret until 1965 when fishermen stumbled across a catch of 10,000 in the Davis Strait between Canada and Greenland.

By last year the catch had soared to 200,000 in the high seas section of the strait and another 173,000 were taken in Greenland's waters.

Most of the fish went to Scandinavia and the Danish-owned Faroe Islands.

Britain for years has banned its own vessels from landing ocean-caught salmon, though Canada has no such rule.

It's No Secret She's a Winner

RUTHERGLEN, Ont. (CP) — Louis de Kiriline Lawrence, who lives quietly with her husband in a little house on the banks of the Mattawa River, is going to the big city Sunday.

"I wanted to keep it a secret," says Mrs. Lawrence, 75, author of The Lovely and the Wild and winner of the John Burroughs medal, one of the most distinguished accolades for nature writers.

The award, also won by the late Rachel Carson for her book The Sea Around Us, will be presented Monday at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

•

Mrs. Lawrence, first Canadian to win the award inaugurated 43 years ago, lives with her husband on a 10-acre plot 24 miles east of North Bay.

"The Laurentians are out there just across the river," she said in an interview Wednesday, her voice still showing traces of a Swedish accent. "Everything reminds me so much of Sweden."

And that's where she first learned about nature, mostly from her father in Svenskund, a town in central Sweden.

She came to Toronto in 1927 but soon headed for North Bay and Kirkland Lake as a nurse with the Canadian Red Cross.

She speaks Danish, Swedish, Russian, French and English. She writes in English because "it's so beautiful."

•

Her book, published by McGraw-Hill of New York, is about her life with nature from her birth in Sweden through years of tragedy in Europe and her 42 years in Canada.

She met her first husband, a Russian officer, during the First World War.

At the time of the Russian revolution in 1917 he fought with White Russian troops in northern Russia. She was a nurse at the front lines. Her husband was killed during the revolution.

Mrs. Lawrence is the first Canadian woman to be awarded elective membership in the American Ornothology Union and is recognized as a leading world authority on wild birds and bird behavior.

She now is working on two nature books and is also working under contract with the conservation branch of the department of Indian affairs.

The Burroughs award was established in honor of John Burroughs, a United States author and journalist who was born in 1937 and died in 1921. He was a noted author on nature.

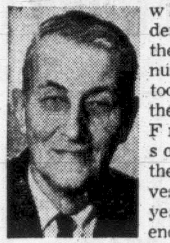
VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1969 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

In Montreal today, a great Canadian university that happens to stand on Quebec soil is the target of a protest that differs in aim from other such confrontations.

The marchers who chose an already troubled campus as their target see McGill as a fortress of "les Anglais" in Quebec. Their aim is to integrate it into the French-speaking school system urged by Raymond Lemieux who heads the separatist League for the Integration of Students.

In this attempt, they have support from Montreal's junior colleges - whose students, like their opposite numbers who took part in the Simon Fraser episode, find they are investing two years in dead-end education.



Radicals from within McGill and outside are also in the demonstration, but the main body comes from University of Montreal, traditionally hostile toward rich, English-speaking McGill, and reputed to be a separatist hotbed.

To these ingredients add a McGill political science instructor by the non-Quebecois name of Stanley Gray, who preaches that the university should be given over to the Quebec majority.

Gray has stirred up an incendiary mix, and the elements it contains may all too easily fuse to create a resounding blast.

At the time of writing, this has not happened—but if McGill's science faculty "commandos" and the marchers come together on the campus or outside it, heads will be broken before the day is over.

★

I have a long letter here from a Quebec journaliste who feels that the McGill administration might have saved itself much future grief by firing political scientist Gray outright rather than keeping him under threat of dismissal.

With the outbreak at Sir George Williams fresh in memory, she believes the radicalism that contributed to the protest there is also firmly entrenched in Montreal's senior English speaking university.

"It is my impression," this sturdy non-separatist writes, "that the militants are out to make trouble, and nothing is going to pacify them. Any excuse will do, and if a destructive protest can be run along racialist lines, so much the better."

My correspondent says of the separatists, "Oddly enough, they don't seem to resent the other English universities such as Sir George, and Loyola, which is a college, but gives a degree through University of Montreal.

"McGill is the seat of the establishment to them, the place where all the English go."

Like most working Montrealers, the writer has a respect for learning which extends to the institutions that deal in it.

She hopes that "Operation McGill," as the integrationists have dubbed it, will not produce such scenes as she witnessed outside Sir George Williams' vertical campus.

★

To the uninvolved student, she remembers, "the final traumatic shock was to arrive for lectures, find the police there, and all their records out on the street. To most of them, it seemed the end, and if the police would have let them, they'd have gone in and done battle.

"When our newly-formed riot squad arrived, I think it is some kind of record to have students shouting, 'Go, cops, go!' Most of our students hate the police.

"We feel strongly that Sir George didn't deserve to have this happen to it. It has the reputation of being one of the most liberal universities anywhere, and students have achieved here what students in other universities are fighting to gain.

"As for McGill, my fingers are crossed, and I hope the marchers will be headed off."

Student protest? What we have there is the latest act in Quebec's unquiet revolution. And if it gets out of hand, it could make the Sir George Williams affair look like a picnic.

RARE TWIN FOAL is up on her feet for bottle of mare's milk offered by 11-year-old Warren Johnson, grandson of Capt. and Mrs. Art Warren who brought baby into the house in their determination to keep it alive.

TWIN FILLIES DEFY THE ODDS-MAKERS

A horse in your house? A little unsusual, but the circumstances are more than a little unusual.

Twin foals are rarely born alive, and if so they seldom survive the first few hours. But Capt. and Mrs. Art Warren of Warren Farm, 6404 Central Saanich Road, are beating the odds.

They had twin Throughbred foals (fillies, or girl babies to city folk) arrive last Sunday night and the long-legged little ones are coming along in fine style.

They are not up on their feet as much as a single foal of the same age would be, but they are glossy-coated and gaining strength every hour with a lot of conscientious and loving care.

The smallest of the twins was brought into the house for the extra warmth she appeared to need. A hastily-constructed "play pen" in the utility room makes it a little difficult to get to the refrigerator and deep-freeze locker, but the Warrens don't regard this as important.

The important thing is the baby is progressing as well as bigger sister in the barn.

Both foals are being bottle-fed every two hours on an around-the-clock routine which means a good deal of sleep is going by the board. But that, too, is not important to the Warrens.

"We're just so pleased they are coming along so nicely." Mrs. Warren said.

HIGHLY BRED

The babies are highly bred. Their sire is "Spending Spree" (by Khaled) which is on lease to Warren Farm; and the dam is "Rose Flush" (Grey Skies) also on lease. The dam is owned by Mrs. W. Stanbury and Don Carley, of Victoria Riding Academy.

The foals, owned by Capt. and Mrs. Warren, are similar in markings but different in color. One is chestnut and the other black. The black will probably turn grey like its dam.

"Rose Flush" was attended at the birth by the Warren's son-in-law "Moose" Johnson who had the assistance of another Warren son-in-law and well-known horse shipper and farrier, Fred Ball. Dr. David Gaunt has been the attending veterinarian.

The foals haven't been given names yet, but there is little doubt the one in the house will always be known as "Utility Kid,"

TWIN SISTER in barn is eager-eater too as Warren supervises one of the feedings which are given every two hours, 24 hours a day. (Times Photos by Bill Halkett)

Valley Group To Analyze Big Report

The Blenkinsop Valley Ratepayers Association has set up an 11-member study committee to consider a Saanich planning report made public Tuesday night.

The association, meeting Thursday night in Lochside School, will also draw up a constitution and bylaws to formalize the group.

"We feel there's merit in the report but to a certain extent we've got to consider how it affects the residents of the valley as well as the whole of Saanich," said Ed Lohbrunner.

"This is why there will be careful study and examination."

The planning report made a number of recommendations, some directly involving the valley and others extending to the municipality as a whole.

The major recommendation was to increase the present 1.6-acre subdivision minimum, which covers about half the municipality, to five acres.

Idea is to contain urban development within the sewer enterprise area in the present urban and semi-urban areas to the south of Royal Oak to avoid unsightly and expensive suburban sprawl into rural areas.

Bishop's Installation At Cathedral April 17

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Most Rev. John Ogle Anderson will be installed as Anglican Bishop of the diocese of British Columbia (Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands) in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday, April 17, at 8 p.m.

The installation ceremony will be performed by Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, DD, dean of the cathedral.

According to ancient tradition, Bishop Anderson will knock three times on the main door of the cathedral and ask the Dean's permission to enter.

The service will be fully choral but not so elaborate as that which accompanies the consecration of a bishop. Bishop Anderson is already Bishop of Ruperts Land, so does not have to be consecrated.

After being admitted to the cathedral, he will be installed in the bishop's chair at the high altar and presented with the pastoral staff — the Biblical symbol of his office.

Invited to the ceremony are Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, Premier Bennett, Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria and mayors of outside municipalities; Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria; Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, executive secretary of Greater Victoria Council of Churches; Canon Grahame Baker, president, and heads of other church organizations.

Bishop Anderson was elected to office March 7 by clergy and laymen from all parishes on Vancouver Island attending a special synod meeting in Christ Church Cathedral.

He was at home in Winnipeg at the time and will not visit here until April 15.

'ENORMOUS PROFITS'

Mid-Contract Hike Requested by IWA

The Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of American announced today its intention of seeking mid-contract wage increases from lumber companies.

Letters to this effect have been sent to companies on southern Vancouver Island by local IWA president Murray Drew.

"We feel there is every justification for doing so because of the enormous profits the union members are making for their employers and should in all justice be sharing more equitably in these profits," he said.

"Realizing that earnings of the companies must be divided, all we are asking is a larger portion of the profits be put into the hands of the employees and a little less into the pockets of the shareholders."

GO IT ALONE

He said the annual reports of B.C. Forest Products Limited, which employs about 1,100 persons in the Victoria area, show that in 1967 each employee earned for this company $2,841.41 in profits before taxes.

In 1968, each employee earned $4,001.96 profit, an increase of $1,160.55. Drew said the figures include office staff and supervisors.

The latest company annual report said wages must be related to productivity. Drew said the report showed each employee in 1967 produced 529.70 units of production and 549.86 in 1968, an increase of 20.16 units of production per employee in one year.

"For these reasons we feel that a substantial wage increase is a must at this time," he said.

Asked if the Victoria local will press its wage re-opening without the regional IWA, Drew replied "yes, if we have to."

In Drydock After Grounding

A 7,600-ton Liberian freighter, the Hong Kong Clipper, is undergoing repairs in Esquimalt Graving Dock after running aground Monday on Denny Island in Queen Charlotte Sound.

She spent several hours on the rocks, taking on water from a hole in her bow, before tugboats freed her.

TRIAL BALLOON GOING ALOFT EARLY SUNDAY

An orange-colored balloon will be flown Sunday morning to mark the height of two proposed nine-storey apartment buildings in north Oak Bay.

Ald. Frances Elford said the balloon will be aloft between 9:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. at a height of 95 feet, which is the maximum allowed under a municipal bylaw for apartments.

The idea is to show residents in the Victoria Riding Academy area on Cedar Hill Cross Road how high the buildings would be in relation to trees to the west which would remain if construction goes ahead.

A public hearing is to be held by council next month on the proposed development.

Drivers to Pay More Insurance Men Claim

Public to Protest Socred MLAs Told

The province's proposed automobile insurance legislation will cost the average motorist more in damages and for some premiums, the Insurance Agents' Association of British Columbia said Thursday.

In a circular letter to Social Credit MLAs, the association said the scheme would help an annual average of 2,181 persons with fatality or injury benefits but would deprive an average 34,015 others of compensation for property damage.

The association, representing 500 agencies in B.C., said the figures were based on tables in the report of the Wootton Royal Commission on Automobile Insurance.

DETRIMENTAL

The letter said the public would react unfavorably to the bill and this is sure to be "detrimental to the members of your government."

Other points in the letter were:

Under the rule which says a driver at fault pays the first $250 for property damage, a driver could be held responsible for multiples of that amount. For example, if he caused a five-car accident, he would have to pay $1,000 damages for the other four cars.

NO COMPENSATION

Innocent victims can get no compensation unless they get it personally from the party at fault.

To protect himself from other drivers, the safe, mature driver will have to buy collision insurance which will be at least 50 per cent higher than present collision insurance.

Instead of reducing litigation the bill would create a "host of cases" in small debts court, the letter said.

Under the legislation, accident victims can sue for collision damages only up to $250. Beyond that the driver must pay either personally or through collision insurance for repairs to his own vehicle.

Rites Monday For Veteran City Lawyer

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's chapel Monday at 1:30 p.m. for Ernest Henry Montague Foot, a practising lawyer in Victoria since 1919.

He died at his residence, 2560 Vista Bay Road, Wednesday.

His daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Vera) Ash, flew to Victoria Thursday from her home at Reno, Nevada. She will be followed Saturday by her husband, who was reeve of Saanich from 1956 to 1958 and Liberal MLA for Saanich from 1948 to 1952.

They have lived in Reno since 1961.

Born in England, Foot came to Canada as a boy and farmed in Manitoba before entering the University of Manitoba where he graduated in law.

WAR VETERAN

He served overseas in the First World War with the Canadian Army and came to Victoria in 1919 to practise law. He was a charter member of Victoria Kiwanis Club, a member of the Manitoba and B.C. Bar associations and a member of the A.F. and A.M.

His wife Mabel died here in 1965. Surviving are two grandchildren, Cairine and Christine Ash.

Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, minister of Victoria Truth Centre, will officiate at the funeral services, to be followed by interment at Royal Oak Burial Park.

'Better Get Cracking' On Hospitals

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today gave notice that the Capital Region Hospital Board "better get cracking" in recommending construction of extended care facilities.

He said the board has authority to recommend construction of 600 extended care beds.

In the six months since the authority was given, the board has "recommended only one unit for 150 beds," the minister said in a statement to the Times.

CONCERNED

"The B.C. Hospital Insurance Services is very concerned about the tardiness with which these recommendations for further construction are coming forward."

Loffmark said BCHIS has nearly completed preparation of "standard plans" for extended care facilities that will be built throughout much of the province.

Decisions "in respect of location" of the new facilities should be made by the board.

"If these matters are not settled soon, we'll have to consider some other way of getting the matter settled," said Loffmark.

CAMPUS KITE FESTIVAL at University of Victoria Saturday is well-organized affair. They're even going to have a "kite hospital" at Student Union Building for minor "injuries" any high-flyers might suffer. And there'll be a modern band on hand to help keep things up in the air—the As Sherif Band. Miss Victoria, Pam Gillan, had a high old time Thursday evening inspecting some of the entries, and is show here with a geometric-designed box kite which threatened to take her aloft. Kite Festival is open to all-comers and should be colorful affair. Entries will be accepted between noon and 2:30 at the SUB, and flights will be judged between 2:30 and 4. There will be prizes for biggest, funniest, most artistic kites, as well as oldest and youngest kiters.—(Robin Clarke Photo)

Provincial Money Given Sally Ann

A Salvation Army spokesman today contradicted a statement by Ald. Ian Stewart in city council Thursday that the B.C. government has done nothing for alcoholics.

Ald. Stewart made the criticism after the city fathers reluctantly turned down a $6,000 grant to the Salvation Army Harbor Light in Victoria.

"The province has done nothing," Ald. Stewart said, "and I want to underline the fact that something must be done by this provincial government."

"This is not true," Capt. Hugh Tilley, Salvation Army public relations officer, said.

"The provincial government gives $6,000 every year to our Harbor Light Mission, and $16,500 to Harbor Light services in Vancouver, including our Miracle Valley rehabilitation centre near Mission.

"We feel the city council also has a responsibility. Almost every day police cars bring men to Victoria's Harbor Light Mission and our social and rehabilitation centre here.

"The city uses our facilities but pays nothing towards them."

'MANY CALLS'

In city council, Ald. Stewart said he was not advocating that the city pick up the cost of the $6,000 grant to Harbor Light.

"This is the time of year when we have many calls on the public purse, and I think it should be realized and made clear that municipalities have met their social welfare obligations to an extent far beyond anything visualized by our forefathers."

The Salvation Army grant had been turned down earlier by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you tell me the names of the leading newspapers in Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm and Helsinki respectively? B.Q.

A. Copenhagen's main newspapers are the morning dailies, Aktuelt and Berlinoske Tidende, and the evening daily, Berlinoske Aftenavis. Oslo's main papers are the morning daily, Arbeiderbladet; the evening daily, Dagbladet, and the Aftenposten, which publishes a morning and evening edition.

Stockholm's principal papers are the morning Dagens Nyheter and the evening Expressen. In Helsinki the main papers are the morning Helsingen Sanomat and Hufvudstadbladet, and the evening papers, Ilta - Sanomat and Kauppalenhti.

In Tuesday's Ask The Times a reader wanted to know how many tickets were given for speeding and for unnecessary vehicular noise by city police in 1968. The answer stated no breakdown of such figures was available.

Figures supplied today by the city police traffic department show 1,461 persons were ticketed for exceeding 30 mph and 122 for exceeding 20 mph. A total of 190 tickets were issued for unnecessary noise, which includes 57 for squealing tires and 133 for inadequate mufflers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

The Search Is On For Old-Style Pins

By PENNY SAVER

"Have you seen any old-fashioned wooden clothes-pins for sale lately?" asked my caller. "You know, the ones that can be made into dolls." I had just opened my mouth for a confident "Oh yes, you'll find those at . . ." but her last sentence stopped me. I haven't seen any really old-fashioned clothes-pins for years—so many years that I can't recall the last time I saw one just lying around looking dry and splintered, much less looking clean and new in a store display. "I've been looking for five or six years and I must have covered every store in town, including the second hand stores," she went on. "All the children's books have instructions for making dolls and such out of them still and children could get hours of fun out of playing with them—if they could only be bought." So there is the question of the week: Where can one buy old-fashioned bell-shaped wooden clothes-pins suitable for making into dolls?

A critic of conventional teaching methods once said that if children were taught to speak the way they were taught to read many would stay silent all their lives. This is an interesting statement and one I suspect is true though I am at a loss to suggest how children could be exposed to type in such a way as to teach them to read the way they learn to speak. Television might be the answer, but the programming would have to be universal and inescapable to achieve the saturation of the spoken word and the result would almost certainly be adult insanity. In the meantime, however, one can always try a bit of insidious exposure in the form of teaching jigsaws.

Name and Picture

I haven't actually tried these teaching jigsaws, and jigsaws aren't the sort of thing one experiments with in a store, so all I know is what I could learn from the package labels. These 10 by six inch puzzles are made with large interlocking pieces suitable for a young child. Each puzzle when it is put together presents a picture and the name of the item pictured so the child will easily connect the two. For example in the circus set there is a clown with his name, a circus wagon clearly labelled "wagon" and so forth for some 12 puzzles (according to the box.) One set containing 13 puzzles shows various birds and gives their names. Another set, for even younger children teaches the ABC's and numbers. This last set I gather uses a train to keep the child's interest and illustrate the different numbers. It contains two puzzles. One of the nicest things about these puzzles was the price—98 cents a box.

Wedges do a good job of holding a door open—provided someone doesn't accidentally kick them out of place. For 75 cents the average householder can buy one of those metal door holders with a non-slip rubber "foot." Made of a coppery-colored metal, this holder can be folded up out of the way when one wants the door closed then kicked into holding position when an open door is required. This unit comes complete with screws.

If you would like to know where to find these items please call 382-3131 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Fashions Are Similar In Most Big Cities

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Q: I am going to England by plane early in April, with an additional stop in Paris. I have a spring coat, water-repellent, and a winter coat. Which should I take? Would suits or dresses be better for the weather at that time? Should accessories be black, brown or in light colors?

A: April in both London and Paris can be very changeable, both in temperature and rain. If the spring coat has no extra liner, be sure to take a sweater jacket, too. Suits would be better than dresses, not only for the weather but also for taking the stress of travel. Accessories can be just what you would wear at home, as there is no fashion difference among the large cities today.

Q: I have been thinking of buying one of the new furs, such as a kit fox or guanaco, or mink paws. I know nothing about these furs, and wonder if you could tell me which is the best value. I'm thinking of paying about $600 for a coat.

A: All fluffy, long-haired furs wear less well than the flat or dense furs. However, if the fur chosen is of the best quality and is well cared for, it need not wear too fast. Best way to get quality is to buy from a reliable department store or local furrier, who will stand behind the furs they sell. Remember, too, that the best grade of a less expensive fur is better than a cheap grade of an expensive fur.

Q. I like the coat and dress look, but I can't afford to buy a coat for each dress. So if I buy one coat for spring, what would be the best choice to go with several dresses? I thought of navy, but I've had that for several springs.

A. Plaids and checks are newer and smarter than solid colors in coats. You can co-ordinate much better with them, too, than with a single solid color. For example, a plaid or check in the currently favored red, white and blue gives you three colors in which to buy solid color dresses, all of which will look as if they were bought with that coat.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Slow' Grandpa Gets Denture Tips

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My sympathy to Grandpa, who complained because it took him so long to eat he couldn't carry on a dinner table conversation with the others.

There is nothing that will drive a man to distraction quicker than ill-fitting dentures. Sending him back to his dentist won't help. What Grandpa needs is a supply of thermaplastic material that will enable him to eat like a horse and talk as much as Hubert Humphrey at the same time.

TOOTHLESS BUT HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: Clinical tests have proven that patients lose approximately 75 per cent of their chewing ability when they get false teeth.

For every person who says his dentures are "like his own teeth" there are 100 who wish they had their own teeth back.

Dentists do not like to see their patients lose their natural teeth, but there is usually no choice. Patients, after neglecting their mouths for 10, 15 and 20 years, will come to a dentist and ask him to try to "save" their teeth. This, of course, is impossible.

And while I'm on the subject, may I use your vast readership to implore people to take care of their teeth. No dentures will ever replace them.

D.M., DDS
BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Almost without exception I agree with you, but in the case of Grandpa, I feel a bit more information on your part is called for. It is obvious that you don't wear dentures, Abby.

May I suggest that all new denture wearers take smaller bites, chew more slowly, and distribute the food equally on both sides of the mouth to stabilize the dentures.

If they practice between meals with raisins, it will help. These hints and lots of patience may do the trick. If that doesn't work, then your advice to "put the bite on the dentist for a better fit" is in order. Yours very truly,

C.W.F. Jr., DDS
SHREVEPORT, LA.

DEAR ABBY: I read your advice to the denture patient, and I must say that you sure did put your foot in it.

I have practised dentistry for more years than you are old and can tell you that no denture patient can eat as fast with "store-bought" teeth as he could with his own.

Also, there are any number of denture wearers who, because of the anatomy of their mouths, or their inability to adjust to new situations, cannot get a better "fit" no matter how hard the dentist tries.

OLD PRO

DEAR "PRO": All right, I'll take 10 lashes with 40 yards of dental floss, and next time when I comes to "dentistry," I'll keep my unprofessional mouth shut.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. Are there any foods that will make me grow taller?

A. There are no special foods which are stimulating to growth. A person's height is more or less set by inheritance. However, years of consuming an inadequate diet may curb your natural tendency and cause you to stop short of your potential. A good health regime with the right foods, exercise and enough rest, will help you reach your potential height.

Lowman

Q. I have bitten my nails for years, almost down to the quick' I am always chewing on them. You probably guess that I am a teen-ager but I am not. I am 35 years old. I have tried hard to stop, but I do this without realizing what I am doing, It is such a habit! Please help me. I am embarrassed by my nails, or lack of nails, I should say.

A. Have you tried applying one of the bitter tasting products (formulated for this purpose) to the tips of your fingers? This would remind you. Also, if you have enough nail to make it possible, have a manicure regularly. You will dislike spoiling the improvement in appearance and will not want to waste your money. False fingernails are a help to many women. One type acts like a shield over the entire nail to protect it while it grows out.

Q. I cannot decide whether or not to massage my face. I read one thing and then another. Some say it is good and some say it is bad. I want to stay young looking for as long as I can. What is your opinion?

A. Massage increases circulation in the face. However, you can do this by lying down with your head lower than your feet or by doing facial exercises. I think that vigorous massage may stretch the skin and speed the loss of fatty deposits between the skin and the muscles. It is my opinion that the face should be treated gently.

Fashion Show Proceeds For Medical Research

Fashion stepped forward to help arthritics recently when the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held a fashion show and tea in the Victoria Room of Eaton's Thursday afternoon and evening.

Proceeds from the event were $300 and will be used toward research, treatment and rehabilitation of arthritic patients.

Mrs. Donald Brothers, wife of the minister of education, accompanied Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, who opened the afternoon showing. Joining them at the head table were the auxiliary's president, Mrs. N. B. Fatt, Mrs. Evan Jones, representing the board; Mrs. J. Owen Jones, honorary second vice-president; Mrs. George Steele, first vice-president and Mrs. F. G. Baxter, chief physiotherapist at the Gorge Road Clinic.

Two auxiliary members, Jennie Bowering and Betty Moore, joined Eaton's models, Kip Wallis, Sandra Hoey, Penny Mayse, Gail Hansen, Jackie Fayad and Margaret Smith, in showing the fashions, all of which were provided by Eaton's. Helen Beirnes was commentator.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MAPLE CREAM

One cup maple syrup; 2 cups sugar; ¾ cup whipping cream, ¼ cup milk.

Combine all ingredients. Stir over low heat until sugar is melted. Cover until mixture boils (this helps prevent sugar from crystallizing on sides of pan). Uncover and boil without stirring to 237 degrees F, or until a little of the syrup forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Cool until mixture is 170 degrees F, or bottom of pan feels slightly warm. Beat until creamy. Pour into buttered pan. When firm, cut in squares.

Auxiliary Lunch

A smorgasbord luncheon will be sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children, Wednesday from 11:30 to 1:30 p.m.

The luncheon will be held at the Royal Canadian Legion hall at Blanshard and Cormorant.

Margaret Atwood: The Poet as Person

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

A Canada Council Grant means that for a year Ottawa-born Margaret Atwood can work full time at being a writer. She arrived in Victoria Wednesday and read Thursday at the University of Victoria. She will give another public reading of her poetry tonight at 9:15 at Ivy's Bookstore in Oak Bay before leaving for Vancouver. (Photo by Bill Halkett)

"Someday," said Margaret Atwood as she began to make leaving motions," I am going to write an interview of an interviewer—'I notice, Mrs. Bennett, that you aren't wearing any make-up. Do you consider yourself feminine?' "

Margaret Atwood is a poet.

Poets, especially good ones, as she is, are rare creatures at best and rarer still when they are Canadian-born and female.

Rare creatures of any kind attract interviewers, and Margaret Atwood is no exception.

"Some interviewers start from the premise that if you write poetry, you must be a nut and it's their duty to ferret out the way in which you are nutty. If they can't get you to admit you are nutty, they slant the story so you seem that way."

Margaret Atwood is not a nut. Nor is she, to meet and talk with, "the quiet Mata Hari, the mysterious violent figure ... who pits herself against the ordered, too-clean world like an arsonist." (Michael Odnaatje in Canadian Forum).

Perhaps her poetry is pitted "against the ordered, too-clean world" but is the poetry the poet?

Stupid Questions

"One of the stupid questions," (She can list many stupid questions often asked of poets)" is 'Who is your favorite Canadian poet?' I try to explain that I may like a poet for himself, and that I may like some of his poems, but not necessarily all. I think I have explained it clearly but in one interview it came out as 'She doesn't think much of Canadian poets.'

"It doesn't really matter, but that will get into someone's files and the next person who comes to talk to me may have read it."

Margaret Atwood has made it, poet style.

She has a PhD from Harvard, which she took because she realized when teaching at the University of British Columbia (while her first book of poetry "The Circle Game" was being compiled) that without it she would never get far as a university teacher.

Now with two books of poetry, a Governor-General's award and a Canada Council grant, she doesn't need it.

"I have been given a Canada Council senior arts grant. This means they give you the money on the understanding that you will do your thing, whatever it is, for a year—as if you wouldn't do it anyway. I want to finish two novels. One, "The Edible Woman" will be coming out in the fall, as will my next book of poetry, "The Journals of Susannah Moodie."

This last, she explained, really did stem from a dream in which she saw that 19th century writer and Canadian pioneer.

But how, to ask one of those trite, often-asked questions, did she come to be a poet?

"I wrote my first book of poems when I was five, but I did it backwards. That is, I made a booklet, drew the cover then wrote in the poems until there no more pages."

Her father was a forest entymologist who spent much of the year in the woods of northern Quebec and Ontario doing things forest entymologists do.

As a result Margaret didn't spend a full year at school until she was in the sixth grade. She thinks this may have kept her and her older brother from becoming "processed."

"My brother and I had an imaginary country populated, as I remember, with humanoid rabbits. These were flying rabbits with capes—you see, we knew about comic books—and they lived on a planet that had a satellite attached to it by a chain.

"This satellite was called Blueberry Land and when you wanted blueberries you just climbed the chain. The rabbits were probably because we had some rabbits—not real ones but stuffed."

Wrote Stories

A space-age Christopher Robin—nothing too unusual about that. But Margaret and her brother didn't confine their fantasy world to interior musing. When one of them made up a story he would write it down then give it to the other to read.

"My brother's stories always involved wars," she went on. "He had three rabbits who were all twins, and one was the king. They were always fighting the foxes. My stories were much more pastoral, much duller."

Thence follows the parade of schools and places beloved of dust-cover biographies: BA from University of Toronto, Victoria College; Northrop Frye, during a counselling session, suggests graduate work would be more condusive to writing than working as a waitress in England so she goes to Radcliffe for her AM (otherwise known as MA); Radcliffe and Harvard unite graduate schools so she takes a year or so of PhD work at Harvard then returns to "an idiot job" in Toronto; travel in England and France; back to Canada and UBC then to Harvard again to finish her PhD; marriage; teaching at Sir George Williams in Montreal while her husband finished his PhD, and now Edmonton, and the Canada Council grant.

Learn at Home

And in that time two books of poetry (The Animals of that Country was published last year) with two books to come.

Margaret Atwood, person, buttons her cape and hurries off to a luncheon date.

The interviewer watches her slight form disappear into the distance and remembers the only advice Margaret Atwood, writer and professor of English, could give the would-be writer.

"I think a person learns to write when he learns to talk—at home. School may codify his use of language but that is all it can do."

Cartoon Characters Peer Down From Walls in Pediatrics Ward

VANCOUVER (CP) — All the equipment in the world is only as important as the way of a nurse with sick children, says Dr. Dennis Vince, head of pediatrics at Vancouver General Hospital.

Dr. Vince and Dr. B. C. Boulter work with two nurses, Kuni Tanii and Moira Muir, in the new pediatric cardiology department.

The laboratory where tests are carried out gleams with new equipment. It could easily frighten young children, but the staff has made great efforts to make it more approachable.

Snoopy and Charlie Brown cartoons decorate the walls and Donald Duck peers down from the X-ray machine.

Miss Tanii says she likes to go to the children's homes, before they come in for tests, to answer any questions the children or parents may have.

"This means that when they come to the hospital there is at least one face to recognize — one friend — and things don't seem too strange," said Miss Tanii.

She thinks the most important thing is that there is no rush. The child never goes straight into the lab, unless in an emergency, but instead spends some time with the nurse looking at pictures before being taken into the lab for tests.

Dr. Boulter said the adult cardiology department deals with people who have acquired heart difficulties. The pediatric unit deals with children who are born with heart complications. The procedure involves placing the child under anesthetic and then running a catheter through the arm into the vein.

Dye is pumped in and this shows where the trouble is. This may be anything from a hole in the heart to too narrow a passageway between the heart and the lungs.

If complications are detected early enough, the child has an excellent chance of leading a normal life, Dr. Boulter said. He said this is where the catheterization operation is so important.

He said it is equally important that a child should go through the operation without fear. This is where the nurses shine.

Miss Tanii, a graduate of Vancouver General, says she enjoys working with children and sympathizes with their feelings about strange equipment.

"On my first day in the lab I was terrified with all those machines around, so I know how the children feel."

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The bidding of today's hand would be reasonable by modern standards. Perhaps North would jump to six clubs or try Blackwood but the six-club contract would be reached as it was by both sides in a 1930 team game after identical bidding.

One declarer received a diamond opening and had no trouble making seven because he trump-finessed both the ace and queen of diamonds with no difficulty.

A spade was opened at the other table and that South player tried to make his contract by attacking hearts. The bad heart break led to his defeat because West played low on the third heart and East overruffed dummy.

The 1930 analysis was interesting but incorrect. It was that South should have attacked diamonds since he would make his contract if East held one of the two diamond honors. That was a 75 per cent chance and a pretty good one but it was not as good as the actual play and our sympathy goes out to the unfortunate player who went after the hearts.

His line of play was going to work against any 4-3 break in hearts. This was a 62 per cent chance as a starter. Then if hearts broke 5-2 he would still make it unless both the king and jack were going to show up in the long hand. This represented an extra 16 per cent chance for a total of 78 per cent. In addition, he might make it against certain 6-1 breaks.

Of course, we have not considered what would happen if clubs broke 4-0, since either line of play might well fail against that eventuality. All we want to point out is that this was one hand where either line deserved success, with the attack in hearts being slightly better.

PRICES ARE TERRIBLE AREN'T THEY?

It's getting so that a man with a REALLY BIG family just can't buy a home that he can afford unless the kids share bedrooms and line up at the ONE bathroom to wait their turn. But once again that man DON BACON has come up with the answer. At 1631 Kings Road there is a stucco home with SIX BEDROOMS and TWO BATHROOMS at a price you CAN afford. The bedrooms aren't big mind you, but there ARE six of them. There is also a DEN and a LARGE FAMILY dining room. Big laundry room ON THE MAIN FLOOR to save mother steps. The lot is rather narrow (meaning low taxes), but it goes back 130 feet, so that there is ample place for small children to play. Fruit trees, too. Two blocks to OAKLAND SCHOOL, and walking distance to Lansdowne Jr. High. Full basement with workshop for dad. Rewired and OOM heat. Can you imagine getting all this for only $18,900? The line forms on the right for appointments to view. Call DON BACON, 385-2458.

Sidney, Swartz Bay Best for Hovercraft Curtis Tells Chamber

A hovercraft terminal should be located at Sidney or Swartz Bay, Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich said Thursday night.

He said the only contact between himself and the company has been by letter and phone.

"It's up to Pacific Hovercraft Ltd. to make the next move," he said at a meeting of the Saanich Chamber of Commerce in the Red Lion Motor Inn.

He said as soon as Oak Bay council rejected the Pacific Hovercraft application for landing facilities he told the company he was willing to discuss the question.

"Let's forget the errors made so far and make damed sure we get a hovercraft."

He said the Inner Harbor is an unlikely site for a terminal because Pacific Hovercraft does not like the prospect of a longer trip around the sothern tip of the Island to downtown Victoria.

He also rejected Cordova Bay as a possible terminal because it is a residential area.

That leaves Sidney or Swartz Bay as the only other commercial harbor areas with direct access by highway. The fact both places lie outside his municipality dowen't bother the mayor.

"I'm not interested in being parochial about the thing," he said today. "I think we shoud look at it from a regional point-of-view."

Earlier in the chamber meeting Nanaimo mayor Frank Ney disputed claims the hovercraft is unbearably noisy. He called it "the sound of progress."

"It's amazing that a new means of transportation, developed in Britain of all places should be rejected by Oak Bay, the last bastion of Britain here," he said.

"I understand people in British Properties (a West Vancouver suburb) find it a bit noisy. My advice to them is that they double their martinis."

He said there have been no complaints in Nanaimo from the sound of the hovercraft entering and leaving the harbor on its new daily service which has been in effect one month.

'WE LOVE IT'

"It's here to stay—we love it."

The sound of a hovercraft is no different from the sound of an aircraft, he said. Both are powered by the same kind of engine.

He urged the Chamber to think of the hovercraft as a boost to the tourist industry.

"We have to give these people every type of transportation available."

Pacific Hovercraft president Barry Jones, contacted in Vancouver today, declined to comment on Mayor Curtis' remarks.

Asked if the company planned to apply for a landing site in Saanich, he replied:

"We're working on it."

NO APPLICATION

Sidney mayor A. W. Freeman said his council has not received an application from the company.

"They have written to me explaining the problems they have had and asking if they can demonstrate the craft at Sidney," he said.

"We have accepted their offer to demonstrate the model to interested parties in the area."

The hovercraft will visit Sidney at 11 a.m., April 13, and 50-60 persons including the mayor will have an opportunity to ride on it.

"I intend to invite as many people as possible as a cross-section of the community to observe operation of the craft," he said.

Regional Strength Said Rising

The growing strength of regional districts in the provincial political field was outlined Thursday night by Mayor Ray Bryant of Esquimalt.

Part of a panel of four speakers addressing a public meeting sponsored by the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, Bryant noted that the Capital Regional District and the Greater Vancouver Regional District are represented in the legislature by 28 MLAs.

That representation, he said, is more than 50 per cent of the total representation in the house.

"We'll make this important in the area of hospitals, "Bryant said. "When the health minister realizes we have an indirect contact with such a large group, it certainly carries more weight than the mayor of Surrey, for example, going to see him alone."

Other speakers on the panel moderated by architect John Di Castri were J. Everett Brown, deputy minister of municipal affairs; William Long, executive director of the regional district, and Geoff Greenhalgh, Victoria city planner.

Brown said the automobile had obliterated the old socialogical boundaries which kept neighboring municipalities apart.

Long outlined the boundaries of the new regional district — 900 square miles stretching from Port Renfrew to Sidney and containing 194,000 people. The board consists of 18 members.

Greenhalgh again stressed the need for public money to be spent wisely to encourage private development.

The meeting was the first in a series sponsored by the VCPAC to examine regional district government.

Hairspray Can Fires Automobile

A harmless looking can of hairspray left exposed in a car may just have the potential of a dynamite bomb.

Just ask Mrs. Corynne Goodman, of 617 Kildew.

Tuesday noon before going into a Saanich bowling alley on Tolmie Ave., she gave her hair a quick spray with the inflammable material and left it on the front seat.

Shortly afterward someone yelled fire and she discovered her 1963 model car was engulfed in flames.

Fire officials told her the heat of the sun through the windshield of the vehicle caused the pressurized can to explode setting off the blaze which gutted the inside.

No one was in it when the explosion occurred.

Good Returns From Easter Envelopes

Opening an estimated 4,000 Easter Seal envelopes Thursday netted $9,750, Ray St. Dennis, executive secretary of the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation, reported today.

Now into its third week, the campaign will run until April 6.

St. Dennis said envelopes to the fund were "coming in rapidly," but expected a big rush after Easter.

The Easter Seal Parade will be held Saturday, with the start scheduled for 10:15 a.m. from the Vernon Ave. health centre.

When the motorcade reaches the Shelbourne Plaza the Chinatown Drum and Bell Corps will put on a demonstration. The parade will return downtown and continue to Esquimalt to finish at the Sports Centre.

Funds raised in the Easter Seal campaign will be used to finance summer camps, swimming programs and the Easter Seal transportation system, now comprised of 27 buses used daily by 800 handicapped persons in Vancouver and Victoria.

This year's target is $150,000 throughout B.C.

Mortgage Rates Likely To Hold at Record Level

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — Mortgage interest rates should hold this spring at current record heights under a government formula that sets a quarterly maximum rate on government-insured housing loans.

The National Housing Act maximum, which tends to govern all mortgage interest, should stay at the current 9⅜ per cent when the rate for the next quarter year is announced April 1, although it is only a whisker away from moving up to 9½ per cent by the formula.

Although the NHA maximum on first mortgages has been at its present historic high since Jan. 1, major institutions offering government-insured mortgages have been lending mainly at nine per cent. The rate on non-NHA conventional mortgages for existing houses has been 9½ per cent.

Under pressure from rising yields in the money market, going rates on mortgages could edge upwards within one-quarter of one per cent.

Generally, only persons buying a house or home-owners borrowing new funds through a mortgage loan are affected by a shift in mortgage interest rates.

The interest would not change on mortgages with time to go before the repayment term expires.

MAKES BIG DIFFERENCE

Even a narrow shift in mortgage interest rates can cause an important change in the cost of buying a home. An increase of one per cent would add more than $9 to the monthly payment on a 25-year mortgage of $15,000. It would put more than $2,800 on the cost over the life of the mortgage.

Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, responsible for federal housing policy, has recommended freeing the NHA maximum interest rate from the present quarterly formula in the hope that market forces might tend to lower all mortgage rates.

Such action would require an amendment to the housing act. It is expected to be included in policy to be announced shortly by Mr. Hellyer.

The interest-fixing formula, defined in the housing act, sets the maximum each quarter 2¼ percentage points above the prevailing yield on long-term government bonds.

The prevailing bond yield is taken as the average during the four weeks preceding each quarterly interest fixing. After adding 2¼, the maximum NHA mortgage interest then is rounded downwards to the nearest one-eighth of one percentage point.

With a slight decline this week in the long-term bond yield, the March average works out at 7.2425 per cent, which would make the formula mortgage rate a shade under 9½. Rounding down would leave it at 9⅜ per cent, saving spring home-buyers one dollar or so on monthly mortgage payments, perhaps $300 in the next 25 years.

HOUSEWIVES MAN THE TAX COMPUTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of Ottawa housewives are nosing into the financial affairs of Canadians at a record rate.

The women form part of a specially trained corps of seasonal clerks at the national revenue centre's taxation data centre.

With a month to go to the April 30 deadline for annual income-tax returns, the part-time reinforcements have raised the work force at the centre to 3,000.

Their job is to feed a computer that can swallow tax data at a rate of up to 125,000 individual returns a day, check and record the information and inform the housewives of any errors.

The computer in turn keeps the housewives and other part-time workers hopping at a pace in which one person can solve up to 300 return errors a day.

The wives earn up to $263 a month for day work, $131.50 for evenings.

The combined efforts of the computer and its part-time servants are producing spectacular results compared with past years.

By early this week, the taxation centre had received about 3,7776,000 of the expected ultimate total of 8,500,000 separate tax returns. Last year at the same time, the total received was 3,099,000.

But the number processed at this week's count was 1,108,562, whereas the number processed at this time a year ago was a negligible 2,480.

A major proportion of the early returns, as usual, have refund claims. The late-comers often owe the government money. By this week, 986,735 refunds had been issued against only 2,177 at the same time a year earlier.

MONTREAL AIRPORT SITE SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government finally announced Thursday where the new Montreal international airport will be located—and the Quebec government lost no time in criticizing the decision.

After several weeks of delay, due in part to differences with the provincial government, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer said the airport will be built in the vicinity of St. Scholastique, 26 miles northwest of the junction of the Laurentian and Metropolitan expressways in the north end of Montreal.

The federal government thus rejected the urgings of Quebec that the airport be built in the Eastern Townships, east of Montreal, where the province is anxious to promote industrial development.

Within an hour of Mr. Hellyer's announcement in the Commons, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said in the Quebec national assembly that the federal decision "goes totally against the wishes and desires expressed by the Quebec government and a very large part of the public."

Mr. Hellyer said construction of the Montreal airport will begin next year and should be completed in 1974.

GIVES COST ESTIMATE

Estimated cost, up to the time of opening, is $291,000,000, including approach roads and terminal facilities.

The existing international airport at Dorval, in the west end of Montreal Island, will be retained for domestic traffic.

The two airports will be 17 miles apart, a distance which, it is felt, won't make flight transfers inconvenient.

In order to prevent a commercial or residential buildup around the new airport, the federal government will acquire 55,000 acres of land for it, Mr. Hellyer said. None of it had yet been bought.

The Dorval airport area, now hemmed in by urban growth, covers only 3,500 acres.

The transport minister said the airport will be able to handle all planes now flying or on the drawing boards, including supersonic and jumbo jets.

Supersonic planes using the airport would not be allowed to fly over Montreal because of sonic booms.

Graphic Arts 'Cry for Help' Over Postal Rates Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans suggested Thursday night that printers and publishers opposing postal rate increases want to "dip into the pockets of the Canadian taxpayer."

In a Commons adjournment debate, he rejected as "exaggerated" fears expressed by Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) over effects of the increases on printers and publishers.

Mr. Macquarrie reported a "cry for help" from the graphic arts industry, which protested the rate increases in a brief last week to Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

The Prince Edward Island MP cited reports of publications dying or reducing their issues and said a decline in the printing industry would harm other industries as well.

"The communication of ideas from Canadians to Canadians is in jeopardy."

Some trade union publications had declared their intention of printing in the United States and mailing from there to Canadians.

The War Amputees Association program of sending out licence tags would cost $90,000 more under the new rates, and the future of 42 amputees was jeopardized.

Mr. Kierans said members of the graphic arts industry charge their costs to clients and add something for profit.

"All of these people think they have a particular right to dip into the pockets of the Canadian taxpayer," he said.

They preferred that the subsidies be hidden through lower postal rates.

The taxpayer is vulnerable because he is not organized like the graphic arts or publishing industry, Mr. Kierans said.

A 10-per-cent increase in direct mail was expected next year despite the rates increase.

He said Mr. Macquarrie is really asking him to accept another post office deficit of up to $40,000,000, and this would mean that some other program would have to be cut.

TREE-FATALITY RULED ACCIDENT

A coroner's jury Thursday night ruled a 66-year-old man died accidentally when struck by the top of a falling tree March 21.

James McEwan Begg, of 1061 Richmond, gardener for Esquimalt, was a member of a work crew engaged in topping an arbutus tree in Saxe Point Park. He was to retire in May.

The jury also added as a rider to its verdict that in future al logging type operations in the municipality should be carried on by experienced men.

Work crew foreman, Thomas Corbett, 519 Lampson, told the jury the lower part of the 80 feet high tree fell when cut through but the top 50 feet snagged and remained upright.

A rope was attached to it and the four man crew pulled to dislodge it, he said. As it fell Begg followed another workman ahead of the tree and was hit.

"I feel Mr. Begg ran the wrong way," said Corbett.

Dr. Bruce Hay, a pathologist, said cause of death was a crushed chest which resulted in a ruptured heart.

QUEBEC PICKS ITS FIRST OMBUDSMAN

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly voted unanimously Thursday to name lawyer Louis Marceau of Quebec City as Quebec's first ombudsman or public protector.

Marceau, 42-year-old dean of law at Laval University, will get a salary of $30,000 a year to handle complaints against government administration.

Student Senator Seeks Showdown

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Simon Fraser University student senator says he hopes to mobilize students for a showdown with the administration over opening senate meetings to the public.

John Conway issued the warning after the senate Wednesday night voted 19-4 against leaving its meetings open to students and the public.

ENFORCE POLICY

Under the new ground rules, only accredited reporters would be allowed into senate sessions.

"It's one thing to pass a policy and another to enforce it," Mr. Conway said following a senate session punctuated with catcalls, shouts and applause from 100 students.

"Either the senate will have to arrest us or expel us from the senate," he said. "The issue is not negotiable."

Mr. Conway said the next senate meeting is scheduled for April 8 and "we will attempt to mobilize students to come to the meeting."

Two other student senators, Donn Korbin and Stan Wong, and Professor G. B. Sterling, dissented with Mr. Conway from the senate's closed-meeting decision.

The three-day occupation of SFU's administration building in th Vancouver suburb of Burnaby followed a similarly stormy senate session over admission procedures last November.

Dr. Klaus Rieckhoff, faculty senator from the physics department and head of a committee which drew up the changes, said the senate had been prevented in the past from enforcing rules for public attendance in meetings and consequently suffered a "deterioration" in its ability to function.

MINORITY GROUPS

He said the situation was "partly due to the action of minority groups and partly due to the lack of discipline and consideration of others."

He said it was common knowledge "this disregard for its rules has led to a most serious deterioration of senate's abilities to perform its duties and to conduct its business effectively and intelligently."

Before the Magistrate

An American who said he was emulating Johnny Appleseed in bringing marijuana seeds to Canada for cultivation was sentenced Thursday to five months in jail.

David E. Pollard, 19, of Seattle, pleaded guilty to possession of the drug earlier this month.

Magistrate William Ostler said he realized the youth's intent in coming to the country was "to do his own thing so to speak."

He said Canada is a hospitable land but "this does not extend to persons who come to cultivate narcotics."

He said Pollard would only harvest trouble.

Crown prosecutor Edward Pollard had suggested a jail sentence as a deterrent to keeping "these type of people out of the country."

The youth was arrested as he got off the boat at the Black Ball ferry wharf.

Johnny Appleseed was a pioneer figure who travelled parts of the U.S. planting apple trees.

William J. Yahno, 20, of 210 Gorge, pleaded guilty to four charges of robbing Saanich homes and one of causing someone to utter a forged cheque.

Earlier this week he pleaded guilty to several other charges of breaking and entering. He will be sentenced April 2.

Det. Frank Briers said Yahno broke into the homes between Feb. 18 and March 6, stealing a total of $122 from wallets.

He took a cheque worth $111.20 from one house and gave a friend $20 to cash it for him. In each case Det. Briers said Yahno waited until the occupant of the house was in the yard and he could enter the house undetected.

Richard McPhail, 1634 Pembroke, and Stephen Bapty, 912 Deal, each were fined $300 for impaired driving. Albert Clare, 411 Marigold, was fined $150 for driving while under suspension.

$70,000 In Stocks Returned

More than $70,00 in stocks reported to police earlier this week as missing have been returned to their owner, 90-year-old Morton Dyrland.

Dyrland reported them missing after moving his belongings from 315 Michigan to a city hotel.

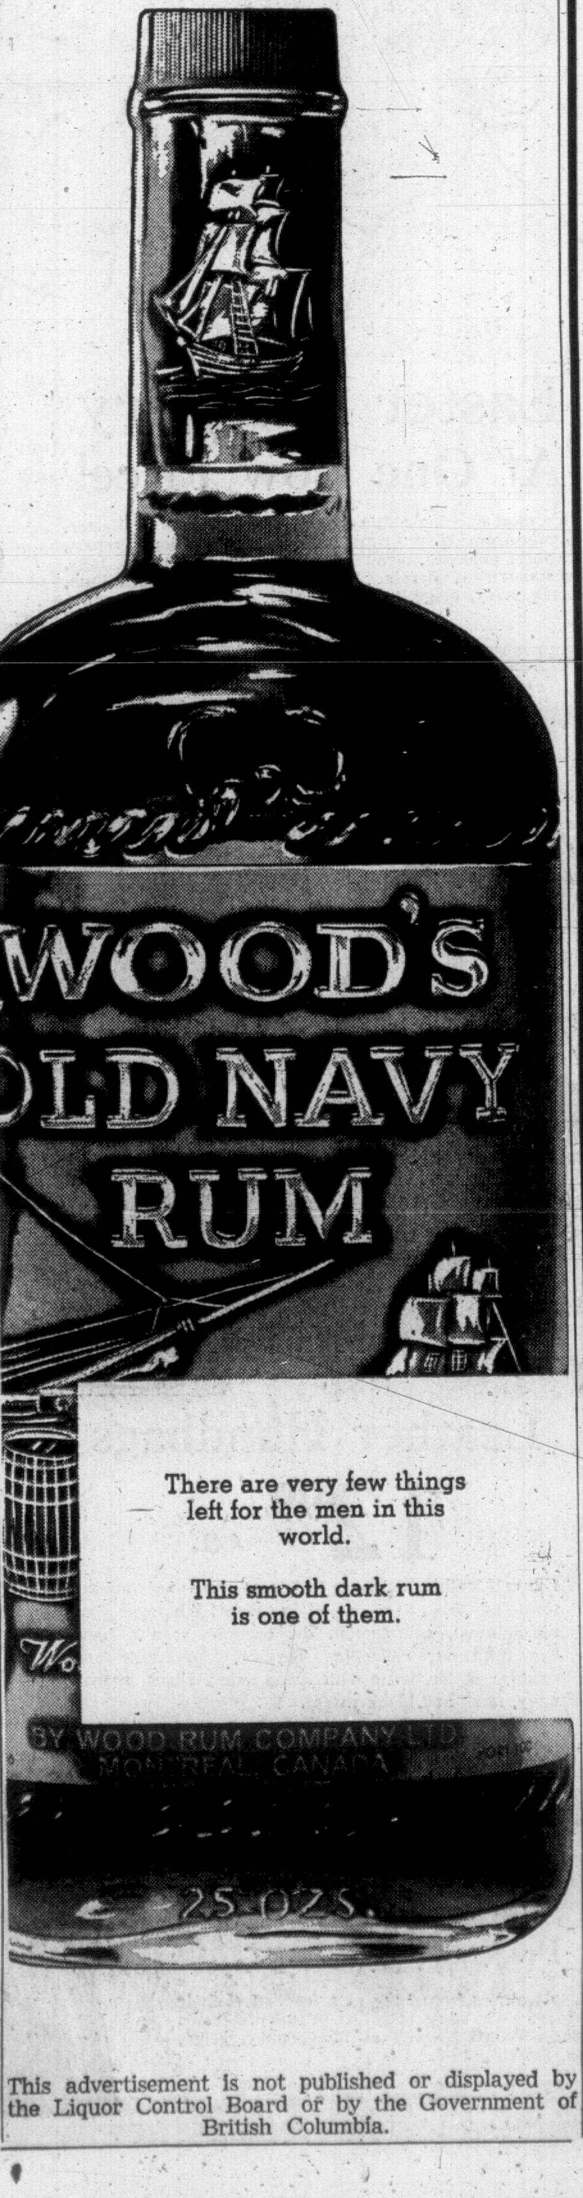
Police said $72,350 worth of securities were found in five envelopes in a cardboard box in a lean-to at the rear of the Michigan street address. A trucking employee, George McKay, of 2658 Quadra, found them and turned them over to police.

The stocks were earlier reported to be in a black strong box, which also contained about $300 cash. The box and the money are still missing, police said.

Beach Trip For Juniors

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a beach exploration trip to south Taylor Beach, Metchosin.

Conducted trail walks will be given at Francis Park on Sunday, at 10:30 a.m. and at 2:30 p.m.



There are very few things left for the men in this world.

This smooth dark rum is one of them.

Following the Footsteps Of Mighty Hadrosaurus

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This week I went on a safari.

What was I hunting?

A hadrosaurus. That's a dinosaur to most of us.

Actually it would be more correct to say I was looking for evidence that hadrosauridus once roamed the northern parts of British Columbia.

Forbes

I found that proof in a wooden box, housed temporarily in a corner of a shed at the provincial highways maintenance yard near Langford.

My guide was Bob Hogan from the maintenance shop at the legislative buildings. We were assisted by apprentice Harold Hartshorne.

They opened the box for me and shone a light down on a huge piece of rock.

Right in the middle of the rock face was the imprint of a foot that could have belonged to no less a creature than a dinosaur. Or, if you'd rather a hadrosaurus.

★ ★ ★

This footprint and others like it were found in the Peace River Canyon during construction of the Bennett Dam

Some had to be destroyed as the dam progressed — but only after impressions were taken and molds made.

One set of replicas from the molds are now in the small museum at the dam. Another set is in Ottawa.

The specimen I saw is an original.

Through combined efforts of the provincial public works department, the B.C. Hydro and men working on the dam, it was carefully quarried out of the canyon wall, treated to preserve its brittle shale base from further disintegration, enclosed in a frame of concrete and shipped to Victoria.

Soon it will be on display in the new museum and you'll see a replica in the centre of an imaginative garden featuring British Columbia rocks now in the making at the Belleville Street entrance to the museum.

★ ★ ★

This footprint is shaped like a tremendous ivy leaf. It has the same pointed outline and the impressions include vein-like lines something like such a leaf.

The treatment it has received makes the rock shine like new mined coal. Rough measurements, taken by Harold Hartshorne, showed the imprint to be about 24 inches long and nearly 21 inches across.

When we came in from Langford, I visited Dr. Clifford Carl in the new museum.

He told me that it's been known for some time that millions of years ago dinosaurs roamed the Peace River country. And he cited an instance where a series of footprints, observed from a small plane flying low in the canyon were so real it was almost impossible to believe the creature that made them would not appear around the next bend.

The dinosaurs were of two species, vegetarian hadrosauridas and a carnivorous group with chicken-like footprints ending in thin toes and fairly sharp claws.

★ ★ ★

When the footprints were made it would be in a kind of mud and slime. This hardened into shale and finally into a rock that preserved them.

While footprints have been discovered in the Peace River Canyon, so far no dinosaur remains have been found.

No one is sure why this. Although Dr. Carl told me there is a theory that the mud wallows frequented by such creatures (unlike those at Drumheller, Alta.) may not have had the necessary preservative qualities. If dinosaurs were caught and died in them, the bones may have quickly disintegrated.

Speaking of the molds made from footprints at the dam, he said the process used and the results obtainable, make it almost impossible even for an expert to detect deviations from the real thing.

In a few weeks you'll be able to judge for yourself. A replica of the one I hunted down at Langford will be set up in the new Belleville Street garden of the rocks. And the original will soon be on display somewhere in the museum.

FOREST CUTTING

Good forest management involves planning so that the total growth on a large area of timber balances the volume removed in small sections of that area. In general terms, the area which is logged each year is surrounded by a much larger region—up to 100 times greater in extent—on which the growth on living trees balances the volume removed annually within the management unit.

NIXON SETS UP STUDY TO ELIMINATE DRAFT

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—President Nixon Thursday created a 15-man commission to develop a plan to eliminate the draft and turn the U.S. armed forces into an all-volunteer force. He ordered the commission to submit its report to him by November.

Give NATO 5 Years—PC

BRANDON (CP) — Robert Thompson, Conservative MP for Red Deer, says Canada should remain in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization because it is the cheapest peace-keeping organization available.

Thompson, former national leader of the Social Credit party, said it will take at least five years for equipment now used by Canadian armed forces to wear out.

He said it would be financially feasible for Canada to re-equip her forces for a different type of role at that time.

Thompson, speaking in an interview, said the only alternative is to drop completely the concept of maintaining an armed force and this would lead to more American influence in Canada.

Thompson was here to speak to the Women's Canadian Club and Brandon University.

MAN'S HOME ROBBED OF VALUABLE CARVINGS

Vancouver Bands Take Over Festival

By PETER LAWSON

Oak Bay Youth Council holds a pops festival concert at Oak Bay High School next Thursday with the Self Portrait, Seeds of Time and the Wiggy Symphony, all of Vancouver.

The dance will be 8 p.m. to midnight with admission of $1.50.

OBYC president Dave Inkster hopes it will be a dance but at past performances by out-of-town bands most people have preferred to listen.

Students of senior high schools will be admitted, along with junior high students holding youth group membership cards.

•

The house band at AJ's, the Gulliver's Travels, is leaving and will be replaced by singer Jerry Bryant sometime in the next three weeks.

Bryant has performed at the Red Lion Inn and apparently produces quite a complete show.

The move to a more sophisticated set indicates the club is trying to discourage under-age patrons from filling the club during peak nights.

Gulliver's Travels will try to stay together, but currently there are no local clubs looking for bands.

•

The battle of the bands held last Friday was won by the Peace Jeep.

Some 1,200 teenagers attended the four-band dance at Central Junior High.

•

John Olson added the Electric Circus to his list of performers at the Forge.

Playing Friday and Saturday nights in the Ore Room, the local group presents a strong rock sound with good stage effects.

•

The Purple Onion beginning tonight will be open both Friday and Saturday evenings.

Boasting a comfortable atmosphere and good variety in their entertainment the Onion apparently is becoming quite popular with dance patrons in the city.

The State of Time plays good dance music with strong instrumentation.

Show Promoter Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Show promoter Harry Mackenzie Hilker, who brought international performers to Vancouver for over 20 years and promoted the 1962 world's fair at Seattle, has died in hospital at the age of 89. Mr. Hilker and his son Gordon were partners in Hilker Attractions, which was responsible for bringing feature entertainers to the city through the 1930s and 1940s.

Envoy Speaks His Mind; Fired

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government today fired a veteran ambassador who wrote in a recently-published book that the Japanese are "childlike" and not much more attractive than pygmies and Hottentots.

A cabinet meeting decided that Ichiro Kawasaki, Japan's envoy to Argentina, will be dismissed because the contentsof the English language book, Japan Unmasked, published four weeks ago, were inappropriate.

Kawasaki, 68, once Japan's delegate to the UN General Assembly wrote in the book:

"There is clearly an absence of leadership at the top and no realization of what is best in the national interest among most politicians. Generally there is a shortage of moral courage and discipline."

Turning his attention to the Japanese themselves, he said they were emotional, childlike, courteous "to the point of being officious" and of "a rather infantile mentality."

He added: "Of all the races in the world, the Japanese are attractive, with the exception of pygmies and Hottentots."

Kawasaki served with the old League of Nations at Geneva, the embassy in London, and Japanese consulates in Vancouver, Shanghai, and Los Angeles.

Protest by Farmers

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—More than 50 tractors wound slowly through the downtown section of this city Thursday in a demonstration aimed at drawing attention to the plight of farmers. The parade, organized by the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union, moved at a walking pace through the city streets and ended in a public meeting.

Couple Die in Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fire claimed the life of an elderly couple Thursday in a blaze that caused extensive damage to a bedroom in their home.

Alberta Health Chief Out Over Medicare?

EDMONTON (CP) — Health Minister J. Donovan Ross was firm Thursday when he told the legislature Alberta will enter the federal medical care plan July 1. But he was vague about his own political future.

Dr. Ross, an admitted opponent of the federal scheme, said in an interview he had made it clear at the Social Credit leadership convention last year that it was "not my desire to remain in public life."

"I believe that with the advent of medicare it would be desirable for a new man to take on the health portfolio."

In announcing the province's entry in the medical-care scheme, Dr. Ross said that in addition to medical services, the proposed plan will include the services of optometrists and chiropractors and dentists "up to certain limits."

The provincial share of the costs will be met by a premium to be set later by a provincial authority.

He said the rates probably would be close to those established in British Columbia and in Manitoba where the plan becomes effective April 1.

"Probably about $60 for a single person and $120 for a couple with a premium rate for families," Dr. Ross said. He did not elaborate on family rates.

Basic rates under the existing Alberta Health Plan are $76 for a single person, $152 for two persons and $200 for three or more persons in a family.

Consideration will be given to people in low-income groups under programs of the welfare department.

WILL HAVE ROLE

Dr. Ross said there will still be a role for Blue Cross and Medical Services Incorporated to provide "a package of options" when medical care becomes a reality.

Commenting outside the house on his own political future, Dr. Ross said he will remain as an MLA "and serve my time out" but will not be averse to accepting the lands and forests portfolio.

He said although the situation "may have had some personal effect on me, it would never force me to resign."

"However it would be desirable for a new man to take on the job and if Premier Strom feels there is some way this can be done, I would go along with any changes he would make."

Premier Strom declined comment on any cabinet shuffle.

DIRECTOR RESIGNS

Meanwhile, the province's decision to join the federal health plan has resulted in the resignation of J. A. D. Paul, director of the Alberta Health Plan.

Dr. Paul, 52, a general practitioner, said Thursday one reason for his decision was a "long-standing serious disagreement with the government's approach to certain aspects of Alberta's entry into medicare."

Dr. Ross said Dr. Paul's resignation had been accepted with regret and that the AHP director deserved a great deal of commendation in working out problems of the plan.

He said, Dr. Paul was "not in harmony" with the type of commission proposed by the province to operate the new provincial scheme under the federal plan.

Dr. Ross told the legislature the commission will be made up of members of the public, the medical profession and "several senior members of the existing Alberta Health Plan."

Police Conspiracy To Destroy Me: Judge

TORONTO (CP) — Countercharges by Provincial Judge Lucien Kurata that he is the target of a police conspiracy to destroy him marked the seventh day of an inquiry into his behavior.

Judge Kurata testified Thursday "that a minority of members of morality (the police morality squad) were dissatisfied with a few of the judgments I had handed down."

He said that testimony by policewoman Mrs. Marlene Watson and two other police officers should be disregarded by Justice Donald Keith, commissioner of the inquiry, as a "pack of unmitigated lies."

"Are you suggesting she is part of a police conspiracy to destroy you . . . because some members of the morality bureau are displeased?" commission counsel Gordon Ford asked.

"That's what I said," Judge Kurata replied.

On Wednesday, Judge Kurata denied testimony by Mrs. Watson that he had led her by the hand to his office Nov. 15 and had touched her breast and mentioned undressing.

He also said he had never seen Catherine Lonsberry, an admitted prostitute, who accused him of taking her to his office Nov. 1 and committing an indecent act in her presence.

He said he could think of no motive for Mrs. Lonsberry's testimony "except as a person who seeks to gain notoriety."

Earlier Thursday, Judge Kurata said that he "had no intention to commit suicide at any time." He was admitted to hospital on Sept. 1 suffering from a barbiturate overdose.

He added that he could not remember telling psychiatrist Dr. William Kyne that he had attempted suicide nor that he had been worried about financial, work and domestic problems. He told the inquiry that he was concerned about his eldest daughter, aged 20, who had taken her own apartment last summer.

Although Judge Kurata claimed a happy home life, he said that his wife had suffered emotional problems. Because of this he said he had moved to an apartment two years ago when she had a nervous breakdown and went to hospital.

Mary Kurata later testified that the psychiatric report's suggestion that there had been a suicide pact between her and her husband was "neither true, nor probable, nor possible."

"I don't know where such an idea originated," she said.

She said that after their daughter left, her husband had been sleeping poorly and that she had urged him to try sleeping pills.

He took two sleeping pills and two tranquillizers and a drink of brandy and then collapsed, she said. She believed he had suffered a heart attack.

"Have you ever been seriously ill?" she asked Mr. Justice Keith. "If you have, you'll know that you sometimes say things to a doctor without knowing what you're saying, simply because he's a doctor."

Plea Sounded For Sanity In Budget Fight

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board chairman Bruce Devitt today appealed for "sanity" in the school budget bylaw controversy.

"All this talk of closing schools, threats and counter-threats and propaganda from pros and cons is just a tempest in a teapot," Devitt said in an interview.

DEVITT — . . . "children losing"

The ultimate losers — and those least considered in all this confusion of truths and half-truths — are the children of this district."

Devitt made his comments after Trustee Margaret Whittaker reported she had met Education Minister Donald Brothers in Victoria Thursday. She claimed the area homes were "swamped with propaganda pamphlets" by the school teachers.

A phone campaign had also been carried on by the teachers, she said.

"There have been innumerable complaints about the propaganda put through the schools regarding cuts in the school program if the bylaw is defeated . . . the fact is the school board has not made any decisions on changes in the event the bylaw is defeated," she said.

Devitt said the pamphlets referred to originated with the information committee of the school board and some had been sent home by the teachers.

"Sure, we are engaging in a little propaganda," he said, "but if the budget is defeated and cuts are made, people are going to ask why we didn't tell them this would happen to their favorite projects. We are not are just trying to acquaint them with the facts."

$366,000 ABOVE

The bylaw Saturday is necessary because the school budget is $366,000 above the shareable amount under the new provincial education formula. If defeated, the "court of last resport" is application for a grant through an order-in-council.

One of Mrs. Whittaker's complaints has been that the overcharge will show up on the budget next year.

Devitt said, "We as trustees will never go through another year like this. It isn't fair. If it happens we will take the issue regarding the whole question of education financing the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

"We are not doing anything different from other years. The budget is actually $200,000 less this year than last, but the formula has changed. We haven't suddenly added a new sum of money we are now trying to unload on the taxpayers."

Mrs. Whittaker said Brothers told her the education department comptroller has helped other districts who have gone over their budget to learn how to live within their means."

NO CLOSURE

Brothers also assured the trustee and two ratepayers, Mrs. Anne Jensone and Daniel Shutte, "regardless of whether the bylaw is passed or not, the schools will not close."

The threat of closure came about after an emergency meeting Wednesday when more than half of the 260 area teachers voted in favor of operating at the current rate of expenditure and then closing the schools.

The money committed to the current programs would run out about the end of October, said Bill Murray, public relations officer for the Cowichan District Teachers' Association. "After that we would all have to take about two months loss of pay."

Murray said this was not to be taken as a threat of closure but president of the CDTA, Harry Dewars, said, "Call it blackmail if you will. We have a vested interest, sure. But it's the kids, more than anyone, who are the losers in a watered-down educational program."

MEXICAN HOLIDAY

Ex-Bartender Admits Robbing Owner of Hotel

CHEMAINUS — A former hotel bartender financed a trip to Mexico for himself and a friend on the proceeds of a robbery at a Cremainus hotel.

David Victor Sell, 23, of Chemainus has pleaded guilty to striking Green Lantern Hotel owner Austin Kennedy on the head and taking $1,300 from a satchel he was carrying.

The robbery occurred on March 15.

APRIL 9 SENTENCE

Sell, formerly a bartender at the hotel, was remanded in custody for sentence April 9.

RCMP testified that two days after the robbery, Sell and his friend, Clinton Cartwright, 20, of HMCS Columbia left Chemainus and went to Mexico where they spent th money.

They returned to Chemainus Wednesday and were arrested.

Cartwright pleaded guilty Thursday to possession of stolen property and was sentenced to six months in Oakalla.

Sooke Votes Saturday On Schools

Sooke school district ratepayers will vote Saturday on a building program aimed at coping with rising enrolment in the next three years.

The school board is asking voters to approve expenditures totalling $1,998,665 which will be decreased by a $60,000 grant from the federal Indian affairs department if passed.

In circular letters to area residents the board pointed out that three-quarters of the total will be paid by the government and the cost to ratepayers should not exceed 1½ mills.

The board would spend $170,665 on school sties, $1,472,000 on construction, $198,000 on equipment and $158,000 on plans, supervision and contingencies.

Officials estimate an increase of 36 per cent over the current enrolment of 5,000 pupils during the next three years and attribute part of the increase to the Jordan River dam project.

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the following locations: elementary schools — Colwood, Glenlake, Happy Valley, Jordan River, Langford, Metchosin, Millstream, Port Renfrew, Sangster, Sasseenos and Sooke. Other polls will be at the Horgan residence in East Sooke and the Shirley Community Hall.

CHEMAINUS—A Kuper Island resident whose boat ran up on a reef between Thetis and Hudson Islands, and had to be pulled off by the RCMP boat from Sidney, has been found guilty of impaired boating.

MINING: 'ANYWHERE, ANY TIME'

The provincial government is allowing mining companies to "mine anywhere, any time, any place," Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said in the legislature Thursday.

He made the statement as NDP members renewed accusations that the government has opened parks to private mining companies.

Strachan said the government claimed a "very small number of claims" issued in 1906 and 1920 had obligated them to issue more claims and give permission for Western Mines Ltd. lead, zinc and copper mine at the head of Buttle Lake to operate in Stratchcona Park on Vancouver Island.

●

Strachan accused the government of changing legislation to allow the mine to operate.

"It is a sorry, shabby story of Buttle Lake and the pollution of that lake," Strachan said.

Ken Kiernan, now minister of conservation and recreation but who from 1956 to 1963 served as minister of mines, accused Strachan of deliberately misleading the house.

Referring to Strachan's charge that legislation had been changed to allow park mining, Kiernan said "I want to tell you this is not a statement of fact."

●

He had in previous sessions outlined the sequence of developments concerning the Western Mines claims, Kiernan said.

"The law is the law," Kiernan said. "If we're not prepared to abide by the law. . . ."

"Change it," shouted NDP MLAs.

". . . there is no basis on which intelligent people can co-operate on," Kiernan contnued.

He called on Strachan to "accept the facts as they are."

The NDP leader retorted Kiernan was saying the provincial government "is bound hand and foot and is helpless."

●

The minister had "repudiated the responsibility of government."

Dave Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said the government had claimed they couldn't take over the B.C. Electric Company because of the law, yet they had passed a law in 1960 and took it over.

"The opposition is prepared to repudiate that which is legally granted," Kiernan said. "Repudiate rights once granted."

"What about expropriation?" asked Barrett.

●

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) said "we change the acts every year in this house."

"I see no reason why we shouldn't change it for the benefit of the people today.

"We did it to the Esquimalt and Nanaimo (railway land grant on Vancouver Island) and the courts upheld the legislature."

"I think the government is only trying to evade its responsibility."

Prime Lumber All Ready For Aussies

HONEYMOON BAY — Western Forest Industries Ltd. here has completed an order for special lumber to build Australia's sailing sloop to be entered in the 117-year-old Americas Cup race.

The firm has assembled about 7,000 board feet of Western Red Cedar and Douglas Fir. Considerable time was spent selecting the prime old growth cedar and fir required.

The lumber had to be of high quality, clear, free of knots, pitch pockets and pitch streaks, with a straight, vertical grain and a minimum number of 10 rings an inch.

The lumber, in sizes 25 to 37 feet, was assembled in five units and crated in plywood. It will be loaded on a vessel for Australia out of Vancouver.

Quarantine Area Sharply Reduced

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Plant quarantine restrictions controlling an infestation of golden nematode have been lifted over most of southern Vancouver Island.

Roy Messum, federal plant inspector who headed a three-year government crash program to eradicate the pest, said Thursday the quarantine area has been reduced to just Central Saanich and a narrow strip of land overlapping into Saanich right along the border.

The original quarantine area took in all of the Saanich peninsula, Langford, Colwood and Metchosin, right through to Port Renfrew.

"We hope to further reduce the area within a year," he said. "This may happen if no new infestations show up."

South Vancouver Island was placed under quarantine restrictions in 1966 when the pest which feeds on the root fibres of potatoes and tomatoes, was discovered on a Martindale Road bulb farm in Central Saanich.

Federal and provincial departments of agriculture feared the pest might spread to potato fields on the mainland. Outside of Newfoundland, it was the first such infestation in Canada.

The controls restricted growers from moving stock to other parts of the Island and mainland without obtaining a certificate to show the plants were free of the pests.

Since the pest was discovered, the federal government has spent more than $2,000,000 fighting it, and making compensation payments to growers unable to move their crops outside the area.

Dry Peat Sheds Water

By HILDA BEASTALL

In the spring we are all keen to improve our garden soils by any means procurable. When we choose peatmoss we must remember to dampen it thoroughly before putting it into the ground.

Hilda

Since its use is recommended when planting such finely rooted things as rhodos and a host of other acid loving shrubs, we can see that neglecting to dampen the peatmoss first may explain later failures.

During the late spring and summer, as we supply artificial watering to the new plants, the dry peat will shed water like a duck's back.

It never seems to absorb water which is poured around or over it, as will be readily seen if a pail is half filled with peatmoss and then filled up with water.

Leave this overnight. In the morning you'll find the water has merely displaced the peat leaving it floating on top, dry.

The easiest way to moisten peat is to put some into a pail or the wheelbarrow, add water gradually as you mix vigorously with a garden fork.

Other garden tools don't seem to do the job nearly so well, but the fork incorporates the dry peat and the water.

Continue adding water and mixing until the peat is thoroughly dampened, but not soggy wet unless the soil into which it is to go is absolutely dry, as may be in summer.

If mixing with damp garden soil at this time of year, the peat still needs to be dampened. For planting holes, it must also be well mixed with the soil, never put in as a layer or lining to the hole for it may become a barrier to emerging roots.

Inherited Disease Of Liver

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Some people now are writing to say that their doctors say their children have a serious disease of the liver, and they wonder what it is and how the children happened to get it, and what their future is likely to be. I was just looking at a good article on this subject in "Postgraduate Medicine;" it was written by Dr. Frank L. Iber of Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, and the title is "The Inherited Causes of Liver Disease."

Alvarez

One of the diseases is galactosemia (galacto refers to milk sugar, and -emia to blood). This is a disease of the new-born, in which the child cannot handle milk-sugar. He must immediately be fed some formula without milk, in order to save his brain and his liver from serious injury.

Then, there is cystic fibrosis, which is mainly a disease of the pancreas (the big digestive gland back of the stomach), and of the lungs. The children have to be fed and cared for with great care if they are to live, and to grow up strong and well.

There is a so-called focal cirrhosis of the liver (in Greek kirros means a yellow color). In cirrhosis the functioning cells of the liver disappear to leave a small mass of blood vessels and bile ducts. Focal means that only a small area is damaged. As yet there is no known treatment that will stop the progress of this disease.

★ ★ ★

Also, there is the glycogen-storage disease of the liver. This disorder is marked by the accumulation of large amounts of glycogen in the liver (glycogen is something like a concentrated sugar). The disease is due to the inability of the liver to break down glycogen into sugar, and thus to use it and to get it out of the body.

A very rare child is born with what is called a cystic liver, in which the liver is full of cysts (little bags of fluid). More often it is the kidneys that are filled with these bags of fluid. Naturally, no physician can get in and take out all the cysts and put in more functioning liver or kidney tissue. Fortuanately, the child usually has enough good liver so that he can live.

The liver can be injured in persons who have the sickle-cell disease of the blood. In this disease, seen usually in Negroes, the red blood cells, instead of looking like coins, look like microspic sausages. With this there is ofen an anemia and other troubles. Unfortuanately, there is no way of curing the inborn peculiarity.

★ ★ ★

There is another inherited liver defect called Wilson's disease. With this, there is some inability of the body to handle copper. As a result, there can be many times the normal amount of copper in the liver and the urnine. Commonly the symptoms are those of tremor, and stiffness in the muscles. The people can be helped with the giving of penicillamine.

In all of these cases, the diagnosis can often be made with what is called a liver biopsy (bio means life, and opsy refers to seeing.) A big hollow needle is pushed through the abdominal wall into the liver, and when it is withdrawn it contains a little piece of liver, which is then analyzed chemically and examined microscopically.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Union of Maritimes Advocated Years Ago

By BOB BOWMAN

Once again there is a strong movement to have Canada's Atlantic provinces merge into one. Premier Louis J. R. Robichaud of New Brunswick is urging that a study be made. The Economic Council of Canada has advocated the union. It is also an integral part of proposals made by Premier Bennett of British Columbia for more efficent Canadian economy.

Bowman

There was a similar plan in the Maritimes (Newfoundland was not included) in 1864, but it was sidetracked by Confederation. On March 28, 1864, Nova Scotia became the first of the Maritime colonies, as they were then, to authorize a delegation to go to Charlottetown in September and discuss the possibility of union with delegates from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Prince Edward Island was lukewarm to the idea but agreed to be the host. Then Canada asked to be invited, and the meeting eventually led to Confederation instead of Maritime union. There are many people who believe now that the Maritimes would have been better off if they had gone their own way.

Canada was in the throes of a railway-building boom in the 1860's and it was the promise of a railway that was largely responsible for New Brunswick and Nova Scotia agreeing to join Canada. Prince Edward Island held out until 1873 and then joined Confederation because her own railway had got into deep financial trouble. Canada offered to pay off the debt.

Today Maritimes union seems attractive because it would bring about more economic co-operation, and lessen costs of government. Once again Newfoundland's position is not clear. In 1864 Newfoundland did not send delegates to the Charlottetown conference but was represented at the Quebec conference later in the year.

Other events on March 28:

1795—Spain surrendered claim to Vancouver Island.

1846—Important report on education submitted by Egerton Ryerston of Upper Canada.

1851—New Brunswick approved building of European and North American Railroad.

1918 — Conscription for overseas service in World War I caused riots in Quebec.

1960—Ontario legislature announced plan to build bilingual university at Sudbury.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Dan Wilhelm, age 12, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, for his question:

What does LSD consist of?

Many of the world's drugs are special plant products, and sometimes the difference between a useful drug and a poison is merely a matter of dosage. LSD happens to be hundreds and even thousands of times more potent than some other drugs. The tiniest speck or dose may be disastrous.

LSD is short for lysergic acid diethylamide and the first acid-head was the fellow who accidentally discovered it. He was a Swiss chemist named Albert Hofmann and his fateful discovery occured in 1943. For generations people had used ergot, a fungus that grows on rye plants, to relieve migraine headaches and stop bleeding from gushing wounds. Witches of olden days also added ergot fungus along with frogs and spiders and other assorted items to their hair-raising brews. Hofmann was experimenting with a chemical compound of ergot called lysergic acid. He added traces of other molecules and somehow a little of his fateful brew was absorbed by his system. Maybe he licked a finger, maybe it entered through the pores of his skin.

In any case, Albert was soon a very sick researcher. He had a dizzy spell and felt too confused to go on with his tests. So he went home and got into bed. But things got worse. His body fell into a sort of drunken stupor but his mind stayed wide awake. He saw nightmares of fantastic shapes and colors that he knew did not exist. When he returned to normalcy, Hofmann realized that his fantastic hallucinations had been caused by the drug.

Damages Brain

Since that time, qualified researchers have investigated the effects of LSD on thousands of patients. They agree that the mysterious hallucinogen drug does indeed send the mind off into a worl of its own. It may be a world of wondrous sights and sounds and sensations or a nightmare realm of fantastic fear, panic and ghastly horrors. In any case, the patient has no control over these hallucinations—and, in some cases, he may be unable to return to the real world.

Researchers suspect that LSD imitates one of the chemicals that the brain uses to transfer signals between nerve endings. It cannot convey the sane and sensible signals of the real worlds, but it can fool the brain into thinking its hallucinations are real. Both mind and body pay a terrible penalty for this kind of chemical trickery. The nervous system may become permanently confused and disorganized, and the patient may substitute his world of hallucinations for the real world. Often he tries to persuade others that his befuddled mind has the solutions to all human ills. Saddest of all, damage may be done to his unborn children.

Mankind has been using the drugs and poisons of the plant world for ages. The hallucinogens are not new. But LSD is the most potent, perhaps because it was formulated with the know-how of modern chemistry.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Vicki Stern, age 8, of Huntsville, Texas, for her question:

How long did the astronauts' voices take to reach us from their moon orbit?

When you shout a loud "hello," the sound of your voice seems to get from here to there in a great hurry. Experts have figured how long it takes the sound of a voice to travel through the air. They tell us that ordinary sounds take about one second to travel one fifth of a mile. So it would take you loud "hello" five seconds to travel about one mile. However, the Christmas astronauts did not use this ordinary sound to send their voices back to the earth. Their voices were carried by radio signals. And radio travels much faster than sound.

Nothing in the universe travels faster than light, and radio signals travel at about the speed of light. This 186,000 miles per second. The moon is about 240,000 miles away from us. When the astronauts were near the moon, their signals reached the earth in less than two seconds. Electronic gadgets were used to send the signals and other eletronic gadgets on the earth were used to pick them up and change them into the sounds of voices. The whole job was done in jig time, and the voices were heard about two seconds after the words were spoken.

False Picture Of Seal Hunt?

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee voted Thursday to bring before it an official for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to answer charges that he is painting a false picture of the annual seal hunt.

The forestry and fisheries committee approved a motion to have Brian Davies, executive secretary of the New Brunswick SPCA, appear if possible prior to Parliament's Easter recess.

Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) said Mr. Davies "should be made to prove what he is saying or for all time shut up."

Mr. Carter said he is "getting a little sick and tired of this man Davies and the things he has been saying." He has become "a national nuisance."

The SPCA official has campaigned at home and abroad with the help of a color film against the cruelty of the annual kill for pelts of baby seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

FOLLOWS COMPLAINT

The motion to call Mr. Davies by James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) followed a complaint by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis that Mr. Davies had falsely claimed on a New York television program that all baby seals taken were skinned alive.

Mr. Davis invited the committee to invite Mr. Davies to appear "and confront him with his statement."

He said the comment was made on a Feb. 20 TV program of which he had a partial transcript.

Partly as a result of programs such as the one on which Mr. Davies appeared, and magazine pictures and articles, the government is getting a huge volume of anti-hunt mail, he said.

His office had answered 1,260 letters in English and 580 in French. He had a backlog of 7,000 unanswered letters on the seal hunt. The prime minister had received thousands more.

EMBASSIES SWAMPED

But it was nothing compared to what Canadian embassies in Europe were getting. And the Canadian embassy in thhe U.S. was getting seal mail at the rate of 600 a day.

Canada's ambassador in Belgium had to defend Canada's reputation against criticism over cruelty lodged by Brussels newspapers. There had been picketing and other protests lodged at Canadian embassies abroad.

Mr. Davis accused Mr. Davies of hurting Canada's reputation with such "untrue accompanying comments" as he made on the television program.

An organization financing anti-cruelty advertisements in Canadian newspapers is similarly damaging Canada's reputation, he said.

The advertisements, placed by the Association for the Protection of Fur-Bearing Animals, invited readers to send donations to the Save the Seals Fund in New Brunswick.

SKINNED SEAL ALIVE?

Mr. McGrath said he wants to know if Mr. Davies was a party to the skinning of a seal alive for the purposes of a film. Mr. Davies would be ordered to appear with his film.

Mr. Davis said that on his recent trip to the now-cancelled seal hunt he saw no evidence of seals being skinned alive. There was no indication they were being mistreated. Regulations were being observed.

John Lundrigan (PC—Gander-Twillingate) said Canada is getting "an international black eye" over fabrications about the seal hunt. He said the government should issue a statement so other countries would know what the situation is.

Also to be called under the McGrath motion are Henri Stadt, a film-maker who did one on the seal hunt, and Serge Deyglun, outdoors editor of La Presse of Montreal, who worked on a countroversial film showing cruelty to seals made by Artek Limited.

Housing Project Set

OTTAWA (CP)—Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has announced the award of a $1,511,326 contract for the construction of a federal-provincial low-rental housing project in Prince Rupert. Haida Construction Ltd. and Granby Construction and Equipment Ltd. will build 15 one-bedroom, 32 three-bedroom and eight four-bedroom housing units.

TAX MEN TO DIE FOR EXTORTION DEATH

MANILA (AP)—Two members of the Philippines Bureau of Internal Revenue have been sentenced to death in the electric chair for extorting money from a Chinese woman restaurant owner and causing her death four years ago.

Judge Francisco de la Rosa of nearby Pasay City found Francisco Bello, 39, and Eulogio San Juan, 41, guilty of robbery with homicide.

'Tried to Salvage Works Plan'

OTTAWA (CP) —The Commons was told Thursday night that attempts were made to salvage the cancelled winter works program, but discussions with the provinces failed to bring forth any new projects.

Gerard Loiselle (L—Montreal St. Henri), parliamentary secretary to Manpower Minister Allan MacEachen, said the winter works program had become less and less effective and abuses were cropping up.

He was replying to Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West), who raised the issue during a Commons adjournment debate. Mr. Rose wanted to know whether the federal government proposed any alternatives to help municipalities, and at the same time assist in the fight against unemployment.

Mr. Rose said that in 1967-68, only 6,532 workers were employed under these projects in British Columbia, just half of the number employed in 1963-64. While the program had cost $25,000,000 last year, the federal government was spending $75,000,000 above this figure now on training adult workers.

East German Split With Russia Hinted

Jordan Urged To Save Talks

Times News Services

UNITED NATIONS — Britain appealed to Jordan today not to split the Security Council and endanger the start of Big Four talks on the Middle East next week by forcing a vote to condemn Israel for Wednesday's air raid which killed 18 Arab civilians.

Highly placed diplomats said the Four Power conference seeking a Middle East settlement was expected to start — probably next Thursday — at the French embassy in New York.

MAJOR POWERS

Sir Leslie Glass, deputy chief of the British delegation, appealed in the second day's debate on Jordanian and Israeli counter-complaints to the council to preserve the unity which would enable the major powers to act.

He appealed to Jordanian Ambassador Muhammed H. El-Farra, who conferred before this morning's council meeting with Secretary-General Thant, to "reflect on the need to preserve the unanimity of this council."

"A serious split now would be a setback to the interests of the Jordanian people as well as to the interests of the people of the world," Glass said.

ECHOES APPEAL

Finnish Ambassador Max Jakobson echoed Glass's appeal for unity.

French Ambassador Armand Berard said the Big Four powers "must be equal to their special responsibilities conferred on them by their status in this council."

Algeria charged that Israel's strategy is to destroy the Arab countries' economic potential and force them into accepting a dictated peace.

Thursday the United States and the Soviet Union sought to prevent Israel's bombing raid from upsetting the Four Power meeting.

As the council heard Jordan's complaint, Western ambassadors said privately Israel apparently had made a tragic error in confusing a rest house and taxis near Es Salt for an encampment of Arab guerrillas.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik accused Israel of wanting "to undermine international efforts to restore peace" and asked that the council condemn it and warn the government against repetition. He made no mention of the guerrillas against whom Israel claimed to be reacting.

Malik was careful, however, not to charge Western complicity, and he placed elaborate stress on continued efforts for political settlement.

HOPE EXPRESSED

American Ambassador Charles W. Yost deplored the Israeli raid but equally deplored recent artillery exchanges across the Suez Canal and extensive terrorism for which Arab governments "cannot completely escape responsibility."

Predicting early Four Power consultations to buttress the mission of United Nations Middle East representative Gunnar Jarring, Yost expressed hope that the Arabs and Israelis will reply positively to questions he has asked. Jarring received the Egyptian reply on a visit to Cairo Thursday.

In opening the case Thursday, Jordanian Ambassador

ULBRICHT
. . . tensions mount

Ulbricht Quits Moscow Talks

By ANATOLE SHUB

MOSCOW (WP) — East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht departed unceremoniously for Berlin Thursday amid signs of mounting tension between his government and top leaders of the Soviet Union.

Ulbricht left after a three-day visit, apparently without having seen Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev or Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

He came ostensibly to attend a commemorative confedence on the prewar communist international which ended Wednesday. His only reported activity Thursday was a visti to the Marx Engels museum.

●

The signs of tension came from East Berlin as well as Moscow. The source of the tension, observers believe, is a reappraisal by the Soviet leadership of its policy toward West Germany in the light of secret Bonn-Moscow conversations which have been conducted since December.

The reappraisal is believed to have been decisively accelerated by recent clashes on the Sino-Soviet frontier. It has also been prompted by consistent pressure from the Rumanian, Italian and other European Communist parties — expressed most recently at meetings in Budapest and here last week — to scrap Ulbricht's harsh line of "confrontaton" with West Germany and move decisively ahead in the Moscow-Bonn dialogue.

●

In that dialogue, both Soviet and West German diplomats have indicated a readiness to consider significant modifications of previous "all or nothing" bargaining positions.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, announcing Ulbricht's departure in a dispatch Thursday night, disclosed that he had been seen off by the same officials who greeted him Monday — Arvid Pelshe, 70, of the Politburo and junior party secretary Konstantin Katushev, 43 (although strict protocol called for both Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny. Podgorny departed Tuesday for North Africa).

●

The comintern conference Tuesday was addressed by Soviet party secretaries Mikhail Suslov and Boris Ponomarev as well as Ulbricht, and likewise attended by Pelshe and Katushev. Suslov, however, skipped Wednesday's sessions—after the Tuesday speeches had disclosed sharp differences between Ulbricht, on the one hand, and himself and Ponomarev on the other.

Although all three speeches were considerably censored in both Soviet and East German media, the differences emerged strongly — Ulbricht defended, and the Soviet leaders ciriticized, German Communists' attacks on the Social Democrats as the historic "main enemy."

●

The "theoretical" controversy was extremely topical, because West German Social Democratic leader Willy Brandt, now Bonn foreign minister, was the prime initiator of the promising Russian-German dialogue.

Brandt suggested the dialogue at a meeting

GOD OUT OF ARMY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army has ordered chaplains to eliminate all reference to God and religious philosophy in lectures aimed at instilling moral responsibility in its soldiers.

An army spokesman confirmed the new policy Thursday after word of it had reached some members of Congress, angering many of them.

The new policy was prompted by a complaint last year from the American Civil Liberties Union that the lectures were being used as religious indoctrination.

The ACLU now is asking the air force and navy to take similar steps.

World Mourns for Man Everyone Knew as Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in the Second World War of the mightiest armed force ever assembled and former president of the United States, died today.

The announcement of the general's death was made in a sombre voice by Brig.-Gen. Frederic Hughes Jr., commanding general of Walter Reed Army Hospital who said that Eisenhower had "died quietly at 12:25 p.m. EST after a long and heroic struggle," and that he had died peacefully.

"Mrs. Eisenhower and members of the immediate family" were nearby at the time of death, Hughes continued.

Life Story Of Ike In Pictures Pages 10, 11

He added that President Nixon, former president Lyndon B. Johnson and Eisenhower's two brothers had been notified. Nixon, meanwhile, drove from the White House to the hospital, in Bethesda, Md.

The 78-year-old general, known as Ike throughout the world, was hit by congestive heart failure March 15 and again last Monday while recuperating from an intestinal operation and pneumonia complications.

He already had battled back from seven heart attacks before undergoing surgery for an intestinal obstruction Feb. 23.

Four days after undergoing the high-rank surgery, he contracted pneumonia. Doctors successfully combatted the pneumonia with antibiotics.

But throughout the February trouble, it was Eisenhower's heart which caused doctors their prime concern.

SITUATION DECLINED

Doctors made no mention of the congestive heart failure March 15 until after Eisenhower's wife, Mamie, said at a party that the general had endured a "particularly bad" day.

Reporters questioned the hospital and were told of the latest onset of heart trouble.

Eisenhower had been in the hospital since April 29 last, when a heart attack felled him in California after a round of golf. He was transferred to Walter Reed and there suffered three more, his seventh coming on Aug. 16.

Since then he had gained vigor, walked short distances, received President Nixon and former president Lyndon B. Johnson, and grinned his famed and folksy grin from a hospital window when a United States Army band, observing Salute to Eisenhower Week, serenaded him on his birthday Oct. 14.

The grin was undimmed from 1944, when it heartened Allied troops mobilized for the awesome thrust through Normandy to the heart of Nazi Germany; from 1948, when he became president of Columbia University, New York from 1950, when he assumed supreme command of NATO forces, and from 1952, when both Democrats and Republicans sought him as their nominee for U.S. president.

As a Republican, he swept into office and four years later won re-election in what was then the greatest landslide in history.

That made him the only Republican president of this century to win successive White House terms.

Despite this stunning political victory, Eisenhower disdained always partisan politics and privately made no secret of a dislike for politicians.

"I think in the general derogatory sense you can say, of Capt. Jacobsen, originally pleaded not guilty, but after four prosecution witnesses had been heard he changed his plea to guilty.

STRONG EARTHQUAKES LEAVE 43 TURKS DEAD

ISTANBUL (AP)—A wave of strong earth tremors jolted Turkey's Aegean region today, leaving 43 persons known dead.

More than 2,500 homes were reported to have collapsed or been seriously damaged.

The focus of the quake was located at the towns of Alasehir and Sarigol and their surroundings—about 80 miles east of the Aegean port of Izmir.

The shocks hit a wide arc of western Turkey extending from Izmir in the west, Balikesir in the north and Usak in the east.

Big Police Force to Patrol Demonstration at McGill

MONTREAL (CP) — Tight security measures are expected at tonight's demonstration by forces seeking to transform McGill University into a French-language institution.

At least 200 policemen are expected for the three-quarter-mile march, dubbed Operation McGill. It is organized by Raymond Lemieux, president of the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, and other activists.

The group hopes to see the 148-year-old university converted into a French-language institution by 1972.

Mr. Lemieux said Thursday he requested police protection for an anticipated turnout of 5,000 outside marchers.

Mayor Jean Drapeau issued "a pressing appeal for calm and moderation." He said he recognized the right to hold the demonstration, but "the citizen's right to protection of his life and property remains fundamental."

The "role of the police forces will be to ensure" that the demonstration maintains a "peaceful character."

The planned march has drawn opposition from McGill's administration and the students' society representing about 14,000 of 16,331 full-time students.

In Ottawa Justice Minister Turner said in the Commons Thursday that Quebec has asked for the "potential aid" of the RCMP and army if Montreal police were unable to handle the demonstration.

Mr. Turner said outside the Commons that Quebec merely put Ottawa on notice and had not formally requested troops.

In Quebec City, Premier Bertrand told reporters his justice department, the Quebec government, provincial police and Montreal police had not asked Ottawa for army aid.

When reporters pressed him on the matter, he said:

"It's disgusting. No minister of the Crown should have said what Mr. Turner said. It's the sort of stuff that provokes people. It's appalling."

It sez somethin' fer a man thet he c'd run th' biggest army in hist'ry an' still be known as "Ike."

'I Like Ike' Became National Sentiment in U.S.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

BEING SWORN IN as president of the United States by Chief Justice Earl Warren (left) is Dwight Eisenhower who served as president from 1952 to 1960.

WASHINGTON (AP)—From the day he entered West Point to the day he left the White House 50 years later, Dwight David Eisenhower achieved personal popularity seldom matched in the United States. His grin and folksy nickname were his hallmarks.

There was a simple plainsman's eloquence about Eisenhower that touched Americans. He had no flair as an orator, little sophisticated wit, and no flamboyance.

But "I Like Ike" was a national sentiment—so much so that the Democratic and Republican parties both sought to make him president, even while his political persuasion was unknown.

He was the only Republican president in a generation. And his party controlled the House of Representatives for only two of his eight years in office, yet he rolled up majorities matched previously only by Franklin D. Roosevelt in his first two terms.

He was a career soldier who called war "this damnable thing;" who said he hoped to see "people in my profession permanently put out of a job."

AVOIDS POLITICS

It was characteristic of Eisenhower that in his speech to the 1968 Republican national convention—piped to the delegates from his hospital room—he subordinated politics to a plea for "travelling the pathways of peace, with honor and justice."

Peace and honor. The words surfaced again and again in a brilliant career that was a succession of peaks with few valleys: general of the army, allied commander-in-chief for North Africa, commanding general of Allied powers in the European theatre, chief of staff of the U.S. Army, president of Columbia University, two terms as president of the United States.

Always he spoke of the strength of America. "Let us first remind ourselves of the greatness of this nation and its people," he told the Republican convention. "Let's not waste time this year searching out someone to blame, even though some seem more disposed to concede rather than to stand firmly for America."

HAS THIRD ATTACK

Less than 12 hours after he spoke, Eisenhower was stricken with his third heart attack of the year—the sixth one since 1955. He was unable to watch the convention on television, but was told that Richard M. Nixon, his vice-president, had been chosen as the Republican presidential candidate for the Nov. 5 presidential election.

"I am delighted," were the words relayed from the hospital room.

He had endorsed Nixon shortly before the convention started, the first time Eisenhower had used his prestige publicly to attempt to influence the party's choice of a nominee.

Nixon responded in his acceptance speech by declaring: "Let's win this one for Ike!"

Death ended the long and valiant battle Eisenhower had waged against illness dating back to that first heart attack in 1955 late during his first term. He had been in Walter Reed almost one year with a string of four heart attacks, surgery and pneumonia in February, and congestive heart failure in this month.

Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States, was the third of the seven sons of David and Ida Stover Eisenhower. One of his brothers, Paul, died in infancy; the others were successes in their own right: Arthur, a banker; Edgar, a lawyer; Earl, an electrical engineer; Milton, a government official and college president; and Roy, a druggist.

Their grandfather travelled west with the wagon trains in 1878 and settled near Abilene, Kan. Their father failed with his general store and moved his family to Denison, Tex., where Dwight was born Oct. 14, 1890. A year later the family returned to Abilene and the father took a job in a creamery.

WAS 61ST IN CLASS

Young Eisenhower graduated 61st in a class of 164 from West Point in 1915. As a lieutenant at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., he met a Denver girl, Mamie Geneva Doud at a party. They were married July 1, 1916. A son, Dwight Doud, born a year later, died of scarlet fever at three. A second son, John Sheldon Doud, followed his father to West Point.

In the 1930s, then Maj. Eisenhower accompanied Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the Philippines. Early in the Second World War, he came to the attention of Gen. George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff, who summoned Eisenhower to Washington. Ike was sent to London to make recommendations about the organization and development of American forces in Europe. To his surprise, he was named to the European Theatre command with orders to execute his own plan.

Eisenhower first headed the expeditionary force to North Africa in 1942 and early the next year was made commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in the North African campaign.

In 1943, Eisenhower was named Allied commander for the invasion of Europe. D-Day came on June 6, 1944.

DIRECTED ALLIES

He directed the Allied forces to victory over Germany and presided over surrender ceremonies. Soon after, he returned to Washington to become army chief of staff, holding the post until 1948 when he became president of Columbia University.

But President Harry Truman summoned him to Washington to serve temporarily as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Later he took a longer leave of absence to organize and command North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

The affection the country felt for Ike paid off in the 1952 election. He had a plurality of more than 6,500,000 votes over Democrat Adlai Stevenson, carrying 39 of the 48 states. He did even better in his 1956 re-election, topping Stevenson by 9,500,000 votes.

The Korean War was ended by an armistice in Eisenhower's first term after a dramatic visit to South Korea before his inauguration.

It was in the Eisenhower years that both the United States and Russia developed hydrogen bombs, engaging in a grim race for superiority. It was also the time when the Space Age dawned with unmanned satellites. Man travelled under atomic power under the sea for the first time.

In 1954 the Supreme Court declared the segregation of schools to be unconstitutional.

USES TROOPS

Three years later, Eisenhower became the first president since the Reconstruction period after the Civil War to use federal troops to enforce a court order—the integration of schools in Little Rock, Ark.

The United States, under Eisenhower, severed relations with Cuba after Fidel Castro's revolution, but it did not support the Hungarian uprising.

Eisenhower sent Marines to Lebanon at that country's request after a coup in neighboring Iraq. But he criticized Britain and France after their attack on Egypt.

In the twilight of his second term, the United States and Russia appeared to be moving closer than at any time since the Second World War toward the detente that Eisenhower so long had sought.

Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev had visited the U.S. and asked Eisenhower to visit his country. A summit conference was planned.

Then, May 1, 1960, disaster struck. A U-2 spy plane piloted by Francis Gary Powers was shot down over Soviet Russia.

An angered Khrushchev scuttled the Paris summit before it got started and the uproar that ensued cast a shadow that lingered until the end of Eisenhower's term of office.

Benson Wants Merchants To Help Prepare Budgets

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson wants to inaugurate major changes in the way government budgets are designed, presented and implemented, including use of outside business consultants at the drafting stage.

In addition to outsiders giving detailed advance advice, the minister would like to present tax-policy shifts as proposals which could be scrutinized publicly and amended without provoking a non-confidence crisis for himself or the government.

Benson, who outlined his ideas in an interview Thursday, plans to present a spring mini-budget but said he would not introduce his operational changes that soon.

In any case, he said, the spring budget would be mainly a statement to indicate how the economy is going, with minimal tax changes.

The finance minister, mindful of the political uproar six years ago when predecessor Walter Gordon had three outsiders from the business world help draft a budget, will campaign for his ideas inside and outside government before trying them out.

He has already referred to his budget-making ideas in speeches March 3 in Washington and March 19 in his home riding of Kingston. He intends to speak publicly about them again in May.

"All you require is public opinion—no changes in legislation," he said. "It's a matter of educating the public. . . .

"Nothing affects people more than taxes. You sit here alone with six or seven top department people deciding things that the government has to stand or fall on.

"That's not good practice and it's a little bit worrisome."

Despite parliamentary tradition and Gordon's experience in 1963, Benson sees nothing wrong in calling in outside experts from business and industry to advise the government just how proposed changes in a budget would affect the community.

SWORN SECRECY

It is easy enough for government officials to predict accurately the effect on incomes of changes in tax rates, but more difficult to foresee the effects and reaction when a new taxation principle is introduced.

The consultants could be put on the government payroll and sworn to secrecy, he said.

It remains important that tax-rate changes are not known in advance, but "some aspects of budgetary secrecy are overdone."

Apart from changes in rates of tax, other budget measures could be presented as proposals without carrying the implication that the government is committed to every detail.

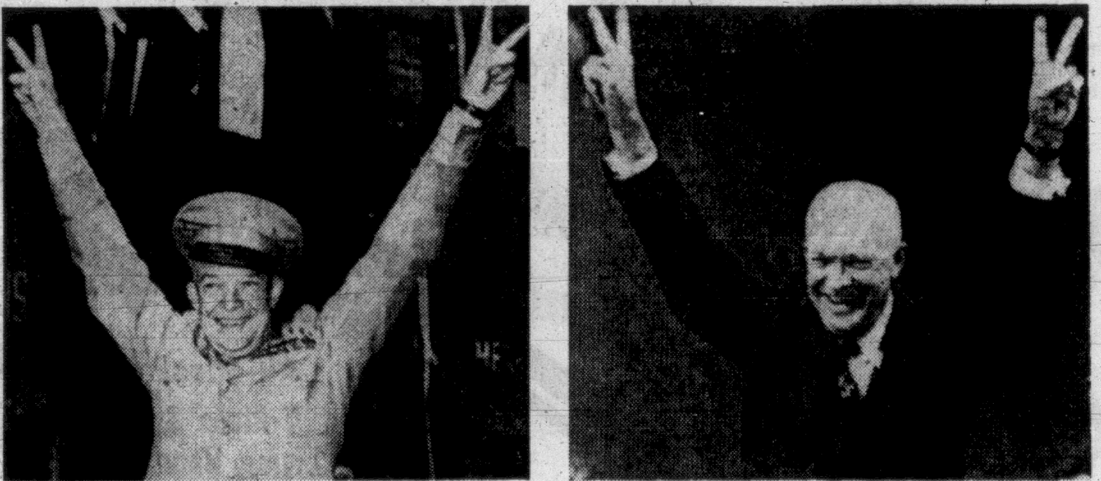
Ike's Greatest Hour in War; His Greatest Love in Politics

CUBAN missile crisis sent presidents John F. Kennedy and Dwight Eisenhower along a path at Camp David in Maryland. The two talked throughout the day on April 22, 1961, on U.S. action to have missiles taken out of Cuba.

DURING A VISIT to Ottawa, Eisenhower is in front of Parliament Buildings with then prime minister John Diefenbaker and Mrs. Diefenbaker. The visit took place in 1958.



DAYS OF TRIUMPH—Eisenhower is shown in two victorious phases of his life. At left, when he returned to the United States after the Allied victory in Europe and, at right, when he was renominated Republican candidate for a second term as president.

PREPARING FOR D-DAY, Eisenhower, then commander of invasion forces, met in England with British Field Marshal Montgomery, left, and British Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder.

By BARBARA WARD JACKSON

A man does not lead a great coalition of victorious armies and then go on to be elected twice by overwhelming popular vote to the most exposed public office in the democratic world without some seeds of greatness in him. And in Dwight Eisenhower, who died today in Washington, the greatness is predominantly to be seen in the image of the soldier.

His first achievement was surely to reach military rank at all. The third of six sons of an unsuccessful engineer in the little town of Abilene, Kansas, he had no education above a fairly mediocre average and had tried cowpunching and store-keeping and other casual jobs before he gained a Senatorial nomination to West Point.

At 28, by the time the First World War came to an end, he was a lieutenant-colonel commanding a tank battalion.

Temper Under Control

In 1939, some 20 years later, he was still a lieutenant-colonel. The discipline that kept a sudden explosive temper under control, patience, cheerfulness in disappointment, a remarkable lack of egoism or assertiveness—such virtues are often learnt under strain. One can imagine that the 20 years supplied the test.

In any event, when early in the Second Word War the American Chief of Staff, General Marshall, looked round for outstanding younger officers, he found in Eisenhower the capacity for brilliant staff work and unruffled good humor.

He brought the colonel to Washington, and started the series of promotions which led Eisenhower to supreme command of all the Allied armies on D-Day.

As commander-in-chief, he had critics—he had no real concept of strategy, they said. He was "nothing but a glorified public relations officer." But the overwhelming judgment of his peers is that Eisenhower was a great commander because he accomplished his supreme task—that of inter-allied unity—supremely well.

Never Had A Chance

We shall never know whether he would have been a skilful tactical figher. He never had the chance.

But we have only to compare his performance with the appalling infighting at the highest level during the First World War to realize that his ability to weld into a single fighting team commanders as diverse as Montgomery and Patton demanded outstanding qualities of unostantatious leadership, cheerful patience, international comradeship and an ability to project these qualities not only to immediate colleagues but throughout the broad, restless mass of men under his command.

"Good old Ike" is not a bad reaction from soldiers who have to go to death trusting the top brass will not let them down. One may perhaps say he was a great political general. But the greatness is not in doubt.

Inevitably, however, history must chiefly judge him by his two-term presidency from 1952 to 1960.

Although we cannot anticipate its judgments, it is unlikely that in the small circle of outstanding men that includes Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and the two Roosevelts, Eisenhower will be named among the truly great.

A U.S. president has a crippling load of diverse responsibilities. He has to lead a great party. He has to cooperate and fight with politicians from one end of the Union to the other. He has to establish a working—or non-working—relationship with the sovereignly powerful pick of their number in Congress.

And with what energy is left over he has to choose a team of cabinet associates able and expert enough to help him create a political strategy to meet the needs of the great Republic—and, often enough, to tell him what they are.

Dulles Knew More

Eisenhower saw himself above party and above faction. But this tended to put him not only "above the fight" but away from fights that were necessary if great issues were to be faced in time.

He knew little about economics, still less about the vast changes in economic thinking and organization brought about by the war.

Even where his own experience was relevant, he seems to have persuaded himself that his dogged, dogmatic and indefatigable secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, knew more about international politics than he did.

With customary modesty, he allowed Dulles a free hand. But the period of his own more direct handling of foreign policy — from 1958 to 1960 — suggests that he would have done much better himself.

For it is important to remember that in those areas in which Eisenhower's direct experience was relevant, he cannot be said to have failed.

When cries actually came, he acted with soldierly firmness. At Suez, in 1956, no political consideration of the Jewish vote in New York just before an election prevented him from acting to end what was in the overwhelming American consensus, an ill-judged adventure.

At Little Rock in the same year he did not hesitate to use federal troops to uphold desegregatiom. He showed the great-hearted soldier's true distaste for war in his constant efforts to improve the international atmosphere, particularly in the post-Dulles interregnum during which he had the courage in the wake of Joseph McCarthy and his anti-Communist witch-hunts to invite Mr. Khrushchev to the U.S.

Didn't Believe In Missile Gap

He had a soldier's scepticism over the claims of soldiers. His attempts to hold down military spending were not simply dedication to an balanced budget.

He did not believe in the missile gap — and he was right. He did believe — as his valedictory speech made clear — in the risk of too great a concentration of military-industrial power.

His failure to defend General Marshall at once and fully against the attacks of Jenner and McCarthy in the early 1950s was unpardonable, but apart from this, a case can even be made for Eisenhower's impersonal, approach in which witch-hunting was denounced but the witch-hunters were ignored.

At least, by 1960, McCarthy was finished and the John Birch type of hysteria has not been able to take on where he left off.

His retirement was singularly free of the bitterness and controversy that has marked the retirement of so many other men of power.

Despite an unchallengeable prestige such as no other American politician ever enjoyed while alive, his influence even on his own party was minimal.

Not to be great in everything is not to miss greatness. Eisenhower was a great soldier and a much-loved president. There have, after all, been less worthy and less moving epitaphs that this.

Homes Flatten Brotherly Love

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Improving living conditions in a community does not necessarily lead to a better community spirit, a veteran development worker says in a letter to the Coady International Institute here.

Rev. Joseph Fernando, a native of Ceylon who took a social leadership course at the institute on the St. Francis Xavier University campus, initiated a large-scale housing project at Negombo on the west coast of Ceylon.

He says one surprising result was the emergence of a vigorous individualism on the part of the new homeowners.

Before the housing program, Father Fernando says the fishing families of Negombo "had lived like a herd . . . the squalid palm-thatch huts they lived in were hot and unsanitary."

"Nobody knew on whose lands their shacks might be, and nobody cared. There were no barriers, no fences, no sense of property, no feeling of mine and thine. They were just a herd in a huddle of shacks."

Then the fisheries operation began to pay off. The catamaran outriggers gave way to glass fibre boats, nylon nets and Canadian outboard motors. Father Fernando talked up a housing program, the fishermen saved their money and went on a building spree.

INDIVIDUALISM GREW

In three or four years the old shanties were replaced by handsome brick homes with shining red tile roofs.

"But as the brick houses came in, the spirit of individualism came with it. The community feeling just wasn't there. The new homeowners wanted to have nothing to do with their neighbors.

"They put fences around their properties. They started fighting court cases to establish roadways and rights-of-way."

While somewhat surprised, Father Fernando writes he was not too alarmed by this.

"I'm assuming that this individualism is a necessary phase of development. It is probably part of the process of human development from the herd instinct to community living, which is something quite different from the herd instinct.

"In fact, I'm beginning to think that it might be a good thing, for in this first stage, they have come to realize that human beings are good, useful individuals, and that each one is worth something."

Father Fernando says with their individualism has come an immense pride. "They had no outside help, no government aid. They made it on their own, and they have every right to be proud of the kind of people they are."

COLLEGE TO GROW POT

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi has a unique agricultural enterprise-marijuana farming.

University of Mississippi scientists call their crop the first step of a complex research project financed by the National Institute of Mental Health of Bethesda, Md.

Dr. Norman J. Doorenbos, chairman of the department of pharmocognosy, said the need for marijuana research was vital.

"Up until now," he said, "all we've had is contraband material confiscated by Bureau of Customs and Bureau of Narcotics people. This material had had an uncertain history as to its age, origind the variety of plant from which it came.

"A lot of information has been published on the subject of marijuana, but it doesn't mean a whole lot because the chemical composition of the plant is not known."

The plan twill be grown on government land in several locations, all but one secret. Teh exceptin is a small plot on the university campus.

Federal agents are in constant surveillance and employees work uncer clearance issued by the Bureau of Narcotics.

The university's Research Instituee of Pharmaceutical Sciences will supply extract from mature plants to three other research institutes under contract to take up the next phases of the work. They will study how to produce synthetic marijuana, analyse smoke and similar projects.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1969 —PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

In Montreal today, a great Canadian university that happens to stand on Quebec soil is the target of a protest that differs in aim from other such confrontations.

The marchers who chose an already troubled campus as their target see McGill as a fortress of "les Anglais" in Quebec. Their aim is to integrate it into the French-speaking school system urged by Raymond Lemieux who heads the separatist League for the Integration of Students.

In this attempt, they have support from Montreal's junior colleges - whose students, like their opposite numbers who took part in the Simon Fraser episode, find they are investing two years in dead-end education.

Radicals from within McGill and outside are also in the demonstration, but the main body come from University of Montreal, traditionally hostile toward rich, English-speaking McGill, and reputed to be a separatist hotbed.

To these ingredients add a McGill political science instructor by the non-Quebecois name of Stanley Gray, who preaches that the university should be given over to the Quebec majority.

Gray has stirred up an incendiary mix, and the elements it contains may all too easily fuse to create a resounding blast.

At the time of writing, this has not happened—but if McGill's science faculty "commandos" and the marchers come together on the campus or outside it, heads will be broken before the day is over.

★

I have a long letter here from a Quebec journaliste who feels that the McGill administration might have saved itself much future grief by firing political scientist Gray outright rather than keeping him under threat of dismissal.

With the outbreak at Sir George Williams fresh in memory, she believes the radicalism that contributed to the protest there is also firmly entrenched in Montreal's senior English speaking university.

"It is my impression," this sturdy non-separatist writes, "that the militants are out to make trouble, and nothing is going to pacify them. Any excuse will do, and if a destructive protest can be run along racialist lines, so much the better."

My correspondent says of the separatists, "Oddly enough, they don't seem to resent the other English universities such as Sir George, and Loyola, which is a college, but gives a degree through University of Montreal.

"McGill is the seat of the establishment to them, the place where all the English go."

Like most working Montrealers, the writer has a respect for learning which extends to the institutions that deal in it.

She hopes that "Operation McGill," as the integrationists have dubbed it, will not produce such scenes as she witnessed outside Sir George Williams' vertical campus.

★

To the uninvolved student, she remembers, "the final traumatic shock was to arrive for lectures, find the police there, and all their records out on the street. To most of them, it seemed the end, and if the police would have let them, they'd have gone in and done battle.

"When our newly-formed riot squad arrived, I think it is some kind of record to have students shouting, 'Go, cops, go!' Most of our students hate the police.

"We feel strongly that Sir George didn't deserve to have this happen to it. It has the reputation of being one of the most liberal universities anywhere, and students have achieved here what students in other universities are fighting to gain.

"As for McGill, my fingers are crossed; and I hope the marchers will be headed off."

Student protest? What we have there is the latest act in Quebec's unquiet revolution. And if it gets out of hand, it could make the Sir George Williams affair look like a picnic.

RARE TWIN FOAL is up on her feet for bottle of mare's milk offered by 11-year-old Warren Johnson, grandson of Capt. and Mrs. Art Warren who brought baby into the house in their determination to keep it alive.

TWIN FILLIES DEFY THE ODDS-MAKERS

A horse in your house? A little unsusual, but the circumstances are more than a little unusual.

Twin foals are rarely born alive, and if so they seldom survive the first few hours. But Capt. and Mrs. Art Warren of Warren Farm, 6404 Central Saanich Road, are beating the odds.

They had twin Throughbred foals (fillies, or girl babies to city folk) arrive last Sunday night and the long-legged little ones are coming along in fine style.

They are not up on their feet as much as a single foal of the same age would be, but they are glossy-coated and gaining strength every hour with a lot of conscientious and loving care.

The smallest of the twins was brought into the house for the extra warmth she appeared to need. A hastily-constructed "play pen" in the utility room makes it a little difficult to get to the refrigerator and deep-freeze locker, but the Warrens don't regard this as important.

The important thing is the baby is progressing as well as bigger sister in the barn.

Both foals are being bottle-fed every two hours on an around-the-clock routine which means a good deal of sleep is going by the board. But that, too, is not important to the Warrens.

"We're just so pleased they are coming along so nicely," Mrs. Warren said.

HIGHLY BRED

The babies are highly bred. Their sire is "Spending Spree" (by Khaled) which is on lease to Warren Farm; and the dam is "Rose Flush" (Grey Skies) also on lease. The dam is owned by Mrs. W. Stanbury and Don Carley, of Victoria Riding Academy.

The foals, owned by Capt. and Mrs. Warren, are similar in markings but different in color. One is chestnut and the other black. The black will probably turn grey like its dam.

"Rose Flush" was attended at the birth by the Warren's son-in-law "Moose" Johnson who had the assistance of another Warren son-in-law and well-known horse shipper and farrier, Fred Ball. Dr. David Gaunt has been the attending veterinarian.

The foals havent' been given names yet, but there is little doubt the one in the house will always be known as "Utility Kid."

Valley Group To Analyze Big Report

The Blenkinsop Valley Ratepayers Association has set up an 11-member study committee to consider a Saanich planning report made public Tuesday night.

The association, meeting Thursday night in Lochside School, will also draw up a constitution and bylaws to formalize the group.

"We feel there's merit in the report but to a certain extent we've got to consider how it affects the residents of the valley as well as the whole of Saanich," said Ed Lohbrunner.

"This is why there will be careful study and examination."

The planning report made a number of recommendations, some directly involving the valley and others extending to the municipality as a whole.

The major recommendation was to increase the present 1.6-acre subdivision minimum, which covers about half the municipality, to five acres.

Idea is to contain urban development within the sewer enterprise area in the present urban and semi-urban areas to the south of Royal Oak to avoid unsightly and expensive suburban sprawl into rural areas.

Bishop's Installation At Cathedral April 17

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Most Rev. John Ogle Anderson will be installed as Anglican Bishop of the diocese of British Columbia (Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands) in Christ Church Cathedral Thursday, April 17, at 8 p.m.

The installation ceremony will be performed by Very Rev. Brian Whitlow, DD, dean of the cathedral.

According to ancient tradition, Bishop Anderson will knock three times on the main door of the cathedral and ask the Dean's permission to enter.

The service will be fully choral but not so elaborate as that which accompanies the consecration of a bishop. Bishop Anderson is already Bishop of Ruperts Land, so does not have to be consecrated.

After being admitted to the cathedral, he will be installed in the bishop's chair at the high altar and presented with the pastoral staff — the Biblical symbol of his office.

Invited to the ceremony are Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson, Premier Bennett, Mayor Hugh Stephen of Victoria and mayors of outside municipalities; Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria; Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, executive secretary of Greater Victoria Council of Churches; Canon Grahame Baker, president, and heads of other church organizations.

Bishop Anderson was elected to office March 7 by clergy and laymen from all parishes on Vancouver Island attending a special synod meeting in Christ Church Cathedral.

He was at home in Winnipeg at the time and will not visit here until April 15.

Drivers to Pay More Insurance Men Claim

Public to Protest Socred MLAs Told

The province's proposed automobile insurance legislation will cost the average motorist more in damages and for some premiums, the Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia said Thursday.

In a circular letter to Social Credit MLAs, the association said the scheme would help an annual average of 2,181 persons with fatality or injury benefits but would deprive an average 34,015 others of compensation for property damage.

The association, representing 500 agencies in B.C., said the figures were based on tables in the report of the Wootton Royal Commission on Automobile Insurance.

DETRIMENTAL

The letter said the public would react unfavorably to the bill and this is sure to be "detrimental to the members of your government."

Other points in the letter were:

Under the rule which says a driver at fault pays the first $250 for property damage, a driver could be held responsible for multiples of that amount. For example, if he caused a five-car accident, he would have to pay $1,000 damages for the other four cars.

NO COMPENSATION

Innocent victims can get no compensation unless they get it personally from the party at fault.

To protect himself from other drivers, the safe, mature driver will have to buy collision insurance which will be at least 50 per cent higher than present collision insurance.

Instead of reducing litigation the bill would create a "host of cases" in small debts court, the letter said.

Under the legislation, accident victims can sue for collision damages only up to $250. Beyond that the driver must pay either personally or through collision insurance for repairs to his own vehicle.

'ENORMOUS PROFITS'

Mid-Contract Hike Requested by IWA

The Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of American announced today its intention of seeking mid-contract wage increases from lumber companies.

Letters to this effect have been sent to companies on southern Vancouver Island by local IWA president Murray Drew.

"We feel there is every justification for doing so because of the enormous profits the union members are making for their employers and should in all justice be sharing more equitably in these profits," he said.

"Realizing that earnings of the companies must be divided, all we are asking is a larger portion of the profits be put into the hands of the employees and a little less into the pockets of the shareholders."

GO IT ALONE

He said the annual reports of B.C. Forest Products Limited, which employs about 1,100 persons in the Victoria area, show that in 1967 each employee earned for this company $2,841.41 in profits before taxes.

In 1968, each employee earned $4,001.96 profit, an increase of $1,160.55. Drew said the figures include office staff and supervisors.

The latest company annual report said wages must be related to productivity. Drew said the report showed each employee in 1967 produced 529.70 units of production and 549.86 in 1968, an increase of 20.16 units of production per employee in one year.

"For these reasons we feel that a substantial wage increase is a must at this time," he said.

Asked if the Victoria local will press its wage re-opening without the regional IWA, Drew replied "yes, if we have to."

In Drydock After Grounding

A 7,600-ton Liberian freighter, the Hong Kong Clipper, is undergoing repairs in Esquimalt Graving Dock after running aground Monday on Denny Island in Queen Charlotte Sound.

She spent several hours on the rocks, taking on water from a hole in her bow, before tugboats freed her.

TRIAL BALLOON GOING ALOFT EARLY SUNDAY

An orange-colored balloon will be flown Sunday morning to mark the height of two proposed nine-storey apartment building in north Oak Bay.

Ald. Frances Elford said the balloon will be aloft between 9:30 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. at a height of 95 feet, which is the maximum allowed under a municipal bylaw for apartments.

The idea is to show residents in the Victoria Riding Academy area on Cedar Hill Cross Road how high the buildings would be in relation to trees to the west which would remain if construction goes ahead.

A public hearing is to be held by council next month on the proposed development.

Rites Monday For Veteran City Lawyer

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's chapel Monday at 1:30 p.m., for Ernest Henry Montague Foot, a practising lawyer in Victoria since 1919.

He died at his residence, 2560 Vista Bay Road, Wednesday.

His daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Vera) Ash, flew to Victoria Thursday from her home at Reno, Nevada. She will be followed Saturday by her husband, who was reeve of Saanich from 1956 to 1958 and Liberal MLA for Saanich from 1948 to 1952.

They have lived in Reno since 1961.

Born in England, Foot came to Canada as a boy and farmed in Manitoba before entering the University of Manitoba where he graduated in law.

WAR VETERAN

He served overseas in the First World War with the Canadian Army and came to Victoria in 1919 to practise law. He was a charter member of Victoria Kiwanis Club, a member of the Manitoba and B.C. Bar associations and a member of the A.F. and A.M.

His wife Mabel died here in 1965. Surviving are two grandchildren, Cairine and Christine Ash.

Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, minister of Victoria Truth Centre, will officiate at the funeral services, to be followed by interment at Royal Oak Burial Park.

'Better Get Cracking' On Hospitals

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today gave notice that the Capital Region Hospital Board "better get cracking" in recommending construction of extended care facilities.

He said the board has authority to recommend construction of 600 extended care beds.

In the six months since the authority was given, the board has "recommended only one unit for 150 beds," the minister said in a statement to the Times.

CONCERNED

"The B.C. Hospital Insurance Services is very concerned about the tardiness with which these recommendations for further construction are coming forward."

Loffmark said BCHIS has nearly completed preparation of "standard plans" for extended care facilities that will be built throughout much of the province.

Decisions "in respect of location" of the new facilities should be made by the board.

"If these matters are not settled soon, we'll have to consider some other way of getting the matter settled," said Loffmark.

CAMPUS KITE FESTIVAL at University of Victoria Saturday is well-organized affair. They're even going to have a "kite hospital" at Student Union Building for minor "injuries" any high-flyers might suffer. And there'll be a modern band on hand to help keep things up in the air—the As Sherif Band. Miss Victoria, Pam Gillan, had a high old time Thursday evening inspecting some of the entries, and is show here with a geometric-designed box kite which threatened to take her aloft. Kite Festival is open to all-comers and should be colorful affair. Entries will be accepted between noon and 2:30 at the SUB, and flights will be judged between 2:30 and 4. There will be prizes for biggest, funniest, most artistic kites, as well as oldest and youngest kiters.—(Robin Clarke Photo)

Provincial Money Given Sally Ann

A Salvation Army spokesman today contradicted a statement by Ald. Ian Stewart in city council Thursday that the B.C. government has done nothing for alcoholics.

Ald. Stewart made the criticism after the city fathers reluctantly turned down a $6,000 grant to the Salvation Army Harbor Light in Victoria.

"The province has done nothing," Ald. Stewart said, "and I want to underline the fact that something must be done by this provincial government."

"This is not true," Capt. Hugh Tilley, Salvation Army public relations officer, said.

"The provincial government gives $6,000 every year to our Harbor Light Mission, and $16,500 to Harbor Light services in Vancouver, including our Miracle Valley rehabilitation centre near Mission.

"We feel the city council also has a responsibility. Almost every day police cars bring men to Victoria's Harbor Light Mission and our social and rehabilitaion centre here.

"The city uses our facilities but pays nothing towards them."

'MANY CALLS'

In city council, Ald. Stewart said he was not advocating that the city pick up the cost of the $6,000 grant to Harbor Light.

"This is the time of year when we have many calls on the public purse, and I think it should be realized and made clear that municipalities have met their social welfare obligations to an extent far beyond anything visualized by our forefathers."

The Salvation Army grant had been turned down earlier by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee.

In Tuesday's Ask The Times a reader wanted to know how many tickets were given for speeding and for unnecessary vehicular noise by city police in 1968. The answer stated no breakdown of such figures was available.

Figures supplied today by the city police traffic department show 1,461 persons were ticked for exceeding 30 mph and 122 for exceeding 20 mph. A total of 190 tickets were issued for unnecessary noise, which includes 57 for squealing tires and 133 for inadequate mufflers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

15 Plywood Mills Close

PORTLAND (AP) — Fifteen plywood mills have announced they will close from one to three weeks in an attempt to stop falling prices.

The list of mills included independents from northern California to the Canadian border.

Crow's Lumber Digest, an industry magazine, reported the mills will stop operating this weekend.

"This could be a very dangerous period for the plywood industry," said Hal Mayhew, editor of the magazine.

The shutdown began when Plywood Market Associates, a group of nine co-operatives that produce sanded plywood, decided to stop production.

Most of the mills are small.

Boise-Cascade, a larger producer, said it does not intend to sell plywood, but will continue making it.

The basic price for sanded plywood Thursday was $110 for 1,000 square feet. This was $34 less than the record price of three weeks ago.

Final Wheat Payment

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian wheat board today announced final payments for the 1967-68 crop year, giving Western farmers a return of 15 to 18 cents a bushel lower than the previous year. Average final payments are 12.462 cents for wheat and 24.628 cents for durum. Cheques are being mailed starting today.

Protests by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has lodged protests with France, the European Common Market and trade - agreement headquarters in Geneva against subsidized price-cutting by France in world barley trade.
